When the Universe Explodes.
Whisky for All.
How Much for a Hair Cut?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

If Judas had taken one dollar from his pieces of silver and invested it at four per cent, compounded semi-annually, the total would amount now to ten thousand octillions of dollars. You write that figure by putting a dollar mark and a figure 1, followed by twenty-eight zeros.

That is interesting, not important.

On the other hand and most important, Gen. Johnson tells you that if you take one dollar now, spend it, and put it in circulation, you are helping a recovery that may not amount to ten thousand octillions, but will surely amount to many billions of American dollars, every year.

A DISTINGUISHED Belgian priest, the Abbe Georges le Maitre, whose specialty is science, believes that our universe may have been built from the ashes of another universe that existed before this one began.

This particular universe is the result of an explosion that happened about ten thousand million years ago, says the abbe, and possibly the force that causes radio activity in radium may have caused that explosion.

Such explosions come, one after another, billions of years apart, causing endless deaths and rebirths of the universe.

The abbe doesn't say what happens to us small, two-legged microbes clinging to this little earth fragment of that universe after the explosion.

Where do we go? Is there some safe place outside of this universe? Or should we, after years be glad to have the explosion come, and give us a rest?

A RAIN of meteors in Portugal caused those religiously inclined to rush to the churches. Church bells were tolled in some villages, and penitents formed processions, carrying lighted candles and singing hymns. Prof. Olivier, of the University of Pennsylvania, thinks a comet, perhaps Giacobini's, may have caused the meteor display.

There was a time when human beings feared that each comet might destroy the earth. A considerable number today, particularly city real estate owners, would not object if a comet did strike the earth. It would wipe out so many mortgages, and pay so many tax bills.

THE GOVERNMENT finds that when prohibition goes, and "it will not be long now," this country will have forty million gallons of whisky ready for immediate sale. That ought to last a little while.

Today you will know what Florida, a cheerful, sunny state, has to say about prohibition.

Florida has been unusually fortunate throughout the prohibition period. Proximity to Cuba and the wet British islands has brought tourists. No alcoholic drought has been perceptible.

The crime wave never got a real start in Florida, because there, if you kill somebody, Florida's government promptly kills you. It does not accept insanity as an excuse, and its laws punish kidnaping with death. Therefore there is no kidnaping.

THE NRA wonders about "a fair price for a haircut." It depends on the shop, the customer, his requirements.

A young gentleman who wants his hair cut while a lovely lady polishes his nails and tells him the latest anecdote, and wants his face coddled with hot towels, might well pay three times as much as a rough citizen who only wants his hair cut.

NRA should investigate carefully the effect of any code on barber shops. It might mean the discharge of many barbers, in the so-called "high grade" barber shops.

Now the barbers wait for customers, and are rewarded by tips and part of the receipts. If the boss barber is compelled to pay as much an hour while the barbers wait for customers he will have fewer barbers working and let the customers wait.

WINKLER, LEADER of Chicago's "North Side mob," is dead. Police say he talked too much, especially about a big mail robbery.

Mr. Winkler, according to the police, manipulated the machine gun that mowed down seven gangsters in one famous massacre.

After slugs had entered his body he asked for a priest and died praying for his own soul. Lucky for him, deathbed repentance is sometimes accepted.

RUSSIA ACCUSES Japan of planning to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway. Japan doesn't like to be accused, at least until a thing is done, and warns Russia that "diplomatic relations may become strained."

They are strained now and the explosion that is expected "somewhere" may be a Russian-Japanese explosion. How the "capitalist nations," as Russia calls them, would weep over that.

SENATOR WAGNER, of New York, telling union labor that "the new deal" has given workmen "a new charter," urges them to stop striking so often and "abandon the philosophy of strife in its relation with employers."

Senator Wagner must remember that life is dull, especially if you lay bricks all day or hammer nails. And a strike is exciting. It develops enthusiasm and the "mob" spirit, that lies deep in every human mind. Work is tiresome, monotonous, a fight is pleasing.

MINE BRIDGE DYNAMITED IN STRIKE

Coal Peace Conference Here Waits Orders From Operators

Developments in the coal miners' holiday today were:

1—Foot and cable bridges at Jacobs Creek, over the Youghiogheny River at Banning mine No. 1, Westmoreland County, were blown up by dynamite.

2—The peace parley between Philip Murray, speaking for the United Mine Workers, and Thomas Moses, spokesman for the owners of captive mines, is to resume tomorrow.

3—Roving bands of pickets swept through Western Pennsylvania fields to shut down mines reopened through President Roosevelt's back-to-work call. They succeeded in some cases.

4—The President's call was heeded at 10 or more Allegheny Valley mines, which reopened today—breaking the almost solid phalanx of valley pits closed in sympathy with demand that captive mines recognize the union.

Moses was awaiting orders from officials of the "big four" steel corporations who own the captive mines. He and Murray are expected to resume their parley towards peace at 10 a. m. tomorrow here.

SOME MINES WORKING

Many mines that had answered the back-to-work call still were working, however—these particularly in Allegheny, Washington, Westmoreland, Indiana and Jefferson counties.

The historical Jacobs Creek foot and bucket bridges over the Youghiogheny, near the Fayette County line, and Banning Mine No. 1, were blown up by dynamite shortly after dawn.

Dynamite sticks had apparently been wedged into the abutment on the Jacobs Creek town side and set off. The damage was considerable, but foot travel was still possible.

Sticks of dynamite placed in the bucket, which traveled along an overhead cable, destroyed it.

Roosevelt Prepares For Rum

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt within the next week will co-ordinate the different federal groups studying steps to be taken if prohibition is repealed, in an effort to find a basis for new legislation.

With 33 states now on record for repeal, it was said at the White House today that federal agencies concerned were concentrating on what to do between actual repeal and the time when legislation can be enacted and what legislation to propose.

It was emphasized on behalf of the President that a special session of Congress has never been considered and that there is no prospect of one being called.

Whether the administration's liquor policy will go beyond enactment of domestic tax and import duty legislation is not yet clear, although some action is required to take care of the situation between repeal and new legislation.

Several groups are exploring the question independently. The President believes the time is ripe for these to get together.

Attorney General Cummings and the State Department have been looking into the importation end of the matter, while the Treasury and its Internal Revenue Bureau have been examining related problems and taxes.

Legislature to Revise Beer Control Law

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Administration and legislative leaders are planning some rapid-fire lawmaking to revise the state's new beer control law and protect the $500,000 monthly revenue from this source.

Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, legal authorities say, will make the five-months-old beer control act practically useless and necessitate its revision at the outset of the special legislative session to be called next month.

The McClure Act, taxing 3.2 beer and wines $1.24 a barrel or haft cent a bottle, specifically controls only beverages of more than one-half and not more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content. At WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo (Dem.), of California, helped the firm of Dillon, Read & Co., overcome legal difficulties in the floating of a $12,000,000 bond issue for the city of Rio de Janeiro in 1921, Col. Robert O. Hayward, vice president of the firm, testified today at the Senate market inquiry.

Hayward said McAdoo represented the firm in getting the Federal Court in New York to release an option held by Imbrie & Co., then in the hands of receivers, to float the loan. The court ordered Dillon Read & Co. to pay $125,000 for the option.

The city defaulted on interest payments in 1931.

BARES McADOO AID

The calling of Hayward started an inquiry into the handling of $237,000,000 of South American bonds by Dillon Read & Co. Nearly all the issues now are in default, costing the American investing public more than $100,000,000.

Hayward told first about the $12,000,000 Rio de Janeiro issue. He said the firm of Imbrie & Co. held an option then to float such issues. Hayward said:

"Fortunately for our firm, Imbrie & Co. sustained financial

Re-Enacted Shooting

MISS MINNIE BUCHWEITZ....PRISONER SOLES' SECRETARY

Miss Buchweitz, pictured today as she told of how Robert S. Soles, McKeesport man jailed and charged with the murder of his 'suicide' wife last June, used her and another young woman in a re-enactment shortly after the fatal shooting in a lovely bedroom of his well-furnished home. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

DEATH PROBE LINKS 3 WOMEN

Proposal Month After Wife's Slaying Hinted

Three young women . . .

To one of them, a widow, Robert Smith Soles proposed marriage a month after his wife had been shot to death, according to county detectives.

The second, his secretary, today told how she and Soles had re-enacted the bedroom shooting scene while his wife lay dying, the authorities revealed.

The third, intimate of the attractive La Roux Soles, will be the principal witness for the prosecution when Soles is arraigned for the first time tomorrow.

SECRETARY'S STORY

For two hours today the secretary of the prosperous McKeesport businessman sat in District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office and told of her part in the scenes which followed the discovery of Soles' wife, shot beneath the heart, in the well-furnished Soles home in McKeesport.

Miss Minnie Buchweitz, 31, related that Soles called her to his home in Jenny Lind street the day after the shooting. A second woman, a member of the respected Soles clan, was there, according to County Detective Peter Connors.

Soles stood her beneath the bullet hole which pierced the bedroom wall, himself stood at the dresser in which two revolvers were kept, and then came to the conclusion that somebody had shot his wife!—so the detectives said.

The secretary and Soles then moved to the McKeesport Hospital to obtain from the dying Mrs. Soles a deathbed statement exonerating her husband, Connors added.

Mrs. Soles died a few minutes before they arrived.

This picture does not fit with the shooting as reconstructed by Connors and District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who have announced that the ex-Army captain has signed a six-page confession.

They say Soles came home at 1:30 o'clock in the morning from another woman that he quarreled with his wife, that finally he shot her with a .38 caliber pistol, that Mrs. Soles, so great was her devotion to him, then wrote the suicide note placing the blame upon herself.

"The other woman" whom Soles had been with earlier on the same knight is a widow who has since been questioned several times, the authorities report. They say that a month after his wife's death in June, Soles and she agreed to wed.

"The other woman" has been a widow for four years, Connors said.

The third woman, Mrs. Soles' good friend, will testify tomorrow when Soles is arraigned before Alderman Thomas Flanigan.

She will testify along with Connors and Harry Lynch, father of Mrs. Soles, who inspired the belated investigation which brought his son-in-law's arrest.

TO RECOUNT STORY

Connors said that the testimony of this third woman will be introduced to show that Soles told conflicting stories of the scene in the Soles bedroom when his wife was shot. She will tell the story Soles told her, according to Connors.

Park said today that he will relate the circumstances attending the confession attributed to Soles at the hearing tomorrow, but the actual confession will not be revealed.

Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for Soles, will not waive hearing for court, Park said he had been informed.

Park added that the autopsy performed Monday was to determine the course of the bullet which cost Mrs. Soles her life last June in the well-furnished Soles home.

Coroner W. J. McGregor has decided that he will not reopen the inquest, at which a jury returned a verdict of suicide. This verdict was based on a suicide note written by Mrs. Soles, who, so county detectives charge, tried to shield her husband after he had shot her in the heat of a quarrel at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

The Coroner said, however, that he would attach the ultimate verdict in the case to the jury's findings.

TROOPERS ROUT W. VA. PICKETS

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 11.—A crowd of 1,000 strike sympathizers and spectators who collected outside the Weirton Steel Company mills today was scattered by West Virginia state police.

There were no disturbances. The police, after having their own tear gas bombs tossed back at them yesterday, today included not bombs but tear gas guns in their equipment.

This was the second day of the mills' reopening and Fred Hanlin, vice president of the company, estimated that 4,500 men had returned to work this morning. He said he expects the plant to be operating normally by tomorrow. Few workmen were seen entering by the main gates, but they have come in by Pennsylvania Railroad trains from Steubenville.

Hanlin said the Pope plant, in Steubenville, O., was operating with its normal shift of 900 men.

Today and tomorrow are paydays and the remaining strikers, who have a few days' pay coming are collecting their wages in the usual procedure, Hanlin said.

The remaining strikers held two mass meetings yesterday, at which leaders advised them to refrain from violence.

Gabriel Fainer, 45, a member of the strike forces of Weirton, was killed last night in an automobile accident a quarter of a mile from

Ambridge Battle Hearings Tonight

A number of men and women arrested by Ambridge police in connection with riots and disturbances, which began last Wednesday in connection with a walkout of steel workers, were to be given hearings either tonight or tomorrow night, according to Burgess P. "Oh, we have some here. Nobody knows when they were brought in. We're just beginning to sort them out."

REPEAL WINS IN 33RD STATE

International News Service.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 11.—Prohibition repeal swept swiftly toward realization today as Florida—the thirty-third consecutive state to vote to strike the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution—swung decisively into the wet column.

License Department Spy Cannot OK Nude Dance

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Sally Rand, who came out of the West to show New Yorkers what the well-costumed fan dancer does not wear, today was ordered to put on some more clothes.

City License Commissioner Sidney S. Levine issued the order after witnessing Miss Rand on the stage of the Paramount Theater.

In a letter to the management of the theater telling them to "dress her up" or suffer revocation of their license, Levine said:

"I saw the nude performance by Miss Rand. It was indecent and immoral and can not be tolerated by this department."

Miss Rand arrived here recently from Chicago where, since A Century of Progress opened in May, she had educated exposition visitors in the art of terpsichore without benefit of clothing. She alternated between stage and police court.

Levine suggested that Sally could go on with the show if she donned "opaque raiment."

Tax Receipt Vote Racket Bared Here

The Registration Board today gave out a formal statement disclosing that "tax receipts have been delivered wholesale throughout certain wards within the city" and asserting that it has information of one person being responsible for delivering some of these receipts.

This person, the statement said, was indicted in 1931 on the same charge. However, it did not disclose his identity.

The statement, signed by the entire membership of the Registration Board, was made following a conference with Morgan F. Bird, an investigator for Gov. Pinchot. Bird was detailed by Pinchot to come here following charges by Cordelius D. Scully of fraudulent Republican registration in many wards. Ccully was chairman of the McNair campaign committee during the recent primary.

BRITISH MUTINY RUMOR DENIED

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Rumors of insubordination aboard the warship H. M. S. Hood en route to the North Sea naval maneuvers were heard here today and persisted throughout the afternoon.

However, the rumors were branded "ridiculous" by admiralty officers. The admiralty instituted an investigation.

The H. M. S. Hood, former flagship of the British Mediterranean fleet, is celebrated as the largest warship in the world. It carries a complement of 1,341 men.

Two years ago the Hood was in American waters, passing through the Panama Canal and touring the West Coast of the United States. At about that same time, 30 seamen of the H. M. S. Lucia, submarine depot ship in Plymouth Harbor, England, were arrested for courtmartial when they refused duty when their week-end shore leave was canceled.

The H. M. S. Hood, herself, was once involved in a personnel disorder, in September, 1931.

She was one of the ships stationed at Invergordon, Scotland, immediately before the fall naval maneuvers on the North Sea when the sailors of various vessels went on strike because of dissatisfaction over the reduction of pay. Because of the unrest the maneuvers were canceled.

53 Men in Prison, 10 More Indicted As U. S. Wars on Racehorse Doping

CHAPTER I.
Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Fifty-three men now are in Federal prisons because they carried illicit narcotics to the race tracks of the nation, 10 more are under indictment on somewhat similar charges, and Harry Anslinger, Commissioner of Narcotics, in Washington, insists this merely is the beginning of the battle to smash the practice of doping race horses. Said Commissioner Anslinger.

"Our attention was directed to the race tracks as a distributing point for morphine, heroin and cocaine about a year ago. We found that after cutting off certain addicts from their usual source of supply they continued to obtain rather plentiful portions of dope. Tracing them, we discovered their trails leading to various race tracks, and there we observed a small army of peddlers doing a thriving business.

"These dealers, some of them, former jockeys or stable hands, were engaged in a highly profitable trade. They were selling drugs to stable men, either for their own use or for the doping of animals. We also established that drug agents at the tracks were disposing of their illegal wares to addicts, or minor dealers, who could not get dope elsewhere.

"When we took these men into custody, they stated that large amounts of cocaine and heroin were used by horsemen for administration to animals. Through the years we had heard quite a bit about the doping of horses, but had not paid much attention to it, lacking definite facts and not realizing the vast operations in narcotics at race tracks. Possessed of the information supplied by peddlers, I determined to learn the actual truth."

"Our investigation started at Sportsman's Park in Chicago about a year ago. It was continued at different tracks throughout the autumn, carried along into the winter season at New Orleans and Miami, and

The Federal Narcotics Bureau has begun a farflung campaign to stamp out the pernicious practice of giving thoroughbreds heroin, cocaine and other narcotics before they run, doping the horses to permit "insiders" a better chance to "cleanup."

Saturday three more arrests were made at Detroit by federal agents in an alleged horse doping case. An astounding situation since then has come to light.

In a series of articles on race horse doping, Frank G. Menke, noted sports expert, exposes the inside story of the practice of entering horses on the leading tracks of the country which have been crazed with narcotics to force them to added speed and stamina.

Baby Stars' Pay Higher? Roosevelt Starts Probe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The NRA is going to investigate—at President Roosevelt's request—reports that juvenile motion picture stars and movie directors are being paid salaries four or five times that received by the Chief Executive.

At the White House today it was said that Deputy Administrator Rosenblatt, in charge of the motion picture code, had been requested by Mr. Roosevelt to learn whether immature persons were receiving unconscionable salaries for the work performed.

The investigation also is to include producers and directors.

Requests have been received at the White House from independent producers for a rehearing on the movie code and it was indicated that charges in telegrams from Hollywood resulted in the President's instructions for an investigation into salaries paid in the industry.

NRA MAY ASK CONGRESS POWER TO END LABOR DISPUTES

A. F. OF L. ASKS FOR 30-HOUR WORK WEEK

Resolution Adopted Unanimously at Convention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Power to step in and end labor disputes may be asked of Congress by the administration unless organized workers settle their own internal dissensions and arbitrate before striking.

Such an ultimatum already has been delivered to two unions—carpenters and ironworkers—which have halted construction work on the Justice Department Building in the capital with an argument over which should install radiator enclosures.

30-HOUR WEEK ASKED

Meanwhile, agreeing that "the NRA is headed in the right direction," the American Federation of Labor convention today instructed its executive council to work for inclusion of a maximum 30-hour work week in all recovery codes.

Adopting with a unanimous chorus of "ayes" a resolution to this affect, the convention further recommended that if the executive council were unable to achieve that end it then should seek congressional enactment of a compulsory six-hour day, five-day week law with guarantees against reductions in wages.

Speaking to the convention on the union issue at the Justice Department building, Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McCrady said:

"I have told labor that unless the unions settle that dispute between themselves, and settle it quickly, we will go to Congress when it convenes in January and ask power for the government to make the decision in cases involving federal buildings.

GOVERNMENT PRECEDENT

"That, of course, would constitute a precedent for the government later in asking the power to handle all such cases, whether they involve government buildings or not, so long as it disrupts business generally."

A hint of administration dissatisfaction at continuing labor unrest was given to the convention last night by Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Administrator.

Quoting Dr. Alexander Sachs, NRA economist, as saying there were now fewer strikes than in any other recovery in history, Johnson added:

"Labor does not need to strike under the Roosevelt plan.

"From the beginning to the end you are given a complete and highly effective protection of your rights. The plain, stark truth is that you canont tolerate the strike."

Discussing the strike troubles in the coal industry, Johnson said "a minority of miners using violence and force in defiance of the public peace is hampering the responsible leadership of the United Mine Workers and preventing its compliance with its contracts." He asked:

"Does any one suppose for a moment that in a democratic country like this 10 per cent of any group can hold up the progress of the President's plan (which has become the people's plan) in this country? I leave the answer to that question with you."

Like other speakers to the convention, Johnson urged that labor present its differences with employers to the National Labor Board, headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York.

A. F. L. to Re-elect Green as President

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—Nominations for offices of the American Federation of Labor were listed for tomorrow at the federation's convention today and William Green, president, was slated for re-election. Barring an unforseen explosion, the veteran labor chieftain, native of Coshocton, O., will sweep into the most important job American labor has to offer for the tenth consecutive time.

Green, of Welsh descent, fought his way up as a miner through the ranks of organized labor. He also served in the Ohio State Senate and was the author of the Ohio workmen's compensation act.

Southern Operators Sign With Union

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Southern Appalachian coal operators and United Mine Workers of America, District 19, today signed an agreement for operation under the recently adopted coal code. District 19 embraces East Tennessee and Southeastern Kentucky.

gathered at the Banning mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, to prevent the mine, which opened yesterday, from resuming. The footbridge is the main artery by which the miners from Van Meter, Westmoreland County, get into the mine.

PEACE MEETING

Murray and Moses met yesterday afternoon and discussed peace terms between the United Miners and the H. C. Frick Coke Company mines and other captive mines owned by the United States Steel, Jones & Laughlin, Bethlehem and National Steel corporations.

Murray said the meeting progressed and was very satisfactory.

Understood to be the principal points discussed were the recognition of the United Mine Workers, the checkoff, by which the company deducts union dues from the miners' pay; the recognition of union checkweighmen.

Hinging on solution is the attitude captive mine owners in New York and here take on these questions.

Sheriff Harry E. Hackney, of Fayette County, today announced that nearly 1,000 miners of Fayette County had appealed to him to give them protection so they could resume work in the Frick mines. The petitions, which, it was understood, a Uniontown newspaper secured, include 293 names from Colonial No. 1, which normally employs about 1,500; 205 from Colonial No. 3, which employs almost 900; 215 from Colonial No. 4, which employs about 900, and 418 from Edenborn, which employs from 1,200 to 1,500. The men, it was said, are members of the Brotherhood of Mine Workers, not affiliated with the United Mine Workers. Hackney said today:

"I hope the Governor will cooperate with me and allow me to give protection to those who want to go to work."

The holiday continued in Fayette County, the seat of the protest. Pickets closed down the Corrado mine of the Crawford Coal Company, and the Fancy Hill mine of the Fancy Hill Coal Company which had been operating yesterday.

There were no indications of a let-up, hundreds of pickets leaving for adjoining counties to attempt to suppress any gains made as a result of the President's back-to-work call.

Many mines in Southern Allegheny County fields were working. After P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5 United Mine Workers, addressed a meeting yesterday, 300 miners returned to Castle Shannon No. 3 of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, on the night shift. This morning, 500 pickets forced the mine down again, also closing Castle Shannon No. 2. Coverdale opened to 150 men.

PROTECTION OFFERED

Sheriff J. A. Seamon, of Washington County, offered full protection to any miners who expressed a desire to go back to work. The Sheriff said that Gov. Pinchot assured him in a telephone conversation that he would "co-operate fully" in extending such protection.

Sheriff James A. White, of Greene County, announced today the mines were down and that there were no disorders.

Six state police prevented 800 pickets from closing down Montour No. 9, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, near McDonald. The pickets, however, moved into McDonald where they halted miners going to the McDonald mine of the Carnegie Coal Corporation. This pit was shut down when insufficient men appeared to operate it.

The 10 or so mines operating in the Allegheny Valley are between Tarentum and Freeport.

PICKETS STONE CARS

Pickets stoned several cars and hatled a number of others at Atlasburg, Washington County, when 300 men tried to resume work in the Carnegie Corporation Atlasburg mine. Yesterday, 75 men had worked, cleaning it up. The remainder of the crew remained out.

The Primrose mine of the Carnegie Corporation, which worked yesterday, was also forced down, as was the P. & W. mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company at Avella. Each works 300 men normally.

A stick of dynamite touched off at the garage of Tony Beamuch, Colonial No. 3, yesterday, did $10 damage. Beamish was in the picket lines at the time. A haystack near Buffington was burned during the night. Police did not connect it with the strike.

WOMEN TO MEET

Word spread through the mining communities today that women delegates would assemble tomorrow to form an auxiliary of the United Mine Workers, the meeting to be held in Brownsville's Moose Temple at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Agnes Snear, at a meeting in Centerville last Monday, launched the auxiliary idea, suggesting three women delegates from each local. Some of the men objected.

State troopers were rushed to Pone Hill, in Venango County, near Grove City, today when pickets were reported to have stoned an automobile of Charles Norris, operator of a small mine. More than 200 pickets prevented the mine from reopening.

ILL GIRL PLEADS MATE BE FREED

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A young bride with a year to live waited today for a judge's answer to her plea that her husband be freed from their marriage.

Helen May Schickler, 21, went before Justice William F. Bleakley in Supreme Court and said:

"I am dying and I want my husband to be free. I have tuberculosis and I can't live a year."

The judge said she had married Frederick C. Schickler for better or for worse and he should stick to her. The husband asked his annulment on the grounds of fraud. He said his wife had concealed from him the fact that she had tuberculosis.

But the wife pleaded:

"Please, please, give him his annulment. Nobody can do anything for me. My mother won't have me, and she's my only relative. But a girl in Peekskill has taken care of me and I'll stay with her until I die."

Justice Bleakley called Schickler into his private office. For 15 minutes the judge's voice was heard. When the two came out, the judge announced his decision was reserved.

CHARGE HURLED AT CLUB MEET

A decided note of dissension reared its head this morning at the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention in the William Penn Hotel. When an amendment proposing that in the future no state-unfederated club be admitted to county federations, Mrs. William Linglebach, president of the Philadelphia County Federation, moved that the by-law be laid on the table until the Harrisburg convention in 1934.

The motion was carried, but Mrs. John M. Phillips, second vice president of the State Federation, in a stirring speech charged that the Philadelphia contingent had railroaded the motion.

Further, she pointed out that the state organization, if it is to grow in strength and influence, must have within it the small clubs which are now joining county federations and through them reaping the benefits of speakers and programs of the state, without contributing in any way to the State Federation.

Federated clubs pay on a per capita basis to the State Federation.

Silk Strike Peace Conference Resumes

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—Under the guidance of United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, head of the National Labor Board, efforts to settle the strike of more than 70,000 silk workers in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania went forward today after success of the opening parley was imperiled for a time by argument and confusion.

The disturbance broke out when representatives of employers and employes began competing for attention in a packed meeting hall and it was impossible to get the meeting down to a business basis.

French Premier's Program Copies NRA

PARIS, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—Paris financiers displayed nervousness today as details of Premier Daladier's French recovery plan, based somewhat on the lines of the American NRA, came to light.

Embracing higher wages and shorter working hours, the Daladier plan calls for establishment of a minimum wage, collective bargaining and a 40-hour week. The Premier plans to introduce bills containing these measures in the Chamber of Deputies.

'Old Pal' Pinchot Fails Him, Eddie Sees Guffey

He was vexed because of Gov. Pinchot's attitude, as Eddie saw it, on federal funds for municipalities.

He didn't expect to find Gov. Pinchot in Pittsburgh, but he came here to see what Joseph F. Guffey, state Democratic leader, could do about it. He said:

"A fine state of affairs it is when you have to ask a Democrat to ask your old pal to do something that he ought to do anyway."

Then he challenged Gov. Pinchot to a debate on Reyburn Plaza, opposite city hall, in Philadelphia.

"The subject? There are so many things to debate about I don't have them all enumerated."

the mills. The driver was David Snyder, 25, of Steubenville, who was en route to work in the mills, the polce reported. Snyder was released on his own recognizance by authorities who were satisfied it was an accident.

Weirton Using Own Men, Federal Prober Believes

Many workers in the Weirton Steel Company's plant in Weirton, W. Va., are returning to work, according to observations made by United States Commissioner of Conciliation Hugh D. Friel, in a tour of the plant.

Sent to Weirton to make a personal check following apparently well-verified reports—denied by E. T. Weir—that large numbers of strikebreakers had been imported into the plant and by conflicting reports of the number of men actually at work, Friel made his inspection yesterday.

A two-hour trip through the mill, during which time he covered only a little more than half the territory, convinced him, he says, that:

"There must be at least 1,500 men in that part of the plant I saw. That's a conservative estimate. And the company tells me that they have more applicants for work than it can handle until the mill can be rehabilitated and the furnaces reheated. The plans are to put one tin mill on a three-shift day at once."

Were they strikebreakers Friel saw? He thinks not, because:

"Most of the men were doing skilled labor and they seemed to know what they were doing.

"They worked lathes and rolled sheets and handled cranes as though they had been doing it all their lives.

Friel investigated the railroad cars union men said brought strike-breakers into the works and said:

"I looked into three on one siding and found there was a provision car, a kitchen car and a dining car. Officials said they were for the men quartered there on maintenance work and unable to leave the plant until they finished."

Guns, searchlights, machine guns, sandbags—all visible preparations for conflict were missing, Friel reported.

After his inspection tour, Friel scouted the reports of strikebreakers and of large numbers of men camped within the mill and was inclined to accept the company's statements that some 3,000 men have returned to work. He said:

"I can't understand where the union gets its information. They must be relying on someone pretty careless."

CLAIRTON WORK NORMAL AGAIN

Operating conditions at the big Clairton mills of the Carnegie Steel Company were virtually normal today for the first time since coal strikers stormed the gates two weeks ago.

About 2,000 workers entered or left the by-product and steel plants as shifts changed late yesterday, again at midnight, and at 8 o'clock this morning. Heretofore the men had been kept within the mills for protection.

Half a dozen pickets stood by the gates as the workers passed by. No attempt was made to molest the workmen, except in a single instance.

State police reported an unidentified man told them he was beaten by two Negroes at the Maple avenue gate.

In addition to a half dozen state police, a similar number of county police and deputy sheriffs were on guard. They said they anticipated no trouble as long as the coal strikers kept away. Picketing today was by steel workers demanding recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Flight Record Set By Kingsford-Smith

WYNDHAM, Northern Australia, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, famous Australian aviator, landed here today, breaking the England-Australia flight record by completing the journey in seven days, four hours and 45 minutes.

The new record broke the previous mark set by C. W. A. Scott, of Great Britain, in 1932 by 1 day, 16 hours and 2 minutes.

CALL TROOPERS AS GUARD FOR MRS. PINCHOT

Fear Trouble at Rally Tonight as Iron, Steel Union Defies Ban

A detail of state police will surround Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, when she mounts the platform in an amusement park outside the limits of Apollo tonight to address millworkers of the Vandergrift-Apollo district.

These precautions were taken by the "first lady of the state" after a series of developments in the Kiski Valley which saw her meeting barred from seven different halls as well as the borough building.

J. C. Eakin, Kiski Valley representative of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, today disclosed he had been refused permission to use Griffin Park for tonight's meeting, after having paid the rental fee, but declared the meeting would be held anyhow.

BLAMED STEEL MEN

Mrs. Pinchot blamed steel mill operators for the handicap, despite the statement of Burgess S. S. Baldridge, of Apollo, that the hall would not be large enough to hold the crowd desirous of hearing the Governor's wife.

When informed of the attitude of the Burgess, Mrs. Pinchot declared:

"The Burgess in his simplicity would have us believe that he never has heard a loudspeaker or an overflow meeting. The truth is that Apollo is a steel town controlled by steel operators, and the Burgess has been given orders to stop the steel workers' meeting, whatever the Constitution may say about the rights of free assembly.

"This man must be a brother to the Burgess of Homestead, who attempted last summer to prevent Frances Perkins, in her official capacity as Secretary of Labor, from meeting with groups of American citizens."

FLYING HERE

Mrs. Pinchot, en route to Apollo, was to arrive in Pittsburgh today by airplane.

Organization of American Legion "vigilantes" in Vandergrift to prevent trouble in the steel mills is the result of the proposed visit of Mrs. Pinchot, according to Sheriff William H. Humes, of Westmoreland County. The Sheriff was quoted as saying:

"They think up there that since Mrs. Pinchot is going to speak for the union, the same outfit that was in the old Homestead strike, they might have trouble, and they don't want it."

BURGESS 'LAMENTS'

APOLLO, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Burgess S. S. Baldridge says he "laments" the fact that he had to deny the use of the borough auditorium for a steel workers' mass meeting at which Mrs. Gifford Pinchot will speak tonight. He declared:

"We greatly lament that we will be unable to hear the Governor's wife. I am attempting to arrange a persona. meeting so that I can assure her of our regrets."

FIRST LADY, 49, CELEBRATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt celebrated her forty-ninth birthday today with just about 49 varieties of activities.

Later, she prepared to receive a group of 50 women interested in slum clearance and better housing.

Her birthday dinner tonight will be "strictly family." Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, is coming down from Hyde Park. Mrs. Anna Dall, her daughter, already is here.

And, of course, there was some birthday time given to the grandchildren. "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, and little Sara, daughter of James, all "house guests" in the third floor nursery.

U. S. STEEL MUM ON COAL STRIKE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—No meetings or conferences on the question of operation of steel-owned coal mines were scheduled for today, it was said at the main offices of the United States Steel Corporation.

Yesterday's meeting, attended by 23 representatives of the four or five large steel companies involved, ended with no announcement of any kind.

It was reported United States Steel had informed the other companies of the steps it was taking to end the strike in its coal mines and the instructions it had given Thomas Moses, president of its coal subsidiary, for his conferences in Pittsburgh with Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers.

STRIKES TRAGIC, BRITON SAYS

Dr. Charles Edward Marshall, coal expert of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, views the mine strike and steel mill picketing in the Pittsburgh area as being "tragic."

Dr. Marshall, who is taking post-doctorate work at the University of Pittsburgh and working in conjunction with the United States Bureau of Mines, said:

"If you recall, England had its big mine strike back in 1926, when the country was paralyzed for a week. To this day England still suffers from that strike. From all that I know about the strike here I think it is tragic. It will certainly result in many harmful after effects."

England's strike, he explained, was tame compared with the "battle of Ambridge." In England, he said, one shot was fired and several stones thrown.

present the sale of beverages stronger than 3.2 is prohibited by the Snyder-Armstrong state prohibition enforcement act.

The Snyder-Armstrong Act, taking its definition of "intoicating" liquor from the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, will not be effective in the event of national repeal, which is possible by December 5.

Constitutional lawyers, scanning the beer control as well as the more controversial liquor control situation, assert Pennsylvania will be helpless to control or tax beer or wines unless the McClure Act is amended quickly or a substitute for the Snyder-Armstrong Act is enacted.

Roosevelt to Ask Extension of R. F. C.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(INS.)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, giant credit agency of the federal government, will be given a new lease of life by the Congress that assembles on January 3.

President Roosevelt announced today he proposed to ask Congress to extend the R. F. C. after February 20, the date on which it would expire under the original act.

ROOSEVELT'S CREDIT PLAN READY

Public Announcement Of Program Due Momentarily

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Public announcement of the general outline of President Roosevelt's new banking and credit program was expected today.

Weeks of preparation have brought the plan to virtual culmination, although there are some details to be worked out. The foundation of the program has been laid, embracing creation of a giant federal bank to take over the frozen assets of distressed financial institutions.

LEGAL PHASES

Legal phases of the new program remained as the last technicalities to be determined. When it is in operation, the President hopes to unleash billions of dollars now tied up in closed banks. He hopes the buying impetus provided will supply a new stimulant to the prosperity drive motivated by the power of the NRA.

There will be apparently two distinct divisions of the new program, one handling state banks, the other, under Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, and already under way, caring for national banks. O'Connor conferred with the President for nearly two hours yesterday, and emerged from the White House with the distinct cleavage between state and national banks uppermost in his mind.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through which the credit and finance expansion plan will get under way, was a late caller at the White House, too.

Banks Speed Application For Deposit Insurance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Deposit Insurance Corporation, said last night that state banks "have shown remarkable speed in applying for membership."

At the same time he appointed 47 national bank examiners as supervising examiners to ascertain if the banks are eligible to become members of the corporation.

Federal Reserve member banks automatically become members when the new deposit insurance provision of the Glass-Steagall act becomes effective on January 1. Deposits will be insured in full on accounts up to $2,500.

Cummings said in a statement that 2,171 of the 8,557 state banks that had been sent applications had responded favorably up until noon yesterday.

REPUBLIC MILL FIGHTS HURT 12

International News Service.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 11.—One man was slugged and injured today as 130 "chippers" at a Republic Steel Company mill went on strike and urged other workers to join them.

Louis Romeo, a reported striker who was passing handbills urging spread of the walkout, was hit with a blackjack and kicked repeatedly by company police at the steel mill, he claimed.

Officials of the Republic Steel Company charged that the strike was inspired by a union with Communistic tendencies and expressed confidence that it would not spread.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A clash between pickets and company policemen at the plant of the Republic Steel Corporation last midnight sent 11 men to hospitals and was ended when city police broke up the crowd which gathered in the street near the plant.

Factory Resumes Work After Strike

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—The Walworth plant, closed four weeks ago by a strike, when officials refused to recognize the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, has resumed operations in full.

British Lump Sum Debt Payment Bid Looms

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Making a cautious approach to the delicate problem of debt reduction, the British debt mission laid the groundwork of their case before the American negotiators today, but stopped short of actually proposing terms of settlement.

That will come later in the negotiations, and, according to all indications, will consist of an offer to settle the $4,500,000,000 obligation by a lump sum variously estimated at from $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000. Before that, however, the British will propose settlement according to the Lausanne plan of 10 cents on the dollar. When that is rejected, as it will be, the lump sum plan will be laid on the table.

In laying the groundwork of their case before the American Treasury, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and his associates traveled familiar paths of argument.

Starting out with the thesis that Britain is no longer able to carry out the terms of the Baldwin agreement, negotiated in 1923, the British cited changed economic conditions throughout the world, the loss of trade, the fact that most of the money borrowed was spent in the United States for materials, and that other debtors received more favorable terms as reasons why the Baldwin agreement should be revised downward.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(Universal)—Britain has suggested flotation of a $1,000,000,000 loan in New York to finance a final lump-sum payment on war debts owed the United States by Europe, the London Daily Herald today states.

BRIDE-TO-BE AMONG 7 KILLED AS FLAMING PLANE CRASHES

U. S. OFFICIALS LAUNCH PROBE AT SCENE

'All's Well,' Air Liner Radios Few Minutes Before Crackup

CHESTERTON, Ind., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The scattered bits of a giant twin-motor transport plane—one of its massive wheels hung suspended from a tree—gave mute evidence today of the crash of a New York-to-Chicago ship of the United Air Lines and the death of its seven occupants.

Just what happened when the all-metal ship, with a top speed of more than three miles a minute, crashed to earth in flames shortly after 9 o'clock last night, about five miles southeast of here, probably never will be known, but witnesses said they heard a terrific explosion.

'ALL IS WELL!'

A few minutes before, while over North Liberty, Ind., company officials said it had radioed that "all was well" and that before that it had landed at Cleveland and had passed over Toledo.

Five of the bodies were recovered last night, but none was taken out alive, as the heat of the flames kept farmers who flocked to the scene back.

The farmers said they saw the victims milling around on the inside of the cabin, unable to save themselves. Some said they even heard their screams.

ALL BODIES FOUND

It was 12 hours after the great ship plunged to earth and burst into a roaring furnace before the last two bodies were found. They had been thrown 250 yards from the cabin section, near the broken tail of the plane.

The dead were:

TARRANT, HAROLD R., pilot, Oak Park, Ill.

RUBY, A. T., co-pilot, Oak Park.

SCHENDORF, FRED, Chicago.

SMITH, E., Chicago.

DWYER, DOROTHY, Arlington, Mass.

EN ROUTE TO WED

Miss Dwyer was on her way from her Massachusetts home to Reno, Nev., where she was to be married this afternoon to Theodore Baldwin, former Boston stock market operator.

The dead were taken to undertaking establishments at Chesterton and Valparaiso. Coroner Carl Davis, of Porter County, said an inquest would be held. The date was not set.

The scene of the wreck was visited today by B. M. Jacobs, United States Department of Commerce aeronautical inspector, and E. P. Lott, vice president of the National Air Transport division.

CRASHES IN WOODS

The scene of the crash was a wooded patch on the farm of James Smiley in the Indiana sand dune region, within a few feet of a gravel road. The explosion brought scores of nearby residents to their doors and many of them saw the blazing plane hurtle earthward with its human cargo.

Miss Esther Stroup, a teacher living at the Smiley farm, said the blast was followed by a flash in the sky. With others she ran across fields to the side of the burning wreckage where they stood powerless to help.

Broker to Fly to Body Of Fiancee Killed in Crash

RENO, Nev., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Theodore Baldwin, wealthy former Boston stock market operator, now of Reno, said today he and Miss Dorothy M. Dwyer, who was killed in an airplane crash near Chesterton, Ind., were to have been married here this afternoon.

Miss Dwyer's home, he said, was in Arlington, Mass.

A brother of the girl, Charles Dwyer, was killed about four months ago in an automobile crash in Boston, Baldwin said.

Baldwin came to Reno three months ago and, becoming interested in mining, remained after his divorce to make this his home. He was prostrated by the death of Miss Dwyer.

Baldwin plans to leave by airplane today to claim his fiancee's body and take it to Arlington.

KELLY LINKED IN WINKLER MURDER

Machine Gun Bandit Betrayed by 'Gus,' Police Say

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—While the body of the slain gangster, Gus Winkler, was being prepared for an ornate funeral, a revival of the burial splendor gangland has not known for three years, police went further into underworld secrets today in an effort to learn the full truth of why he was slain.

One man, David (Benny) Goldblatt, reputed Winkler bodyguard, had been arrested, but yielded little information to the investigators. He admitted, Deputy Chief of Detectives William Blaul said, that he and Winkler had peddled alcohol together, but denied knowledge of the circumstances leading up to Winkler's death.

Federal authorities, in the midst of an investigation of the $250,000 Loop mail robbery last December, clung to the theory that Winkler's execution was ordered to prevent him from "talking" about that case.

KELLY BETRAYAL!

Other authorities said they believed death came because Winkler betrayed George (Machine Gun) Kelly, who was arrested recently in Memphis after a long search and spirited to Oklahoma City to face a kidnaping charge. Kelly himself, while saying he knew Winkler, denied Winkler had any part in the capture.

Blaul said police also were attempting to link the gangland assassination with the attempted shooting almost a year ago of Frank Nitti, business manager and reputed "enforcer" of the old Capone syndicate.

WIDOW GRIEF-STRICKEN

Police were questioning Goldblatt in an effort to ascertain the actual facts of Winkler's death. The bodyguard said Winkler had phoned him Monday morning, several hours before the slaying, asking to borrow his automobile. It was in this car Winkler drove to the beer distributing depot in front of which he was killed.

Winkler's widow, grief stricken, ordered an expensive funeral for her husband. The body will lie in state tomorrow, after which the casket will be taken to St. Louis, Gus' home, for burial.

WITNESSES AID SQUIRE IN TRIAL

Witnesses for the defense in the trial of Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, in Criminal Court, on charges of fraudulently collecting from Allegheny County $4,708 for fictitious cases, told stories today said to conflict with those they told detectives before the trial.

In five cases where detectives reported the defendants named in Westwood's alleged fictitious cases said they had never been arrested, they came to court today and testified that they were arrested by Westwood and discharged as indicated on his records.

Robert Shreffler, of the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, testified that in three of these cases—involving auto accidents—the license number of the cars as given in Westwood's report to the county were issued to other automobile owners.

On trial with Westwood are two constables, William Meissner, charged with collecting $5,261, and Tim Drexler, charged with getting $699.

LOUISE BROOKS WEDS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Louise Brooks, the film actress, yesterday became Mrs. Deering Davis, wife of a member of a socially prominent Chicago family.

A quiet ceremony, read by Judge Francis Wilson, was witnessed only by Davis' brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III.

Dr. Davis said the couple would probably go to Tucson, Ariz., within a few days, where they expected to live "on a ranch."

In obtaining a license, Davis give his age as 36; his bride, 26. Mrs. Davis formerly was the wife of Eddie Sutherland, film director. Davis, the son of the late Dr. Nathan S. Davis, founder of the Chicago Medical Society, was divorced several years ago from his first wife, the former Peggy McNeal, of Philadelphia.

LINDY AIRWAY PLAN SCANNED

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Sir Samuel Instone, director of the Imperial Airways, announced today that Imperial Airways is actively investigating a projected trans-Atlantic airmail route connecting with the airmail systems of North America.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, surveying a projected trans-Atlantic commercial air route, went to England two weeks ago, after flying the North Atlantic in easy stages with Mrs. Lindbergh.

Although actual details of his visit in London have not been made public, it was reported he engaged in a series of conferences with British flying experts, presumably regarding the establishment of trans-Atlantic airlines.

ASTOR ACCEPTS M'KEE POST

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The wide open split in Tammany ranks resulting from Joseph V. McKee's entrance into the contest for Mayor threatened today to unseat John H. McCooley, for 22 years Brooklyn Democratic leader, and to tear his organization away from Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate.

Meanwhile, Vincent Astor, close friend of President Roosevelt, accepted appointment as chairman of the executive committee of McKee's recovery party.

A dozen Brooklyn district leaders in conference with McCooey spoke out against O'Brien and told the Brooklyn chieftain they were ready to switch to McKee.

Despite McCooey's insistence that his organization would hold together and support O'Brien, he nevertheless called a committee meeting for next Monday when a showdown is expected. McKee managers asserted 19 of McCooey's 24 district leaders were ready to desert.

Continued heavy enrollment of voters marked the second day of registration week, the two-day total reaching 647,617, an increase of 75,047 over last year.

Duped in Kidnaping By Kelly, Wife Says

Pleaded for Release Of Urschel, Jury Told at Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Flashing a frequent smile, Kathryn Kelly, 30-year-old wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, testified today in the couple's trial for the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping conspiracy that she was the unwilling dupe of her gangster husband.

Dressed in fashionable black, she told the jury:

"He threatened me—told me to go back home—that it was none of my business."

She claimed she "pleaded" with Mr. Kelly to release that man" while Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, was held captive on the Paradise (Tex.) farm of her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, last July.

She knew nothing, she said, of the kidnaping until it was over and her husband awakened her with a flashlight at the farm of her grandmother, Mrs. T. M. Coleman, near Stratford, Okla., to tell her:

"We've got a kidnaped man outside."

TELLS OF THREAT

Mrs. Kelly continued:

"I told my grandmother. She said if they didn't leave she would scream. They left a few moments later."

"Did you see the kidnaped man?

"Oh, no sir. Mother looked very worried and so did my stepfather, Mr. Shannon. There was another man there, Mr. Bailey. I knew him as Mr. Brennan."

(The R. G. Shannons and Harvey Bailey, prison-breaker, are under life sentence for the kidnaping.)

"Mother was almost crying and told me about what had been happening. I talked to my stepefather and he told me the same thing. I told them I'd stay and find out what was going on.

"Well, at dark, I went over to Armon Shannon's place and then I found out.

"I talked to Mr. Kelly there by the house. He said they had a kidnaped man there.

"I begged him to please release him. I said he would get my folks in trouble.

"He said for me to go back to the house, that it was none of my business. He threatened me."

SEES '$100 GRAND'

They went to Minneapolis, Cleveland, O., Chicago and Des Moines, she related.

"George bought a coupe in Chicago. Then we went back to Texas to my Uncle Cass Coleman's farm."

"Did you see any money?"

"No. I did see some in Minneapolis, though. I had been out shopping. When I came in George had a lot of money out on the bed. He asked me if I'd ever seen $100,000 before. I don't know what money it was."

"Did you see George and your Uncle Cass bury the money at the farm?" (Federal agents found $73,250 buried there.)

"They were gone a long time but I don't know where they went."

Mrs. Kelly denied that she wrote a letter from Chicago threatening Urschel's life.

6 MAIL POUCHES BANDIT LOOT

EFFINGHAM, Ill., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A check by postal inspectors today revealed six pouches of mail were taken from the Union Depot here last night by three men who forced a baggageman to lie on the floor as they selected their loot.

The inspectors refused to say where the sacks were destined or where they were placed on a Pennsylvania train in the East. They were unloaded here with about 20 others for transfer to another train. First reports said only two sacks were taken.

Students End Walkout In Fight for Rides

The two-day walkout of Glenshaw students at Shaler Township Junior and Senior High School was over, temporarily at least, with the return of the students to school today.

The students, 40 or more, remained away Monday and yesterday in protest of a ruling compelling them to walk from their homes in Glenshaw to the school on the Mt. Royal boulevard—a distance of approximately 1.2 miles.

A temporary agreement pending a survey of the distance and the issuing of new transportation passes was made at an open meeting of parents and School Board officials last night. Dr. C. E. Dickey, Allegheny County school superintendent, attended the meeting.

Supt. R. C. Rogers, of the Shaler Township School, said:

"There seems to be a misunderstanding. The whole thing is not worthy of being called a school strike.

"Really not more than eight or ten of the group stayed away. We are holding up some transportation passes for investigation and a survey of the actual distance will be made this week. After that, I think everything will be very satisfactory. The School Board has been very liberal in providing transportation."

Leaders of the Glenshaw students, however, declared the entire group remained away in protest of the ruling which requires all students living less than a mile and a half from the school to furnish their own transportation. They added that unless transportation was provided them the first of next week they would again go on strike.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE TROOPERS IN ANOTHER GAS ATTACK ON WEIRTON'S STEEL STRIKE PICKETS....A STREET SCENE AS THE WORKERS LEFT THE MILLS

DAVIS SILENT, TRIAL NEAR END

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The trial of United States Senator James J. Davis on federal lottery charges neared its end today.

Davis, who did not take the stand, rested his defense shortly after the opening of court, and the government quickly disposed of rebuttal with testimony from a government accountant who said that Davis profited to the extent of $352,271 from an organization contract with the Loyal Order of Moose over a period of 10½ years, 1922 to July 31, 1932.

On trial with Davis is Theodore G. Miller, head of Moose propagation. Both are charged with sending lottery tickets across state lines in 1931 in connection with a Moose fund-raising enterprise known as the "Mooseheart charity ball."

After a conference at the bench the court decided to limit summations to six hours, two for Miller, two for Davis and two for the prosecution.

George Mintzer, attorney for Miller, reminded the jury that the defendants are not charged with the operation of a lottery. He said:

"It is common knowledge that various governments operate lotteries."

Chief Prosecutor Louis Mead Treadwell objected, accusing Mintzer of going outside the record. The court allowed Mintzer to continue and then he asked:

"Who drew out the tickets for this thing?"

He answered himself:

"It was Rodney H. Brandon, supreme dictator of Moose, welfare commissioner of Illinois, a member of the Illinois Governor's cabinet."

He reminded the jury that the United States government selected soldiers "by lot or chance," and went on to minimize the stigma attached to the word "lottery."

The attorney pointed out that not one of the witnesses who gave evidence of the actual shipment of tickets mentioned Miller or knew Miller. He said:

"I am sure that you are not going to send Miller to jail. I am sure you are not going to put a chain of criminality around his neck for life."

With that, he closed.

DISMISS JUROR IN FORD SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A juror in the trial of suits involving Henry Ford, the old Lincoln Motor Car Company and the Sweeten Automobile Company, a Philadelphia concern, was dismissed today and the trial resumed with 11 jurors by agreement of counsel.

Opening court today, Judge Harry S. McDevitt announced:

"One of the jurors was heard to express an opinion yesterday indicating he has reached a conclusion, although the case is hardly half finished. The court is not laboring under any misapprehension that any attempt was made to influence the juror. It was purely a voluntary statement on the juror's part."

Then, with the agreement on both sides the court dismissed Meredith Jack from further service. Jack disclaimed any intention of committing a breach of duty.

Ford sued to recover $6,800 from the Sweeten company on promissory notes, and the Sweeten company in a counter action asked $168,000 from Ford on a claim that it suffered losses as distributors through Ford taking over the Lincoln company.

10,000,000 Called, 75 Khaki Shirts Answer

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The threatened "march of 10,000,000 members of the Khaki Shirts of America on Washington was delayed unexpectedly today when 75 plumed recruits turned up at the starting place to answer to general mobilization order No. 32 from Capt. Art J. Smith, head of the organization.

Smith, whose organization has been branded a "shirt selling racket" by Secret Service agents, had planned to march his men to Washington today to proclaim President Roosevelt "dictator" and place his shock troops at the disposal of the Chief Executive.

He announced the march would begin as soon as a more impressive showing was on the scene and a score of generals, sergeants and lieutenants was dispatched to round up the troops.

SEES ROUTINE CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said after a conference with President Roosevelt today that the coming session of Congress probably could be terminated by early spring and that he expected little general legislation beyond the routine appropriation bills.

The Arkansas Senator predicted there would be liquor legislation and probably a banking measure to be enacted, but would not go into details.

He said the emergency measures enacted at the last session were making "reasonably satisfactory progress" and that his information was that approximately one-third of those unemployed at that time had been given work.

M'CLURE LINKED IN LIQUOR RING

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Jacob Bruner, a Chester saloonkeeper, testified in the prohibition conspiracy case today that State Senator John J. McClure told him to reopen his raided place and advised him he would be put on a protection free list for three months.

McClure and 77 other persons in Delaware County are on trial in Federal Court charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. Twelve have pleaded guilty. McClure is charged with being a leader in an alleged ring that "protected" liquor law violators.

Bruner testified McClure told him he would have the free protection in order to make up a fine of $250 imposed in 1926. The witness said that at the end of three months a man named Andy Frank told him that the protection money would have to be paid as before, and he resumed contributing $20 a week.

BANKER SABIN DIES IN N. Y.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Charles H. Sabin, 65, chairman of the board of directors of the Guaranty Trust Company, died shortly before midnight at his home here after an illness of about a year.

Mrs. Sabin, who is nationally known for her work in the cause of repeal as chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, was unable to reach her husband's bedside before he died.

For many years Sabin's pronouncements on international affairs have been viewed with respect in financial circles.

During and after the World War he was in close touch with foreign problems, activities that obtained for him decorations from European countries.

Among the directorates to which he belonged were those of the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, International Mercantile Marine Company, the Mackay companies, Montana Power Company, Owens-Illinois Glass Company, Postal Telegraph and Cable Corporation, Shell Union Oil Corporation, United States Rubber Company and Vanadium Corporation of America.

RETIRED P. S. C. MEMBER DIES

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Illness which forced his retirement from the Public Service Commission, helping Gov. Pinchot gain control of that body, has proved fatal to Emerson L. Collins.

He died last night at his home, at the age of 73, after being ill for three years.

Before his appointment to the commission by Gov. Fisher, in 1927, Collins was a member of the State Legislature and a Deputy Attorney General. He served eight years in the latter post.

Two years after his health prevented him from activity in the Public Service Commission he resigned at the request of Pinchot.

Booing echoed outside the hall where McDermot started to speak and the crowd attempted to break through a police cordon. As the speakers left, the crowd followed and again rushed McDermot and his cohorts. Again the police drove them back.

Roosevelt's Panama Parley Progresses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt reported progress today in his conferences with President Harmodio Arias, of Panama, who came to Washington on several mutual problems of the nations.

At his press conference, which President Arias attended, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his view that personal negotiation between government heads was most practical. He informed the Panama executive that he hopes to visit Panama whenever the opportunity presents itself.

PRICE CLAUSE IN CODE SPLITS FOOD TRADE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Opposition to minimum wholesale and retail markup provisions in the master food code broke out last night from within the grocery and food distributing industry in hearings before the Farm Adjustment Administration.

Soon after proponents had described these provisions as the solution of the price-cutting problem, opponents denounced the markups as "unenforcable, wasteful and uneconomic."

Former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, who said he represented "from 2,000 to 3,000 independent retailers," asserted that the code would "be unnecessary interference with liberty."

ATTACKS CLAUSE

Q. Forrest Walker, economist for R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., New York department store, attacked the provisions which would require wholesalers to sell for not less than delivered cost of products plus 2½ per cent, and retailers delivered cost plus 7½ per cent.

Walker said that with more than 300,000 retail stores in the country selling approximately 1,000 items each and with prices for many of them varying from day to day, the code would be unenforcable. He said the provisions amounted to price-fixing and would mark the "death knell of the competitive system."

George Schultz, St. Louis food trade publications editor, advocated a minimum mark-up of 10 per cent over delivered costs of staples for retailers and markups on other products sold by retailers based on average overhead costs involved in their retail distribution.

BACKS VIEW

He said the markup of 7½ per cent for retailers proposed in the code would be insufficient for the average independent retail grocer and that "it would tend to give the chain store systems further advantages over those they already have."

C. Y. Early, president of the Texas Wholesale Grocers' Association, also urged that the minimum retail markup be 10 per cent and urged that the proposed minimum markup for wholesalers be increased from 2½ per cent to 3½ per cent.

F. H. Massmann, Chicago, representing a group of chain stores, expressed belief that adoption of the code would not have the effect of reducing profits of either chains or independent stores, but that it would definitely curb price cutting practices. He said that chain stores generally would "welcome" the code.

Proposals of manufacturers of about 75 per cent of the products in food distribution that they be exempted from provisions of the code were criticized for A. J. Falk, San Francisco wholesaler, who said that if the manufacturing groups were excluded the code would "not be worth while."

NRA VIOLATION BARED HERE

Hearings on alleged violations of the NRA by the Chamber of Commerce compliance board committee, disclosed that many grocery stores and retail meat markets had been working employes 16 hours on Saturdays through a misunderstanding of the code.

Employes of such stores may be worked only 10 hours on Saturdays or before holidays, Frank C. Harper, executive secretary of the board explained. The 16-hour day is a violation of the code he asserted. Stores operated by husband and wife do not come under these provisions, as they are rated as joint owners. Their children, however, may not work more than 10 hours Saturdays. All stores complained against were given a reasonable time to comply with regulations.

JOHNSON FACES 'HOT PROBLEM'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The NRA is having considerable trouble determining what sort of action to take in several important code problems, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson declared today.

He said that the question of minority worker group rights under the Recovery Act was causing considerable difficulty adding:

"That's a hot problem. Of course it all comes right down to the question of the closed shop, and under the Recovery Act all workers are guaranteed the right to designate representatives of their own choosing for collective bargaining purposes. The act itself places special emphasis on this right."

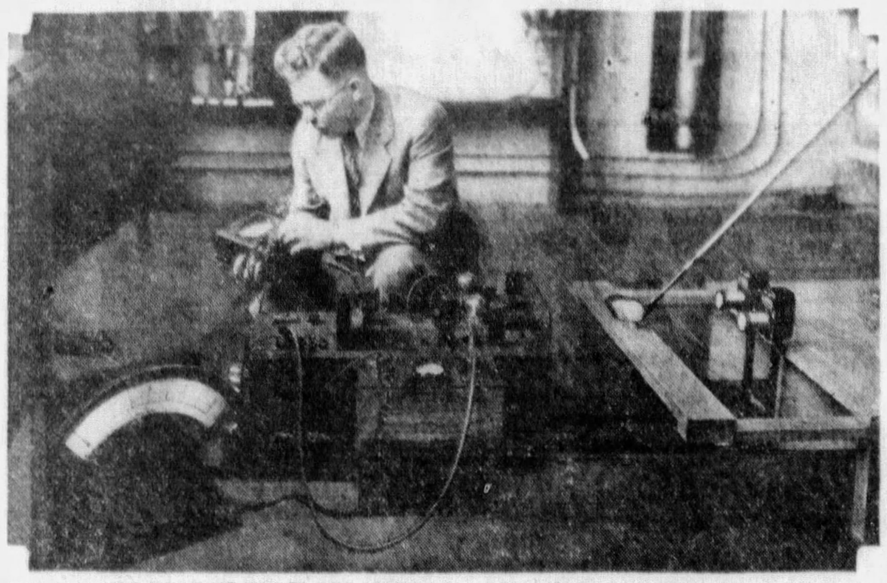
He Knows How Fast a Golf Club Goes!



THE MACHINE THAT MEASURES THE SPEED OF A GOLF CLUB: A CHAMPION'S 135 M. P. H.

CLUBS TRAVEL AT HIGH GAIT

When a golfer heaves a mighty downswing to drive a ball, everyone knows the club is traveling fast, but few would surmise the average player will have 70 to 125 miles an hour on the clubhead.

An exhibit in an exposition at the national convention of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers next week will be a machine that measures the speed of a golf club. The convention and exposition open Tuesday at the Hotel William Penn.

Such a golfer as Jim Reynolds, former national driving champion, attained a speed of 135.8 miles an hour in a test. The apparatus was devised by H. W. Lord, an engineer, of Schenectady, N. Y.

The device includes two photo-electric tubes and light sources, arranged six inches apart with the beams of light running at right angles to the path of the club and the line of flight.

The ball is teed so the club is swung from a platform, cuts the first beam of light before it strikes the ball and intercepts the second beam almost immediately after the impact.

Both photo tubes operate two thyraton tubes, the first of which causes a condenser to be charging and the second one stops it. The resulting voltage charge across the condenser is measured by a meter which is calibrated in terms of miles.

Bunny Population Hops Rapidly in Mine 'Patch'

The fastest growing community in Allegheny County is at the "patch" at Mine No. 2, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, members of the Castle Shannon Board of Health believe.

The board reported to Council last night that the population of rabbits owned by residents of the patch increased from 15 to 100 in several weeks without immigration.

Council did not state what they intended to do about it.

1ST BLUE EAGLE WITHDRAWN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—NRA's grip on the nation was at a new test today in the first case of an employer deprived of his Blue Eagle.

Theodore G. Rahutis, Gary (Ind.) restaurant proprietor, was under orders from Hugh S. Johnson to cease displaying and surrender his NRA insignia. Johnson's command left to the public the final decision on how much the Blue Eagle means to a store window and business house.

Johnson telegraphed Rahutis that the Gary Compliance Board had reported he was violating the minimum wage and maximum working hour provisions of President Roosevelt's re-employment agreement. He added:

"Even if it is not true, your refusal to come forward with some explanation when respectfully asked to do so by your local board indicates that you are not willing to co-operate with the President in his recovery program.

"You will refrain from using the Blue Eagle in advertising or otherwise.'"

BUY NOW GAINS SPUR NEW AD CAMPAIGNS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Rapidly mounting sales, reported from every section of the nation, disclosed the widespread response being given to the "Buy Now" campaign.

As letters poured in upon Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, testifying to the results of the campaign, a determination on the part of industry to capitalize on this upward swing by newspaper and magazine advertising was evidenced.

One letter, showing the influence of the "Buy Now" campaign as originated by the Hearst newspapers, said:

"Our sales, up to the first of October, are almost 25 per cent above last year's."

A large manufacturer of plumbing fixtures wrote:

"We agree with statements contained in your letter, that the public is beginning to shop again and that American industry must help the public find the goods it needs. We have always been newspaper and magazine advertisers even through the depression."

A 60 per cent increase in its advertising appropriation is being put into effect by one of the nation's largest flour milling companies and another shift of men has been added to its mills.

"Very evident" improvement in the employment situation along his lines was reported by the president of an important western railroad.

A leading manufacturer of shatterproof glass stated that during the depression research work resulted in important improvements and added:

"We are now employing intensified advertising and sales effort to promote the increased use of these products."

A prominent trade magazine's editor wrote:

"Every publisher will applaud the efforts to stimulate business through aggressive, intelligent advertising designed to induce Americans not to be afraid to buy those commodities and services which they need and can afford."

Physician's Widow Accused of Arson

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Police accuse Mrs. Pearl W. Schmidt of setting fire to her small home near Mt. Pleasant in an attempt to defraud an insurance company.

Mrs. Schmidt, widow of Dr. Fred J. Schmidt, Donora physician, was arrested yesterday. She is quoted by police as saying she fired the house to keep her father "from going to the county home."

Soldier, Girl Held In Private's Slaying

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A pretty 21-year-old girl, Jerry Krieger, and Jeffries Morris, 24, a private from March Field, Army Air Post, Riverside, were held in the county jail today for questioning in connection with the supposed "torch murder" of Pvt. William E. Jenkins, whose charred body was found recently on the Barstow-Kramer road.

SENATE PROBES PITTSBURGH EXCHANGE

difficulties just about that time. They were in the hands of federal receivers, but they still had the option on Rio de Janeiro loans.

"Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, a member of your committee, was our counsel. With his collaboration, we took up the matter of the option with the Federal Court."

"Do you mean Senator McAdoo rendered services in person or that his law firm acted?"

Hayward said:

"He personally rendered the services. He worked on it personally until it was cleared up. He advised us throughout."

DEFENDS LOAN

Hayward said Dillon-Read finally paid $125,000 to the receivers for the option. Then they negotiated the $12,000,000 loan.

"What are those bonds bringing on the market now?"

Hayward replied:

"Sixteen dollars. They failed to make interest payments in 1931. They are in default now."

Hayward fended the loan. He said the issue was guaranteed by land in Rio de Janeiro.

The loan, he explained, was used to sluice into the bay a mountain located in the heart of the city. Removal of the mountain, he added, not only sharply increased the value of the recovered land, but the dirt was piled into the bay behind a seawall to create an attractive new area. He said Dillon-Read were given a contract for a share in the proceeds of the sale of the recovered land.

Hayward said:

"We have the best security. Only an earthquake can destroy it."

GENERAL STRIKE CALLED IN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The National Labor Confederation of Cuba has called a general strike to protest "the government's repression and nonrecognition of confederation" for an indefinite date.

This threat, developing today, added another obstacle to the task of President Ramon Grau San Martin, whose resignation various factions are demanding.

The confederation said its protest against the government also was directed against "the closing of labor centers, the destruction of documents and furniture, and the arrest of workers."

Definite assurance that students will "lay down their arms and pick up their books" was given today by Ruben de Leon, leader of Cuba's militant student directory.

Thus it appeared the armed youths were giving ground in their oft-stated determination to have a hand in the government of the strife-torn island.

PARKS WILL BE JOBLESS HAVEN

About 1,000 unemployed and transient men will be cared for in the county parks as part of the federal government's relief program.

J. Rogers Flannery, chairman of a special committee of the Allegheny County Relief Committee, won the consent of the County Commissioners yesterday, for use of the park buildings to shelter the men. He said:

"Allegheny County has an ideal setup. The men will work in the parks doing various jobs and helping to beautify them. Their food will be paid for by the state."

The men at South Park will be sheltered in the fair ground buildings.

Commissioners Vote To Erase Own Names

KAMONS JURY FACES FIX QUIZ

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Criminal Court Judge Samuel H. Silbert announced an investigation would be made into reports of attempted "jury fixing" in the recent trial of Louis J. Kamons, Pittsburgh arsonist, charged as a conspirator in Ellington apartments fire which took 12 lives last summer.

The Kamons case was declared a mistrial and the jury dismissed last week when a juror told the court he had talked with one of the co-defendants.

Judge Silbert said he was going to question the juror and that if he found the report true, "somebody is going to jail."

FLAMES SWEEP WARREN PLANT

International News Service.

WARREN, Pa., Oct. 11.—Fire, which raged for four hours before being brought under control, today destroyed the New Process Company plant here, causing damage estimated at $500,000 and throwing several hundred employes out of work.

Firemen from Warren and Jamestown, N. Y., battled the flames, but were unable to save any of the concern's buildings in the path of the blaze. The plant covers almost a full block.

The fire was discovered by Night Watchman John Driscoll in the basement of the main building shortly before daybreak this morning. Driscoll said he believed the fire started near a furnace.

Old City Hall Will Be Just Another Building

The names of County Commissioners Charles C. McGovern, C. M. Barr and William D. Mansfield are to be removed from the two stone tablets in front of Old City Hall, now the Welfare Building.

The three Commissioners agreed yesterday to have their names "erased" from the Smithfield street entrance. During the Commissioners' meeting, McGovern spoke up:

"I was looking around Old City Hall the other night. The old building looks better now than it ever did."

Barr put in:

"Did you happen to see your name out in front?"

Mansfield interposed:

"Our names never should have been there."

The two plaques that cost the taxpayers $290 in July looked doomed for a second when Barr suggested they be removed. McGovern interposed:

"Oh, we'd better leave the name of the county on the building. Somebody might move in on us."

So the two plaques will shortly read:

OLD CITY HALL
Erected by the City of Pittsburgh
1872
Acquired by the County of Allegheny
1913

County seals are to replace the Commissioners' names.

COUNTY TO MOVE HANGARS

The county will seek bids on transfer of two hangars, 70 by 120 feet, from Rodgers Field to the County Airport. The County Commissioners yesterday authorized the bidding.

Engineers estimated the cost of moving and new cement flooring at $15,000. Commissioner Charles C. McGovern commented:

"We shouldn't have to spend a cent for this, but it seems the only way to get people off county property is to buy them off."

The United States Army will use the County Airport when the buildings are moved. Rodgers Field is to be an emergency landing field.

STATE SECURITY MEN ACCUSED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Two members of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission are accused by Charles E. Asnis, dismissed member of the commission, of improper action in approving securities for sale.

Appearing before State Senator Max Aron, acting as chairman of a joint legislative committee investigating the commission's actions, Asnis charged James Magee, of Pittsburgh, another member of the commission, with responsibility for revocation of orders halting the sale of certain securities.

He named W. Searight Stuart, a second member, as having been involved with Magee in approving securities of the Carlisle Tire and Rubber Company.

MARTIN HELPS FOES, SAYS LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 11.—David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman of Allegheny County, ridiculed recent statements of Republican State Chairman Edward Martin at the opening last night of the Washington County Democratic campaign for the general election.

Lawrence referred to Martin's warning that Republicans must exert themselves this fall as a prelude to the state fight next year and contrasted it with statements of Republicans during the primary that state and national issues should have no part in the campaign. Lawrence said:

"We of the Democratic faith have been placed under an everlasting debt of gratitude to Gen. Martin for, either consciously or unconsciously, coming to our assistance in endeavoring to make plain to the people of Pennsylvania the importance of the approaching election in its bearing on the statewide elections next year."

Lawrence said Martin by his warning had established as an issue the "unspeakable record" made by the Republican party under the leadership of "Mellon, Grundy, Coyne, McClure and Vare," as well as the record of the Public Service Commission under its old control. He also said favors from the House of Morgan to Republican judges of the appellate courts had also become an issue.

Though the Republican-led Legislature defeated social legislation, President Roosevelt freed child labor and established minimum wages and reasonable hours, Lawrence said, declaring this is now an issue through the admission of Gen. Martin.

PILGRIMS HAIL POPE ON VISIT

International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 11.—Pope Pius today made his fourth Holy Year basilica visit, motoring to the Santa Maria Maggiore Basilica.

Arriving at the sacristy, the Pontiff robed in a special room and then genuflected before the Blessed Sacrament at an altar separated from the rest of the basilica by a partition. Carried in the gestatorial chair, he reentered the basilica by the central door in a solemn procession. Thousands of pilgrims were among the cheering congregation.

The Pope was enthroned near the high altar while mass was sung.

GERMAN ARMS DEMANDS REFUSED

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—Germany's demand for arms forbidden her under the Versailles Treaty was emphatically rejected this afternoon by representatives of the United States, Great Britain and France.

At the end of a three-hour conference, participated in by Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large; Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, Foreign Minister of France, it was announced on behalf of these powers that they had agreed upon one fixed principle to be followed at the Geneva Disarmament Conference—that no nation should increase its armaments.

This decision deals a death blow to Germany's demand for "samples" of arms possessed by the other powers—tanks, artillery, military aircraft, etc.

But, it was carefully explained, it does not deny the right of Germany eventually to possess the same arms as other European powers after an agreement has been reached for reformation of land armies on the basis of short-term conscriptive service.

Nazis Fail to Get List of Pacifists

International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference, has spiked Nazi attempts to obtain the names and addresses of hundreds of thousands of German pacifists, International News Service learned today.

The pacifists two years ago signed and sent petitions to the Disarmament Conference in a concerted attempt to prove that Germany wished world-wide peace.

Eight Nazi youths forming the bodyguard of Minister of Propaganda Dr. Joseph Goebbels while he was in Geneva made plans to obtain the names, and upon their return to Berlin made a formal demand to Henderson on behalf of the Nazi party that he send them the petitions.

Henderson ignored the demand, thus preventing any possible Nazi action against the pacifist German citizens who signed the petitions.

ROUT PRISONER IN NAZI TRIAL

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Hot-tempered Georgi Dimitroff was ejected from the court after another skirmish today with the Supreme Court judges conducting the trial in which the Bulgarian refugee and four others are charged with setting fire to the Reichstag building.

Presiding Judge Wilhelm Buenger had just finished announcing the day's program when Dimitroff rose and said:

"Your honor, may I put a question?"

"But I am not only a defendant; I am also my own counsel, and I have a right to put a question!"

Flushed with anger, Buenger hurriedly got up and, with the entire court, left the hall to talk over what to do about it. Returning to the bench, they announced that Dimitroff would be excluded until further notice. In the middle of a defiant protest, he was led out by two burly policemen.

LEAGUE JEWISH STAND BALKED

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Germany won a victory on the Jewish question today in forcing the League of Nations Assembly to reject a clause in a resolution German delegates felt was aimed directly at their government's treatment of Jews.

As presented, the measure expressed the hope that all countries, regardless of whether they signed treaties relating to minority groups, should extend treaty benefits to their minorities.

Minorities were defined as including all racial, linguistic and religious classes without exception.

When President te Water put the resolution, previously adopted by the League political commission, to a vote, the German delegate, Friederich von Kellar, joined in approving the first section, but his objection to the later part caused its rejection.

Belgium to Fortify German Frontier

BRUSSELS, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—A project to construct a chain of fortifications along the German frontier similar to the ring of steel France has thrown up along the Rhine was unanimously approved by the Belgian cabinet today.

With King Albert presiding, the cabinet sanctioned the government's plan to ask the Chamber of Deputies to vote 700,000,000 Belgian francs ($29,400,000) to finance the construction.

Vienna Workmen, Police in Clash

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—Quiet was restored in this district today following a sharp clash between police and workmen believed to have been rioting against the government. Several persons were hurt.

The skirmishes followed action of Chancellor Dollfuss in declaring war against the Socialist Party in Austria by calling out special police who made 30 arrests.

Hitler Writes He Must Strike at Greatest Foe

Nazi Leader's Book Published In English

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Concentrated German force as a panacea for post-war Europe's ills is offered by Adolph Hitler in the abridged English version of his book "Mein Kampf," published today.

He says:

"If the German nation is to stop the rot which threatens Europe, it must not fall into the errors of the pre-war period and make enemies of God and the world, but it must ascertain who its most dangerous opponents are so as to strike at them with all its concentrated force."

The book is titled "My Battle" and is labelled an "autobiography," but tells so little of the author's own life that the publishers include a summary of the highlights of his career.

The foreword explains that it is "offered to American readers somewhat abridged to omit matter not of general international interest, but including, it is believed, all of the sentiments and ideals of government expressed by the author in the final, complete German edition."

Breathing throughout the spirit of German nationalism which Hitler always has emphasized, the late chapters of the volume explain that his government has no desire to see Germany's pre-war colonies restored. Such a course, it is indicated, would react upon the purity of the race.

But on the thesis that "nothing but sufficient space on the earth ensures freedom of existence to a nation," he says that Germany must look to new lands in Europe, and he adds:

"When we talk of new lands in Europe we are bound to think first of Russia and her border states."

He sees the Soviet Union as bound to collapse because "The Jew has taken the place of the German element" which he credits with having created the pre-war Russian state.

The frontiers of 1914 mean little to Hitler's foreign policy. "They were no protection in the past, nor would they mean strength in the future," he says. Boundaries, are, in fact, "made and altered by human agency alone" and "the strength of the conqueror constitutes the right to possess."

U. S. OPENS QUIZ IN ATTACKS BY NAZIS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull today ordered a detailed check-up by American diplomatic representatives in Germany on the status of those prosecutions of Nazi storm troopers that were promised by the German government for participation in attacks on American citizens.

The State Department's investigation is expected to form the basis of future American policy toward Germany in connection with the many reports of violence against United States nationals in Germany.

The inquiry was ordered following receipt of an official report on an alleged attack upon Roland Velz, a native-born American, at Dusseldorf, in which the department was advised a police lieutenant to whom the victim appealed refuse to take action, saying the assault must have been his own fault.

Secretary Hull, when asked whether the department may publicly announce that it can no longer guarantee the protection of American citizens in Germany, said it is first necessary to gather definite information on just what is being done by German authorities.

'SILVER SHIRTS' FORM IN U. S.

German - Americans Organize Militant Group

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—A new and militant organization called "The Silver Shirts of America" is mobilizing.

They will wear silver shirts with a large letter "L" in red on the left breast and blue corduroy breeches. The "L" stands for "Liberation, Loyalty, Love."

It is not a pro-Hitler organization, according to Maj. Luther I. Powell, chief of staff and second in command in the United States, who is in charge of the new headquarters in Oklahoma City. He said, however, that the German-Americans in this country "form the backbone of the organization."

Powell, interviewed by International News Service today, said that about 28 per cent of the membership of the "Silver Shirts" are women. He added:

"If there is a Nazi movement in the United States, we have no connection with it."

He declared the main purpose of the organization is:

"To fight Communism in the United States through organized forces whose lodges and posts are in every state in the Union."

Powell said the "Silver Shirts" welcome and invite investigation, when he was informed that Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the Committee on Immigration of the United States House of Representatives, announced he would start an inquiry of pro-Nazi propaganda in the country.

Powell said he, as chief of staff, was "second in command in the United States."

Plans are being mapped out for a great swarming of "Silver Shirts" within the next 30 days. Headquarters for 500 men are being secured in Oklahoma City and will be opened in a day or two. There will be a crack Silver Shirt ranger cavalry, which is to serve as the chief's bodyguard.

Asked if the "Silver Shirts" is a secret organization, Powell said:

"About as secret as a Masonic body."

"Can a Jew belong to the Silver Shirts?"

"We have no Jews."

"How about Catholics?"

"We do not bar them. Catholics are Christians."

No Negroes are members, Powell said. Lodges of Indians are being formed.

Powell said the Silver Shirts organization has been "under cover" for the last three years. The reason for this was, he explained, that they were gathering "international information on economic conditions world-wide."

He wouldn't say how many members the "Silver Shirts" have. The heaviest membership, he said, is in California, with Pennsylvania second.

HIGH-PAID RUM CONTROL UNITS PROPOSED

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The "Rockefeller Plan" for liquor control, the outgrowth of a study made by Raymond B. Fosdick, lawyer, and Albert L. Scott, engineer, under the sponsorship of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., contemplates "alcohol control authorities" in each state, composed of three directors appointed by the governor for nine years with salaries fixed "at a sufficient high level to insure acceptance of appointment by persons of outstanding ability."

A portion of the plan made public today deals with the functions of a state liquor monopoly system, and says:

"The state alcohol control authority should be created as a special branch of the state government. It should, however, like a public corporation, be free from the traditional department restrictions which govern purchases, appropriations, personnel and similar business matters. The nature of its work, embracing as it does both regulatory and commercial functions, makes this essential.

LIMITS GOVERNOR'S POWER

"Within the definite tasks and responsibilities established by law, the power of the authority would be plenary. Although, as a matter of form, the authority should be designated as being within the executive department of the state government, the power of the governor would extend only to appointment of its members.

"Approval of its budget should rest with the board of directors, as in a private corporation. The same principle would apply also to all matters having to do with its finance, personnel and purchases. The only exception to this principle would be the right of the state auditor or comptroller to audit the transactions of the authority on the direction of the governor."

EXAMPLES CITED

Continuing, the report points out that such a public corporation is nothing novel but on the contrary "is fast being accepted as the logical method of organizing the management of a large scale public enterprise."

The London Passenger Transport Authority, the British Broadcasting Corporation, the Port of New York Authority and the Tennessee Valley Authority are cited as examples.

After setting forth that the financing of the authority, whether by its own securities, by appropriations, or by state bonds, would have to be determined by each state according to its constitutional provision, the report states:

"At quarterly intervals, following private corporate practice, the profits should be determined and paid over to the state treasury as dividends.

OPPOSE FUND DESIGNATION

"The profits of the authority would, of course, be very large. Whenever liquor sales monopolies have been established, or suggested, the proposal has appeared to 'ear-mark' at least a portion of these profits for temperance education or other purposes.

"With this proposal we are in disagreement. Profits of the authority should go directly into the state treasury without designation for any particular purpose.

"The operating organization would conceivably have the following principal units: (1) Division of retail shops and agencies, (2) Division of permits, (3) Treasury, (4) Bureau of inspection, (5) Central purchasing bureau, (6) Bureau of personnel, (7) Bureau of records and statistics. Provision should also be made for a small legal staff, a chemist, and others.

"In outlining this organization we have intended to give only general suggestions. The authority should be free under the law to create its own organization.

"The point we wish to stress is that the authority board members should refrain from attempting the detailed management of operations, entrusting this function rather to a competent, high salaried, permanent and loyal executive, If such a managing director is chosen, the details of organization should be left to him."

Distillery Heads Face New Charge

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—After a hearing on a charge of manufacturing and possessing liquor without a state permit, officers of the Schenley distillery were charged with manufacturing liquor in excess of the amount permitted by the Pennsylvania Alcohol Board.

Grove City Bans Beer 'Ads' From School Library

GROVE CITY, Pa., Oct. 11.—Beer has been deleted from the library of the local high school.

This city boasts of the wrought aluminum containers made here. They are artistic and make exceptional receptacles in which to serve beer. When beer came back legally in the country a storm was raised about their use. Now the school board has banned from the high school library all magazines and newspapers that carry advertisements for beer. All such publications in the library have been ordered destroyed.

The Wendel August Aluminum Forge Company sped to the front with the return of legal beer. Mr. August said the mugs were for beer. His financial backer, Dr. E. J. Fithian, former Prohibition candidate for Governor and the United States Senate, said they were not for the liquor trade.

A few months after this flurry, Dr. Fithian withdrew from the company.

Then Council put a ban on beer, and now the school board makes it unanimous.

REPEAL WOMEN URGE GOOD LAW

International News Service.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 11.—Demands for an honest liquor law and predictions that Pennsylvania would vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment were made before delegates to the Pennsylvania Women's Division of the National Organization for Prohibition Reform left here today.

Approximately 100 delegates, representing 100,000 persons throughout the commonwealth, approved a resolution urging an honest law and continuing the organization until after the Legislature acts.

Distrust of Gov. Gifford Pinchot was expressed by Mrs. Joseph S. Clark, Chester Hill, regional chairman of the wet organization in Eastern Pennsylvania. She said:

"He is not to be trusted. It is obvious to every one that he has used the 'dry' cause as political ammunition. It is possible that he will try to jump on the bandwagon of repeal now that it is upon him, but the proponents of repeal must look to it that he does not block legislation."

PITTSBURGH DISCOVERS HARRIS'

Along about the spring of this year, we had a young revolution down here where Liberty crosses Oliver. We discarded outworn methods, outworn merchandise—and we dedicated ourselves to the job of "styling up," "trading up" and "building up." We haven't done badly. In fact, without being puffy about it, we can relate that the eyes of stores all over the country are on us.

"How Do They Get That Way?"

—is the question they're asking about us. "On the one hand, they're carrying much better merchandise—and on the other, they're OK'ing the credit of the newly-employed as soon as these workers get employment. How can they trust people that haven't been working for months or even years with merchandise that is hard-to-get, and, under the NRA, CAN'T be 'price-chiseled' at the source?"

Well, Folks, The Secret Is:

—a long-held belief that people are innately HONEST if you give them a chance to be, and that when they start to EARN, they'll pay for what you've given them. Not only will they pay you, but they'll be your friend for life. And under the obligation of cooperation that the NRA puts upon every business house, we feel that we OUGHT to go along with the newly-hopeful, newly rehabilitated worker as far as we possibly can. He needs clothes—we want business—so why not cut the payments according to the worker's cloth?

In September Alone We Doubled

—our business. And month after month, we're opening more new accounts than we ever dreamed of! Wouldn't that give YOU a thrill, if you were running this business? And a determination to do more and more for those whose patronage is building up this store? We think it would. At least, it's affecting us that way. We're giving these workers many, many months to repay . . . and asking just a wee, tiny sum weekly, bi-weekly or monthly. And we're charging them not one cent for this service above our regular cash prices. If YOU have friends—office people, industrial workers, professional people—who appreciate a LIVE, human, and SQUARE place to deal, together with the unusual service we can render, you'll do both of us a favor by sending them to

BAKER GREETS 'Y' BOOSTERS

Preparations for Y. M. C. A. Enrollment Week were rounded out last night with dinners, meetings and rallies at the association's branches.

Newton D. Baker, former War Secretary and now chairman of mobilization for human needs, sent a message from Cleveland, saying:

"If, in these days of depression and doubt, young men find their first contact with life disappointing and mystifying, we older men at least do them the service of assuring them, out of our longer experience, that the present crisis will pass. The association of young men through character forming contacts under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. is one of the best ways of making ready to enjoy advantages sure to come."

Seven of the 14 branches in the metropolitan organization are united in the crusade, according to Holgar J. Johnson, city chairman.

Today, Founders Day, is the birth anniversary of Sir George Williams, who formed the association in London in 1844. International radio broadcasts mark the day in 54 countries.

CROONER'S SONG HELD NO INSULT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—A jury has decided that a song crooned into the ear of Mrs. Susan Milward by Don Galvin, vaudeville performer, was not insulting and that Galvin did not intentionally rub his knee against hers, in denying $10,000 damages to Mrs. Milward.

Mrs. Milward, a member of the audience, testified the experience so unnerved her that she almost fainted and suffered shock to her health. The jury, instructed to find for her only if the song was insulting or if Galvin intentionally contacted her knee, quickly reached its verdict.

The theater in which Galvin appeared and came down into the audience to sing, was the defendant.

Finicky Village Would Ban Beer, Too

International News Service.

SCARSDALE, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The brewers' big white horses can't run over Scarsdale.

At least, there was pretty fair indication today they won't much longer, for 1,740 of this wealthy community's 4,800 registered voters have signed a petition to submit a referendum on the sale of 3.2 to the voters.

Previously: Scarsdale thought "hot dogs" too vulgar so they voted them out of its exclusive confines; newsboys made too much racket, so they voted to do without newsboys.

There is some opposition to the move to bar beer.

PARK SPORT NOW PERSONAL RISK

Winter sport enthusiasts will have to ski, coast and toboggan in the county parks at their own risk. This was decided yesterday by the county commissioners on the advice of A. M. Marion, director of parks, who said that never more than 4,000 persons participated in such sports at any one time.

He said insurance charges were particularly high considering the number taking part in the three snow sports. The insurance was dropped by the commissioners.

$500,000 BALM GRANT HINTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The all-time high in heart balm suits came to an abrupt end when Helen Vogel Stern abruptly withdrew her $4,000,000 suit against her disdainful rival, Ruth Erlanger Nathan, intimating that the affections of her husband had been restored to her.

Allison L. S. Stern, the handsome acute angle of the costly triangle, replied with lifted eyebrows, however, that he knew nothing about any report that he had made up with his wife, and courtroom report had it that the handsome young stock broker had crashed through with a half-million-dollar payment to the warring Mrs. Stern to induce her to call off her dogs.

George Whiteside, attorney for Mrs. Nathan, made it clear that his client had paid nothing, and announced that she was ready and able to prove her denials of Mrs. Stern's charges that she was a pirate on the high seas of matrimony.

BYRD FLAGSHIP STARTS VOYAGE

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship, the Jacob Ruppert, sailed out of Boston Harbor today on the first leg of her voyage to Antarctic seas.

She sailed without the "bon voyage" appearance of the admiral, who is in New York on business connected with his second Antarctic expedition. Her skipper, William Verleger, of New Canaan, Conn., walked the bridge with the harbor pilot as the lines were cast off a navy yard dock.

Admiral Byrd said last night the Bear of Oakland, his other ship, would leave Wilmington, N. C., today to join the Ruppert at Norfolk. Byrd said the Bear had been held at Wilmington because of a towing charge he considered exhorbitant. A Boston manufacturing concern, he said, had taken care of the charge.

NEVER HIT WIFE, MDIVANI SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The black eye Prince Serge Mdivania did or did not give his estranged wife, Mary McCormic, grand opera singer, who is suing him for separate maintenance, comprised the highlight of a deposition the Georgian prince filed yesterday in Superior Court.

Miss McCormic said in her complaint her husband blacked her eye. He denied he struck her, but admitted he tried to hold her when she started pitching things around in a Beverly Hills hotel room.

Concerning her charge she was locked in her home in Santa Monica by her husband and was compelled to break out and climb over a fence to escape Prince Serge's deposition said:

"I left the keys with the butler, and she said she didn't have the keys, and I told her the butler had them. Then she climbed over the fence."

Asked if he had ever struck his wife, Serge said he had not. He answered:

Two flounder draggers were seized by Coast Guards recently while heading shoreward with contraband "fished up" from the sea bottom, where wary rum runners had discarded it.

PRIZE RECIPES PROVIDE MENU VARIETY

The most acute problem for the average housewife in preparing family meals is that of providing variety for the table—to get out of the rut.

The daily publication of prize-winning recipes in the Sun-Telegraph-Prudence Penny contest is helping to solve this problem, because, where there are so many selections as indicated in this column, there is bound to be ample variety. Hundreds of housewives are clipping and saving these prize-winning recipes as they appear daily in the Sun-Telegraph.

Prudence Penny is still giving away $15 for the best recipe submitted in this contest and the selections are made by experts. There is one daily prize of $5 and 10 additional daily awards of $1 each. Housewives who have what they consider "favorite" recipes are invited to send them in to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Every recipe received will be examined by the judges.

H. L. Mencken Craves to Be Drum Major or Sump'n

By AIRCASTER

A Big Bad Woof to National Broadcasting Company for switching programs willy nilly and disappointing hundreds of thousands of listeners!

Newspapers were notified Gen. Johnson would speak on the WCAE network last night at 8:30.

Without further notification, NBC put the General on the KDKA network at 7:15 instead.

Marie Dressler, scheduled at 9:30, was switched to 10 o'clock with no explanation.

In preparation for the radio debut of Henry L. Mencken on October 18, when the famous erstwhile cynic will discuss the merits of beer, the NBC researchers happened to discover the secret passion of the iconoclast, which had remained veiled for many years.

Had the targets of his literary darts known, back in Baltimore, when Mencken was lampooning babbittry they might have pandered to this passion, mollified the fiery scribbler—and then, of course, we wouldn't be hearing of him today.

Henry's big ambition, cherished for years, but well-concealed, is to lead an orchestra.

When he bows to the radio customers next week, he'll have a baton and a 25-piece band, a keg of beer and a group of witnesses in the studio. Mencken, who for a decade has been prohibition's bitterest enemy, will then make a defense of brew as opposed to hard liquors.

Last Groundup

Eddie East and Ralph Dumke, the sisters of the skillet oracles, having discovered, too, that Mencken is an admirer of hamburgers, have proposed a theme song for the debut—"The Last Groundup."

The march of time, when it resumes via Columbia Friday, will have its voice of Gen. Johnson of the NRA, because Ted di Corsia has qualified as the ghost.

Di Corsia last year impersonated Hoover, but when he saw how the election was going, began studying other voices. He finally took up the study of Johnson's voice by visiting all the newsreels and the NRA sessions in Washington, and his studies won him the job.

Vallee on CBS

Bing Crosby has decided to come East in November.

* * *

Rudy Vallee's music will be heard from the Hollywood beginning tonight. And of all things, will broadcast via CBS.

M. B., Clairton:

The Radio Servicemen's Association meets in Utility Hall, Philadelphia Building, Pittsburgh, at 7:30 p. m., the second Tuesday of every month. Use entrance on William Penn way, just off Sixth avenue. William Irlan is secretary.

The new voice you hear on WCAE between 8 p. m. and 1 a. m. is that of Alan Trench. He came to the local waves by way of WMBO, Auburn, N. Y.; WFDF, Flint; WMBC, Detroit, and WJAY, Cleveland.

Trench has been civil engineer by profession; merchant sailor by way of adventure, and newspaperman by heck.

'Unforgivable Sin' on WFBG, WKBN

Florence Malone and Eustace Wyatt, two well-known network stars, are featured in "The Unforgiveable Sin," dramatized over Altoona and Youngstown radio stations tomorrow.

Based on a story in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "The Unforgivable Sin" is a grippingly dramatic story of an unhappy woman who gladly sacrificed her husband, her honor, her fortune, but was driven to violence when she was called old.

The drama is heard Thursday over WFBG, Altoona, at 3 p. m. and WKBN, Youngstown, O., at 8:15 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

I sympathize with Robert B. Jordan, who is complaining from Dixmont, Pa., "Why do they put on so many gilt-edge programs on the same time? Why do they play so much music in the studios when speakers are before the microphone, thus partially drowning out the talk? Why do performers and speakers turn their heads from in front of the microphone to friends in the studio, making it difficult to catch all they say?" Why? I dunno! Shall we campaign for reforms?

Mrs. Amelia Sechkey, Hazelwood, thinks up a good idea. Forty years ago outstanding students from elementary schools throughout the country were invited to send examples of their school work to Chicago to be exhibited at the World Fair. Mrs. Sechkey, then 10 years old, was selected to contribute. If you were another please send your name and address to me.

A unique incident occurred during the play of the mushball championship games in Allenport. At the end of nine innings, team B's scorekeeper had recorded an 18-17 game in favor of team A. Team A's scorer had it 17-17. Team B changed the score to 17-17. The game was called because of darkness. Then team A's scorer discovered his mistake. The score should have been 18-17. The league president ordered the game to be replayed but team A refused on the ground that it had won. Our sports writers say that it depends on the league rules, which outline the powers of the president. On the other hand, they say, if team A won, they won, and that's that.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Sewickley fashionables are going to have an indoor tennis court this winter.

For quite a few seasons the indoor court at the Pittsburgh Golf Club has been enormously popular—Sewickleyites even journeyed all the way from the valley on cold wintry days for a set with friends.

The new indoor court will be added to the exclusive Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley Heights, and it is to be finished by January or February, it's planned.

To Be Two Stories

The new court is to be two stories high, 120 by 120 feet with a squash court and garage on the first floor and a tennis court on the second. And each court will have its gallery for spectators.

The courts are to be connected to the main building by a passageway over the driveway. And the court will be diagonally across from the new ball room.

Before long the Allegheny Country Club with its building ambitions will have itself entirely rebuilt, I wouldn't be a bit surprised.

* * *

* * *

Between yesterday's debut parties and that of Friday there'll come a pause in society's pre-occupation with the debutantes. And the pause will be filled with the Columbus Day races tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Hunts Races

All the fashionables will be at the races, to be run over the George R. McNarys' place, Huntlands, near Greensburg.

So far there are six horses entered in the timber race for the Western Pennsylvania Hunts cup; 10 in the flat race; six in the two and half mile brush race.

Late takers of parking spaces are Mrs. H. K. Walters, C. McK. Lynch and popular young Rita Borntraeger, back from her travels.

* * *

We're going to have a lovely procession of brides in November as well as in October. And the first of the November brides will be Betty Wainwright Tinker, who'll become Mrs. Meredyth Hanway Ewing on the first day of November.

Bride of November

Betty is the daughter of the Uriah W. Tinkers, South Dallas avenue, and her fiance is the son of Mrs. John K. Ewing, Jr., and the late Mr. Ewing, of Bellport, L. I.

Their wedding will be at 5:30 o'clock that afternoon in Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, with the rector, the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiating. A reception in the Tinker home will follow.

Viewing the New

A "word to the wise" is generally supposed to be sufficient . . . so heed these comments of ours, picked up at random, thanks to our faithful Spyglass. For information on where to find them, call Grant 6560 and ask for the Spyglass, or send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Your health . . . a toast by the new bar which has appeared in town! Instead of languishing across it glass in hand, you languish across it blouse in hand. For this is a Blouse Bar!

Sit down on one of the high aluminum stools while we tell you about it! The price is $2.95 (on upward, but you needn't go onward unless you care to, there are plenty of lovely blouses at $2.95). Taffetas with buttons like big earwigs walking up the front . . . and satin blouses with shirred collars . . . and of course crepes and woolens with all the new details! Also, you'll find twin sweaters. And all these are for the JUNIOR MISS, don't forget. So juniors . . . you are no longer left out in the cold!

* * *

Also . . . THE spot where to find fur trimmings for frocks and coats this season. Ermine tails . . . brown or white . . . for 25c apiece (and you know how popular tails are this season!) Or even sable ones to wind around your neck or knot loosely at one shoulder.

* * *

Wear a Schaparelli mad-cap and be just as gay and modern, and happy-go-lucky as your head will look! Of all the fetching bits of foolishness to wear over an eyebrow, these are the utterly utter! For a mere [illegible] to $3.95. Many are string knit . . . many wool . . . and all of them have that top-knot effect like a rooster's comb or a patch of garden which had wandered astray. In deep Fall shades with bright bits by way of garnishment on top. Snatch up ONE of these at least . . . it's good for your spirits if nothing else!

And listen to this bit of news! Not long ago we saw by the pa-pah that New York was showing a new gadget which looked like lipstick but in reality contained face tissue. And now we know where it is to be found here in town! Only $1 for the little metal "lipstick" container and 16 refills of the tissue rolls. A modern miracle for wiping away superfluous lipstick or rouge!

"A cup of coffee, a sandwich"—and let the sandwich be toasted on one of these new toasters we found specially priced. Time was when you would have paid a very pretty penny for a double sandwich toaster . . . but today $1.39 buys you one as fine as any heart (or sandwich) could wish!

But now, little chickens . . . gather 'round whilst we scratch about in the fertile soil of the shops to produce this plum! Fur coats . . . the swagger type . . . of cocoa lapin, lined (and NOTE this!) with green or burgundy wool crepe . . . and therefore wearable even when the winds "doth blow" their hardest! Price? . . .$49.50. . . and that's Something!

SWEETEST DAY

Saturday OCT. 14th

TO LOVE, to live and be loved . . . and who among us but have love in our hearts, . . . yet too often it remains there, never manifesting itself.

Perhaps the energy and exertion of living precludes the constant exhibition of sentiment. However, all of us have sweethearts, mothers and wives or relatives, to whom a sweet token of sentiment would rekindle that latent spark of love and devotion and elate us with the great joy of remembering our dear ones.

SWEETEST DAY came into being because its founders recognized the eternal tendency of men and women to become so engaged in the rush and whirl of life and to forget the finer and more appealing things.

So on this day, Saturday, October 14th, steal enough time from the turmoil of routine affairs to bring a bit of good cheer to those you love. A box of candy . . . and, more than that, add a loving word—a smile—a kiss. SWEETEST DAY is worthy of your attention. Regard its observance as a sacred duty . . . and a rare opportunity. Let it be said You Remembered.

Pledge of Federation Aid for NRA to Be Asked

Resolution for Reduced Immigration To Be Given Convention

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Among the resolutions which will be presented to the State Federation delegates for their adoption will be one indorsing the National Industrial Recovery Act and pledging support to its principles. Another will urge if there be any change in the national immigration laws that it shall be in the direction of greater stringency.

Directed motion picture attendance on the part of children to those films suitable to their age and appropriate as to hours will be urged in a resolution proposed by Mrs. Charles T. Owens, motion picture chairman.

The department of international relations is mothering a resolution indorsing drastic reductions and budgetary limitation of armaments, international supervision of manufacture and trade in arms and a permanent organization to carry out the final treaty and the work inaugurated by the conference on the reductions and limitations of armament.

To Urge Arms Cut

Another proposed resolution urges as an essential factor in the development of welfare programs, adequate plans and budgetary provisions for vocational education, library extension and recreation. Support will be pledged to legislation providing a more adequate probation system for juveniles and adults if the resolution by Mrs. Charles Long, chairman of the division of correction and restoration, is adopted.

The address on the convention theme "More Light," by Dean Thyrsa W. Amos, of the University of Pittsburgh, was the highlight of yesterday morning's session, but the various reports were, of course, of interest, too.

'More Light'

The greatest need of today, Miss Amos said, is the reclamation and recognition of the needs of the individual so that through him may be given to the group, the community, the country, and so to the world "More Light."

The speaker urged the release of beauty through the ability to regard self rightly—self-respect; through hospitality and to intelligent evaluation of new ideas, and a right regard for people and for things, for, she said, in the treatment of things is the respect of self revealed.

In the afternoon, Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, and Dr. B. L. Scott, of the bureau of corrections, State Department of Welfare; Lowell Thomas and Judge Sara Soffel spoke. The memorial service was held in the First Presbyterian Church, and last night the department of welfare had its dinner, with Judge Benjamin Lencher and Miss Charlotte Carr, secretary of the Department of Labor and Industry, speaking. Miss Emma B. Suydam, senior club editor of Pittsburgh, was honor guest at the press and publicity dinner.

Memorial Service

Speakers at the evening session were Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, second vice president of the General Federation, and Will Irwin, genial journalist and author.

Today's events at the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention in the William Penn Hotel: 8 o'clock, parliamentary law class; 9 o'clock, morning session with Girl Scout ceremony, business, reports, legislative forum, program by juniors; 12:15, fine arts luncheon, with Nancy Byrd Turner speaking; 3 o'clock, Twentieth Century Club play; 5:30, convention choir rehearsal; 6:30, friendship dinner; 8:15, evening session, Florence Fisher Parry and Maxwell S. Stewart speaking.

The juniors will follow the same program throughout the day.

In her talk on "Family Relations as Seen from the Judge's Bench," Judge Soffel stressed the need for intelligent knowledge of contraceptives through clinics so that bootleg dissemination of such knowlegde may be stopped.

Judge Speaks

Mariages of immature persons should be prevented; there should be mental and physical examination of candidates for marriage, and a waiting period should be introduced between the granting of the license and the marriage, she said.

Speaking of mental defectives, Judge Soffel said:

"If sterilization is the solution of the problem, let's face it. But if we insist upon breeding defectives, then let us provide means to take care of them."

The last remark came apropos to her statement that both Polk and Laurelton have waiting lists.

Mr. Beck's talk emphasized the economic and social responsibility toward the youth of the nation. He gave same startling figures and facts, one instance being that 29 girls had been taken out of a box car in Texas recently.

Youth Problem

Dr. Scott outlined a constructive penal program and said there should be no false economy where children's welfare is concerned. Lowell Thomas, corralled in the hotel lobby by Mrs. John M. Phillips, appeared on the convention platform for a few minutes. Col. Morris Frank, of the Seeing Eye, who was here to address the juniors, also spoke briefly before the senior body yesterday afternoon.

Dinner Speakers

Mr. Gaul said a music critic is to be read, not agreed with. He termed radio "our most vicious medium in music." In her short address Mrs. Saudek pointed out the fine programs that are to be heard on the air and asked the women to organize listening in parties and meetings and to write the station both in appreciation and criticism of programs.

EVENING SHOES TWINKLE BRIGHTLY

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT LOOKS as if baby is going to have shoes on her feet when she steps out this winter. Those sandals which consisted of a few strips of material laced together here and there over bright toe nails are not holding over for this year, pretty as they were. Real slippers are being touted for formal evening frocks, models that have plenty of caps and heels no matter how much they may be cut out near the instep.

It is a pleasure to have handsome brocades back in favor, along with the revival of familiar shapes. Both the patterns which use jewel tones—so deuced practical for wear with all kinds and colors of evening toilette—and the more delicate designs that offer just the pale tones to show off ice-tinted gowns, are with us again.

* * *

LIKE the gowns that will be worn with them, a great effect is being made with gold and silver touches on evening slippers. Some models, almost as practical as brocades as far as double and triple gown duty goes, employ both gold and silver in their designs. Ofter it is satin, which is treated to this trimming; velvet, especially white velvet, is another material that is lovely with metal kidskin.

* * *

CREPE slippers don't appear to be doing so well this season, although common sense might suggest that they would be perfect foils for gowns of shiny stuffs, such as satin or lame. It is one of the mysteries which does not matter much, however, as it would take a centipede to wear all the other models that are provided.

The stunt of dyeing one's slippers to match one's gown remains a good one, especially when a handsome off-tone makes the gown. Grays, berry tones, queer greens and queer blues can easily be marred by a slipper color which contrasts mistakenly.

Society Debs Sought for Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—For the next two months, Jesse L. Lasky will be very busy scanning the blue book. The film producer will ask the Junior League in 25 American cities to help him select 25 bona-fide society girls to come to Hollywood for his picture, "Coming-Out Party."

Mr. Lasky

The lucky debs—I suppose they can consider themselves so—will be guaranteed a minimum of two weeks' salary and nine or 10 of them will get small parts in the picture. After that, it's up to them.

The Lasky stunt is Hollywood's umpteenth "search for beauty," but it promises a lot of publicity for this smart producer. To make it attractive for the Junior League, he is figuring out a way to cut the organization in on charity benefit performances when the picture is released.

Starting date, according to present schedule, is December.

A couple of furtive young men are going to believe everything they read in the future about Joel McCrea keeping himself in the pink of condition. Several nights ago, the tall young star decided to sleep at his ranch, where he's putting up a new home. About 2 o'clock he was awakened by a strange noise. Investigating he discovered that two men had driven up in a truck and were loading it with lumber and expensive bathroom fixtures. Unarmed, Joel sailed into them with his fists and, after a few minutes of hectic mixing, succeeded in knocking one thief out cold. The other then gave up. More merciful than some, Joel let the pair go after they had uploaded his property from the truck.

The third costume party has come and gone and Hollywood is about reconciled to return to its normal evening wear for a while. The Daryl Zanuck-William Goetz Bowery party was a swell affair though. Not satisfied with being co-host, Mr. Zanuck got the biggest laugh by appearing as a tattooed man with the opening date of "The Bowery" printed across his back. Whoops also greeted the appearance of the Benn W. Levys (Constance Cummings), who came identically attired as padded-out burlesque queens. Lilian Tashman was too beautiful in a pink creation of the period. Another stunning gown was Dolores Del Rio's.

So Lupe and Johnny went to Las Vegas. It will be interesting to see how Lupe, who is a great spender, and Johnny, who recently has grown more cautious, will work it out. The swimming star recently refused to let Lupe buy him a swank car.

Mr. Weissmuller

"And I'm not going to buy it myself either," Johnny told me. "I'm through with things I can't afford."

May Robson's House Has 'Canary Lane'

One of the reasons why May Robson bought herself a Beverly Hills home, was to have a place to hang her many treasured photographs of famous personages. A long hallway solved the problem. The walls are lined with these inscribed pictures, while every few feet there is a cage of singing canary birds. Miss Robson has called this part of her house "Canary Lane," and passes most of her spare time there.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Success Story

(By J. E. McDougall, 1047 East Forty-second Place, Chicago, Ill. Winner of the second prize in the recent Joe Green column contest.)

JOE GREEN walked slowly in the direction of his home after a pretty dull day. Passing him, you would never give him a second glance. For Joe Green was so essentially the average man that a second glance was never necessary.

Everything about the man spelled the average. The way his clothes fitted him. That plodding look in his eyes. The very manner in which he walked. Average, that was Joe Green. And it was a thousand to one he would go through life exactly as he was.

But then, if he had, I suppose he would have ceased to be the average man. For to the average man, at least once, something startling happens that gives point to his life—even if it is only a broken collarbone or a bequest from a grateful mother-in-law. And something did happen to Joe Green.

Joe had been born in a little town up-state where daily life was about as exciting as afternoon tea with the Curate's aunt. And the thing that happened to him was the appearance of the Excelsior Dramatic Troupe for one consecutive night at the Town Hall, the year he was seventeen.

He had to sneak out to see the show, for his parents did not approve of the stage. As a matter of fact, old man Green's idea of an abandoned soul was a man who carried burnt matches in his pocket and looked at beer signs.

So the trip to the Town Hall to see the play actors was a turning point in Joe's life. On that memorable night, he climbed up the eavestrough pipe to his bedroom, Joe Green made a decision. Somehow, some day, he would go upon the stage.

And from then on, Joe was a changed man . . .

When Joe was twenty-two, he married Mary Robinson. There wasn't much more to it than that. She cooked well, and she wasn't too hard to look at. But as the wife of a famous actor—well, Joe just couldn't see her in that role.

Unfortunately, however, he was not consulted in the matter. When it was pointed out to him that, having held her hand at the Strawberry Festival each year, marriage was the only honorable thing, he let it go at that. And so they became man and wife.

If you think Joe was discouraged in his ambition after the wedding, you are mistaken. When he was 29, his mother and father were killed in an accident. They left just enough money to enable Joe to quit his job in the coal company, take Mary to New York and live there for a month or two while he looked for a theatrical job.

After the will had been read, Joe told Mary his plans—with the omission of the theatrical part. Mary shared Joe's parents' view of the theater, and so he told her only enough to make her agree. She thought they were going to New York so that Joe could get a bigger job in a bigger coal company.

And that's just what Joe did when the money ran out. He got a job in which, instead of looking after one set of books, he looked after three. His salary was twice as large—and his expenses three times as great.

Nevertheless, Joe was undaunted. Time rolled on, but he kept hoping against hope. When he reached the age of thirty-five, he felt that his opportunity might arrive at any moment. He no longer fancied himself as a romantic juvenile, but he knew that somehow he would tread the boards before he died.

Strangely, it was through Mary that Joe came closest to an association with the life of the stage. Mary had met a man named Bill Chitwit, and she had introduced him to Joe. Chitwit was a ham magician who was known professionally as Nemo the Great.

Nemo worked only when one of the outlying theaters needed a stage filler. When he wasn't doing his phony feats of magic, Nemo sold magazine subscriptions for a living. But to Joe, this man was a breath from the great world of the theater. Whenever Nemo had a job, Joe and Mary would rush to see his act.

At first Nemo would come to their home in the evenings. Mary was still nice looking, and Nemo had a face that didn't bring him too many mash notes. But by and by Nemo stopped calling at Joe's flat—in the evenings, anyway . . .

The years moved on until they arrived at the point where we found Joe Green walking home from the office after a pretty dull day. He was 45 now, and he felt hopelessly tied down. Passing him, you would never give him a second glance—and yet there was plenty of emotion and conflict in the man's mind.

He opened the door of his little apartment. He looked around. No Mary. That was strange. He looked further. The apartment was empty. And there on the table was a note:

"Joe:" it read. "I know this will be a shock to you, but I couldn't stand it any longer. I have gone to live with Nemo. Goodbye. Mary."

Joe's mind seem to snap. He knew the theater in which Nemo was playing, and knew exactly what he would do. Hatless, he rushed to the street and hailed a cab. In his eyes was a strange and unholy light.

He entered the theater with a throbbing heart. The ham magician was on the stage. Nemo the Great was addressing the audience.

"Now, for this trick," he was saying, "I must have the cooperation of some lady or gentleman in the audience. Will someone kindly step upon the stage and examine the bag in which I have placed the rabbit?"

With set jaw, Joe rushed down the aisle, up the steps and over the footlights. He stood there, holding the bag that Nemo handed him. On his face was a broad smile.

At last Joe Green was on the stage! . . .

SURGEON HAILS NRA AS AID TO LONGER LIFE

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—If the NRA slows down high-pressure Americans in their living and working habits it will be the greatest single contribution of the decade to increasing longevity and decreasing the death rate, Dr. Edgar L. Gilcreest, of San Francisco, said to the American College of Surgeons, today.

The Surgeons were told by Dr. Gilcreest that many patients who believe they have neuritis or arthritis in their shoulders really are afflicted by a rupture or dislocation of the biceps, one of its principal muscles. He said the condition can be relieved and often cured by surgery, if correctly diagnosed at an early stage.

LEGS MADE LONGER

How the legs of cripples can be made longer by the use of a bone breaker, weights, and piano wire, was explained to the college by Prof. Vittorio Putti, of Bologna, Italy.

Prof. Putti said that his procedure was to break the leg obliquely and insert piano wire in the bone, holding the two ends in line and pulling the lower end out with weights. A bony substance grows at the thin fracture opening and gives the members its normal strength. It takes about 20 days for the fracture to heal.

He said he used his method to repair the common deformities of childhood, as well as to lengthen legs made short by fractures.

APPENDICITIS DEATHS

Meanwhile, speaking to laymen in an address at the Century of Progress, Dr. Alton Ochsner, of New Orleans, here for the Surgeons' meeting, said:

"One person dies every 29 minutes in the United States from appendicitis."

Appendicitis, he said, is primarily a disease of children and young persons, and that although surgery has reduced deaths from other causes, the mortality rate from this disease is 50 per cent higher than it was 15 years ago.

Painless Childbirth Near, Surgeons College Hears

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Childbirth without pain was the forecast held today by Dr. James H. Bloomfield, noted obstetrician, before a divisional meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Bloomfield recounted recent developments in obstetrics, and said women suffering from heart disease need have no fear of becoming mothers. He added:

"The proper use of stimulative drugs to women suffering from heart trouble is an important part of modern technique. These drugs, knowns as analgesics, when properly administered nullify practically all risks attendant upon weak hearted mothers."

Advances in the use of a modified form of twilight sleep, local anesthetics, and caesarian operations were listed by Dr. Bloomfield as important. He continued:

"The final goal of painless childbirth will be the result of specialized technique in both the prehospitalization and the actual operations upon the mother.

"The differences in individual cases always will require expert individual diagnosis as to all physical characteristics of the patient and treatment given in accordance with such diagnosis."

Midwest Like England, Says Woman M. P.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The Midwest strikes Miss Marjorie Graves, a member of the British Parliament, as being "more English" in manner than the East, she said here yesterday, adding:

"There is a certain homeliness, a friendly spirit, that I notice immediately. Perhaps it is because you are essentially an agricultural people, as we are in England."

Two Die of Injuries From Rocket Blast

OSNABRUECK, Germany, Oct. 11. — (INS.) — Reinhold Tiling, constructor of a rocket plane, and his assistant, Fraulein Buddenboehmer, died today of injuries received yesterday in a powder explosion in their laboratory.

ABBE OUTLINES EARTH REBIRTH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Possibility that the universe, like the cat with nine lives, may be "reborn" every so often through a mighty explosion, only to "die" and be reborn again in another giant blast was outlined today by Abbe Georges le Maitre, noted Belgian scientist.

Under this theory our universe perhaps is built out of ashes of another universe that existed before this one began, the abbe explained. When the present universe "dies" also, as many scientists believe it will, still another universe may be "born" out of its ashes and live on for untold ages more.

Abbe le Maitre is world-famous for his theories about the origin and structure of the universe. He is on leave from the University of Louvain to give a course in the theory of relativity here this winter at the Catholic University of America.

'Lovelorn' Learn As Professor, 73, Takes Bride, 33

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—(Universal.)—Boston University students in Prof. Guillermo Hall's unofficial course on "Advice to the Lovelorn" looked with respect on the 73-year-old professor's theories on wooing today, following revelation of his marriage to his 33-year-old secretary, the former Miss Helen Nichols.

In his unofficial love lectures, Prof. Hall advised the boys:

"Choose a wife who is a perfect 36. The perfect 36 is the best type of woman for health. And after you marry her, the way to attain happiness is to kid yourself into believing she's the best woman ever."

ICE PICK KILLER GETS LIFE

A jury convicted Ragone of the murder charge yesterday, and Judge Albert D. MacDade sentenced him immediately.

The slaying occurred last June 23. Reilly's body, bearing numerous stab wounds, which authorities said were inflicted with an ice pick, was found the next day in a cemetery on the outskirts of Philadelphia.

5 Die in Political Brawl in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11. — (INS.)—Five persons were killed and 14 wounded during a political gun battle at Huajicora in the state of Mayarit, according to advices received today.

Troops also continued to pursue Indians accused of killing an American and two Mexicans in a political brawl in the same state.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The first musical production of the year will come along to gladden the heart of Manager Harry Brown of the Nixon throughout the week of October 23. The coming ear-tickler is nothing less than the tune hit of the last season in New York, "Music in the Air." This bit o' honey and lyrics is the work of those distinguished laborers in the operetta vineyard, Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, II. Its worth is dialed in the fact that it opened in the metrop a little short of a year ago, and continued to cheer New Yorkers and visiting firemen until the eve of the last atumnal equinox, or September 18, just past, to be exact. Its original cast included Reinald Werrenrath, a baritone as is a baritone for anybody's choir; Donald Brian, a dancer for anybody's money; Walter Slezak, Al Shean and Harry Mestayer. All of them are promised for Pittsburgh, along with the original production, including the conductor, Jacques Rabiroff, who will shake his stick at the usual instruments, as well as some not so usual, like harps, oboes, zithers, French horns, celestes and bassoons. I love bassoons—or am I thinking of macaroons?

* * *

Madge Evans, who is among the stellar cast of "Dinner at Eight," now in its second week in the Nixon, is a two-phase, two-age movie actress. The phases, to tell all, are silents and talkies, while the ages are childhood and maturity. Madge—she never was Baby Madge or Madgie, but just Madge—was an infantile wonder of silent films at the age of 6 and until she just outgrew it. Her first long picture was "Sudden Riches," which starred Robert Warwick. It took her seven years to get through childhood; then, at the age of 14, she came forth as a full-fledged leading woman, opposite Richard Barthelmess in "Classmates." The stage then claimed her for a few years until M-G-M decided that was enough of that after its scouts had seen her in "Philip Goes Forth." "Dinner at Eight" is her sixth picture since then.

* * *

Henry Duffy, who has become a Pacific coast theatrical man of the magnate degree since the days of "Abie's Irish Rose," which he kept in Pittsburgh for half a year, is organizing a company of "The Church Mouse" to send to Australia for a six months' tour. He tried to lure Sally O'Neil of the films, but Sally shook her head.

WAY CLEAR FOR VOTE MACHINES IN NOVEMBER

POLITICS

Democrats Gambling Council for Mayor

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Democrats, in slating William A. Magee as one of their candidates for City Council, have foregone the probability of organizing Council on a partisan Democratic basis in the event their ticket should sweep the city at the municipal election next month. Should the Democrats win they would have four members of Council. There would be four Republican holdovers.

Mr. Shields

One of these, William A. Soost, is an organization man, being Republican city chairman. The other three, Robert Garland, Charles Anderson and P. J. McArdle, are sometimes classed as independents, though perhaps it would be better to describe them as Republicans opposed to the present city organization.

* * *

Magee Might Be Council President

From this lineup Mr. Soost could expect nothing. It is improbable that any of the Republican holdovers could get sufficient Democratic support to head Council, and it is as equally improbable that they would vote for the Democrats.

Which would leave Mr. Magee, candidate on both tickets, as the logical choice. In a letter today to John Murray, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, Mr. Magee restated his program of the primary, that he had become a Council candidate in a non-partisan and non-factional spirit. Summing up his position, he wrote, appreciating being placed on the Democratic ticket:

* * *

"I entered the primaries of both the Republican and Democratic parties because I desired, if chosen to office, to be entirely non-partisan as well as non-factional in my attitude toward all city issues. I said then that I wished to be able to co-operate with the administration regardless of what party or political faction would be successful at the election. I repeat that now and assure you that in the event of the election of Mr. McNair (the Democratic candidate) as mayor or any of the Democratic candidates for membership in City Council it will be my endeavor to act sympathetically and wholeheartedly with them in the general public interest."

* * *

Magee to Define 'Public Interest'

But Mr. Magee reserves to himself the right, no matter who the Mayor, and who the members of Council, to use his own definition of "general public interest," and to refrain from any participation in the building up of a partisan political machine.

To that extent, therefore, the Democrats have abandoned any effort through Council, even if successful in the election, to use that body as an instrument toward the state campaign of next year. Their strategy is transparent, and excellent.

They have gambled Council, the legislative branch of the government, against the possibility of capturing the mayoralty, the administrative arm. The administration controls the police, the Department of Public Works and those agencies which are valuable in constructing a political organization. But always, Council holds the purse strings.

If the Democrats win, Council and the Mayor will not form a dovetailed partisan energy, as has occurred so frequently in Pittsburgh municipal affairs.

* * *

Democrats Make Their Ticket More Formidable

By substituting Mr. Magee for George E. Evans, one of the Democratic organization candidates who won a Council nomination in the primary, at which time the Democratic leaders were fighting the nomination of Mr. Magee, there is tacit admission that the Democrats looked upon their original lineup as somewhat weak. They wished the prestige of the Magee candidacy, and they saw in their action of yesterday a lure to Independent Republicans.

But the Democrats still have not brought about a situation where Independent Republicans may vote for Mr. Magee and the other Independents who won Republican nominations alone, with a single turn of the vote machine button or a single cross on the paper ballots.

The concrete happening as a result of recent strategy is assurance that Mr. Magee will be elected, though in the primary he was opposed by the leaders of both party organizations, who now are glad to have him. His presence on the Democratic ticket will lessen the number of straight Republican votes, an aim the Democrats sought.

Though, as has been mentioned, the Democrats' belated adoption of Mr. Magee might be construed as a recognition of original weakness, it is just as true that the move has made the Democratic ticket more formidable. The best evidence of that is the discomfiture of Republican leaders, who had hoped that Mr. Magee would be on their ticket alone.

Fifty Men Routed In Gambling Raid

Fifty men said to have been making wagers in an alleged bookmaking establishment at 1011 Liberty avenue, were dispersed yesterday by four constables from the office of Alderman Thomas Geary, during a raid in which Thomas Hoffman was arrested as the alleged proprietor. Hoffman posted $2,000 bond for a hearing Tuesday.

Nollie's Desire To Go Away Meets With Disapproval

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

CHAPTER II.

A song of freedom in her heart and a bright plan forming in her mind, Nollie was immune tonight to the squabblings at the Greens' supper table.

The shriek of the cheap radio next door combined with the raucous yells of some hooligan lads in the lane outside fell on deaf ears, as did the querulous rebukes of her aunt to the younger members of the family.

"Come on upstairs. I want to speak to you." At the conclusion of the meal, when Nollie was about to help her aunt with the clearing of the table and the washing of the dishes, Lil beckoned her from the doorway.

Nollie made a shrewd guess what the request would be. Reluctantly she followed Lil to the room they shared together.

Gawd!" isn't it hot?" Lil fanned herself as she swayed back and forth in the broken old rocker by the window.

"What is it, Lil?"

"Come in. Sit down. Don't be upstage. Can't we ever have any conversation together?"

But Nollie knew just what it meant. A request for a loan of some sort or other.

She sat down on the edge of the bed and waited for Lil's cue.

It came indirectly. That was true to form. "Aren't you sick and tired of this old dump?" asked Lil with an attempt at affability.

ASKS FOR CLOTHING

Nollie said nothing. She knew better. Any affirmative reply she might be inveigled into making would be used as evidence against her in the next family squabble.

"You can't blame me for wanting to be out and have a little fun?" continued Lil on the same plaintive note. "Believe me, the first real chance I get I'll be off from here and you won't see my heels for dust. An' —an' I hope, like me, you'll soon get a beau of your own, Nollie."

"Thanks for the kind interest." Nollie turned her head away so that the well-wisher might not see the ironical little smile that played about her lips at this. "I s'pose tonight you've a date with Jake Tippett?"

"Yep." Lil's too small eyes narrowed and her mouth tightened as she stared at Nollie. What was in Nollie's mind? Hadn't Jake expressed undue interest, more than once, in this same cousin of hers?

But now he never spoke about her any more—or if her name came up, he dismissed it with the remark that Nollie was "too high-hat and standoffish" . . .

"Listen, ole dear, I haven't a decent hat to my name, and I was wondering if you'd let me wear your red? Oh, just this once? an'—and Nollie, darn it all, I haven't a pair of silk stockings without a run in 'em!"

"You can have a pair of mine I washed today."

"Oh, thanks. An'—and the hat, Nollie?"

"We-ll, I don't know. Your headsize is bigger than mine. It's a good hat. I saved up for

2 PARTIES OUT OF RACE MAKE USE POSSIBLE

Defenders Group Fails To File; Communists Turned Down

The rejection of the petition of the Communist Party for a county-wide ticket in the November election and the failure of the Defender Party to file a complete slate has made possible the use of voting machines, according to Director William T. Rees, of the Bureau of Elections.

Yesterday was the final day for filing petitions.

The voting machines will be able to take care of the Citizens Party, whose candidates were named on petitions filed yesterday afternoon. The candidates are the same as those who gained the Republican nomination last month for all except judicial offices. The parties which will appear on the machines are Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Square Deal, Liberal, Independent and Citizens.

There will be one party line unoccupied.

LACKS COYNE'S SIGNATURE

The Defender Party has named candidates in the Seventh, Fourteenth and Twenty-sixth wards and the People's Party in the Twenty-second Ward. In these wards the unoccupied party lines will be used for the new parties' selections.

With one or two exceptions, the huge stack of peitions presented for the Citizens' Party were accepted by the elections department. Among the few turned down was one circulated and authenticated by State Senator James J. Coyne. The Senator had approved the petition which bore 110 names, but his name did not appear among the petitioners which is required by law. The law is that five of the petitioners must authenticate the petition, by signing on the back.

PETITIONS TURNED DOWN

Patrick Cawley, Republican nominee for Alderman of the Nineteenth Ward, was refused the right to use the name Citizens' party in his ward. He appeared a few minutes before closing time and presented five petitions, signed by more than 500 persons, who named him as their choice for Alderman. Only one of the five petitions was authenticated by five signatures on the back. Cawley maintained that the five petitions were considered as one petition and required only the one group of signers to make it authentic.

James A. Fulton, of 1415 Evans avenue, McKeesport, will not have the Non-Partisan listing for Mayor in McKeesport at the coming election. Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank ruled against the listing for the reason that "Non-Partisan" is not considered to be proper for adoption as a party name.

OPTOMETRISTS NAME OFFICERS

Other officers elected were Dr. A. P. Liachowitz, Mahanoy; Dr. E. E. Eichlien, Easton; Dr. J. C. Neill, Philadelphia, and Dr. C. H. King, of Chambersburg, vice presidents, and Dr. Stanley Brown, of Reading, secretary.

The convention selected Philadelphia as the next convention city and formulated an NRA code for the profession.

Smithfield Street Span Repairs Being Speeded

McKees Rocks Blaze Burns Cleaning Shop

An early morning blaze partly destroyed the hat cleaning shop of Andy Spelle at 201 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, police reported. The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the rear of the one-story frame building, firemen said.

Fall From Tree Causes Man's Death

Thomas Coles, 26, of 117 Ninth street, Turtle Creek, who fell from a tree on Memorial Day while making a swing for children in the neighborhood, died last night in the Columbia Hospital.

Use of Aluminum Adds 30 Years to Bridge's Life

Work of replacing the steel floor of the Smithfield Street Bridge with girders and plates of strong aluminum alloys is continuing 24 hours a day. City engineers hope to complete the job in a month.

The bridge is being repaired one side at a time. At present, the street car side of the structure is about one-third finished, and heavy street car traffic has been rerouted over the vehicular side. Automobile and truck traffic has been switched to other bridges.

The Smithfield Bridge will be the first aluminum span in the world, according to Aluminum Company of America officials. City engineers decided to use aluminum alloys when they discovered that their use would lighten the ageing bridge of 850 tons of dead weight. The bridge is 50 years old, but its wrought iron arches are still sound, and with an aluminum floor they will be good for another 30 years, Edward G. Lang, director of Public Works, has declared.

Because a new bridge will not have to be built, the city taxpayers will save about $70,000 a year, Lang estimates.

The aluminum alloys are as strong as steel, but expand and contract more with temperature changes. Special expansion joints will take care of this "stretch."

BELLEVUE HITS WABASH PLAN

Bellevue Board of Trade is not in favor of the county purchasing the Wabash Bridge and tunnel for a traffic system.

The project would be impractical, costly and would not relieve traffic congestion in the downtown district, a resolution adopted at their meeting last night declared.

The problem of hard water and smoke and dust nuisances were other subjects of the meeting and a committee was named to plan for a Halloween celebration in Bellevue.

SEWERS ASKED BY 16TH WARD

Plans for a sewage system in the Sixteenth Ward were to be presented City Council by the Sixteenth Ward Improvement Association today. The plans were drawn by A. F. Postellon, following a five-week survey of the district.

The association was formed several months ago to obtain street and sewage improvements in the ward, long called by its residents "the forgotten district." E. J. Holland is president of the body.

Stolen Household Goods Recovered

A truck loaded with household goods, believed to have been stolen in the Oakmont district by Arthur Payne, a Negro, who has no home, was found by Oakmont police and county detectives in the rear of House 37, in Barking. Payne, who was arrested Sunday in Oakmont charged with 13 robberies is today in the county jail.

Trips On Scaffold; Cuts Head in Fall

When plaster in a house he was repairing at 1213 High street started to fall late yesterday, Frank Smith, 39, of 1212 Spring Garden avenue, ran. He tripped over a scaffold, suffering a severe laceration to his head. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

LOSER MAY WIN IN RECOUNT

Judge W. Heber Dithrich has signed an order directing a recount of the ballots cast in the Seventh Election District of Dormont and which may mean the nomination of Arthur Miller to council by four votes, instead of making him lose to Albert G. Staley by one vote.

The petitioners for the recount are William H. Frasher, Charles Cook and W. D. Drummond. They do not allege fraud in asking for a recount of the votes cast for council, burgess, school director and tax collector.

Frasher says that when the board of the district tabulated the county, the tally sheet showed that Miller had 93 votes, while the return sheets showed 98 votes. It is also claimed that the minority inspector's return showed 98 votes. If this is correct, Frasher says this would make Miller win by four votes instead of losing by one, provided, there is no other change in the count.

Taken to Hospital After Street Fight

Louis Severs, 34, of 201 Fifty-seventh street, was in West Penn Hospital today with a probable fracture of the skull suffered last night during a street fight. Martin Joscanci, 40, of 241 Fifty-seventh street, his alleged assailant, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

'Bugs' Exposes Latest Scheme For War Loan

—By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER—

Soviets and Japanese shouldn't fight over a railroad. The loser is sure to start a bus line.

That's just a peg to hang the hat on. They've probably decided to battle anyway. The League of Nations won't let you go to war unless you have two reasons. One of which must be plausible.

The disputed road belongs to the Chinese, runs through Chinese territory and carries Chinese passengers. They never fight because they cool off waiting for the train.

The whole thing is as neat and pretty as tapioca pudding on a necktie. It looks like a scheme to float some bonds. If it is, we demand a map with our next war loan.

Merry old England bobbed up with an offer of 10 cents on the dollar for the big war debt. And that's high water mark with the pumps busted.

HUSBAND SUES 'DYNAMITE' BRIDE

His wife told him he was "flirting with dynamite" when he married her, Christ Burger, 1302 Vine street, charges in a divorce suit filed against Lillian Burger, North Side.

Burger, who was a widower with grown children when he married her September 5, 1930, said that on their wedding day his bride told his daughter, Catherine:

"I am the mistress of this household."

Later, he said, she went to his place of employment on Neville Island and broke an umbrella over his head in the presence of his employer and 100 men. He charges cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

CHARGES GAMBLING

Her husband gambled and one night failed to appear for a bridge party, Ruth C. Nash, 614 Coronado Apartments, Aiken and Center avenues, testified before Judge W. Heber Dithrich in asking a divorce from Charles O. Nash, Ridgeville avenue.

Dorothy M. Maxwell, Evergreen road, a witness for Mrs. Nash, told of accompany Mrs. Nash to the home of friends to play bridge, without Mr. Nash, and continued:

"I accompanied her home. Mr. Nash had come home intoxicated and was in bed. Mrs. Nash said I was going to stay all night and he said I was not, and struck Mrs. Nash, who cried. As I had my car I went home. Mr. Nash never apologized."

SHUNNED BY BRIDE

After their wedding his bride, Blanche Rodgers, 25, of Hunter street, Wilkinsburg, said she had changed her mind and would not live with him. Jack C. Rodgers, 31, of 313 Garver street, testified in asking Judge Dithrich for a divorce. It was granted.

They were married in 1929, and parted upon return to Pittsburgh, Rodgers said, adding:

He testified, however, that they had kept company five years.

E. Ford Wilson, 5645 Marlboro road, has filed a divorce suit against Nell LaRue Wilson, Narbeth, Pa., charging indignities.

Divorce suits also were filed by Grace Wallace against Peter J. Wallace, Martha M. Krepley against Edward J. Krepley, Helen Van Horn against George Van Horn and by Russell J. O'Donnell against Abigail O'Donnell.

PITT TO SET UP SCOREBOARD

Pitt students are ready now to set up gridgraph, an electrical score board designed to reproduce a play-by-play picture of Pitt out-of-town games.

A direct wire into Memorial Hall, where the big board will be set up, will feed a complete description of every play to the student operators.

Lights will flash as players punt, pass and run. And with the Pitt cheerleaders and band on deck for each show, every touchdown Sebastian and Weinstock make against Notre Dame and Minnesota will be appropriately celebrated.

A committee of the Pitt Student Council, headed by James Dempsey, is in charge of the football assembly.

Hamlet Expects Prosperity By New Bridge

ROOSEVELTTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The Hamlet of Rooseveltown is sprucing up in the expectation of better times.

The opening of a new bridge across the St. Lawrence into Canada next month is the incentive to the movement, for residents hope it will become an important focal point for tourists.

The name Rooseveltown was recently acquired, born of the promise of a new deal for the village. It was formerly known as Nyando, inspired by the New York and Ontario Railroad which first gave the village life.

The villagers plan a new hotel, new church, paved streets and a new lighting system.

WATERWAY MEN TO MEET HERE

The seventh annual convention of the Propeller Club of the United States will open in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow morning. More than 200 leaders in marine and inland waterways development are expected to attend. They will be guests of the Port of Pittsburgh, the first inland city to receive a charter.

An informal reception tonight precedes the convention sessions.

The program for the convention, which will continue until Saturday, will be in charge of A. J. P. Vandermyn, president of the Port of Pittsburgh, and J. Milnor Roberts, convention chairman.

The annual banquet will be held in the William Penn Friday night. Lieut. Com. Arthur M. Tode, national president, will be the speaker.

AIRLINES MAY BE EVICTED

The Transcontinental and Western Air and the Pennsylvania Air lines may be "put off" the County Airport in 10 days if they do not pay their delinquent bills.

Such was the decision yesterday of County Commissioners Charles C. McGovern and C. M. Barr as they took the matter into their hands and "fired" Commissioner William D. Mansfield.

Mansfield, who had been handling the back bills, thanked his colleagues for their action.

Dispute over an old lighting contract which has been followed by a new one has been the cause of the contention. The aviation concerns each owe the county about $1,000, according to the county's interpretation of the old contracts. McGovern said:

"We should cancel their contract within 10 days or put them off the airport if they do not pay up."

Pittsburgh Concern Bids Low on Dam Job

The Pennsylvania Drilling Company of Pittsburgh was the lowest bidder for borings and test holes on the Bonneville Dam site on the Columbia River when bids were opened at Portland, Ore., by the U. S. Army Engineering Corps. Its bid was $13,025.

DOOR CARVERS ROB STORE

The theft of $100 and valuable papers in a burglary of the Coffield Service Company store at 100 Market street last night was reported to police by R. D. Collins, manager, today.

The thieves forced an entrance by whittling the front door away from the bolts, Collins said. A large arc lamp nearby furnished plenty of light for the job.

Nothing else in the store was disturbed. Whoever stole the money must have been familiar with the store layout, according to Collins.

HIT THAT COLD

WHERE IT LIVES—

in the System!

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold in an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

First of all, it is distinctly a cold remedy and not a "cure-all." Second, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

STATE HIGHWAY WORK LISTED

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Using $2,000,000 already set aside, Gov. Pinchot today said the Highway Department will start work this year on 253 miles of unimproved road on the "old highway system."

Construction on these sections, which have been part of the state system since 1911 and 1913, will reduce to 780 the unimproved mileage on the old system, the Governor said.

Money for work on these highways will be taken from the motor license fund.

Among the projects were:

ALLEGHENY — Route 680, from the Washington County line about two miles north of McDonald, eastwardly 3.21 miles; route 682, from Enlow northwesterly 4.67 miles; route 188, from Shady Plain eastwardly 3.32 miles.

BEAVER—Route 278, from the end of the present concrete road west of Beaver to Esther, 4.29 miles; route 532, from Knob westwardly on the Freedom road 1.22 miles; route 481, from Darlington to the Ohio state line, 4.86 miles.

BUTLER—Route 724, from North Washington southwesterly through West Sunbury, 10.02 miles.

CENTRE AND CLEARFIELD — Route 665, through Karthaus to Moshannon, including 8.55 miles in Centre County and .69 mile in Clearfield County, or total of 8.24 miles.

FAYETTE—Route 112, from Monongahela River to east riverside northeasterly to the end of the present concrete road, 3.78 miles.

INDIANA—Route 571, in Cherry Tree Borough, .58 mile, connecting with the improved road to Beringer; route 571, in Cherry Tree Borough, extending .36 mile from route 82, connecting with the improved road to Arcadia; route 54, Stronkstown north toward Pineton, two miles.

CHURCH OPENS WORLD MEET TONIGHT

Church members from throughout the world were gathering here today for formal opening of the international convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) tonight in Syria Mosque.

Two thousand members are expected to attend the sessions which will close Sunday afternoon with communion services. The church, which numbers approximately 1,700,000 members, had its beginning in the Pittsburgh district 124 years ago. Missionaries from many foreign posts are expected.

Boards and commissions were meeting during the day, preparing convention business. They included the Board of Managers, United Christian Missionary Society, commission of policies and relations, missionary society; directors of the board of education; nominating committee, all at Webster Hall; and trustees of the pension fund, at Fort Pitt Hotel.

MESSAGE FROM LEADER

The annual message of the convention president, the Rev. George A. Campbell, of St. Louis, will be received at the first convention session tonight. Committees will be announced. A 200-voice choir, composed of singers from 21 local churches, will offer special song service at the nightly prayer meetings.

Several church groups will meet simultaneously with the convention sessions each day. Important among these will be the committee on recommendations. It will meet at Memorial Hall, passing on all resolutions and church proposals before submission to the general session.

Missionary breakfasts at Webster Hall will be a feature of the convention. A reunion dinner, marking the centennial convention held here in 1909, will be held Saturday night at Fort Pitt Hotel.

CHANGE TO BE DEBATED

The first business will begin tomorrow. A report from a special committee appointed to study the advisability of making the convention legislative instead of advisory in its functions is expected to draw debate. A second move to be proposed will be separating the board of church extension and the board of benevolence from the missionary society.

The state convention held its business session yesterday. The Rev. George W. Buckner, of Canonsburg, was elected president. Other officers named were:

Vice presidents, the Rev. S. S. Lappin, Pittsburgh, and George Raines, Philipsburg; secretary and superintendent, the Rev. H. A. Denton, Pittsburgh; treasurer S. R. Smith; and directors: C. F. Nettrour, Bellevue; the Rev. Robert L. Porter, Waynesburg; the Rev. Byron Mahan, Charleroi; the Rev. Floyd H. Randall, Sayre, and the Rev. Leslie Moody, Berwick.

Morning and afternoon sessions were held in Memorial Hall today by the National Evangelical Association, composed of ministers and singers.

77 TEACHERS ON STRIKE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Teachers' strikes are troubling directors of Pennsylvania's public school system again.

Demanding payment of at least four months of their 11 months' back salaries, 67 teachers in Jessup's five schools refused to conduct their classes today, and 10 of the 18 teachers in the Pringle Borough School are on strike for a similar reason.

The Jessup Teachers' Association notified the borough school officials a month ago they would stop teaching today if their demands were not met. They received two months of the overdue pay last week after a state appropriation was made in advance. About $100,000 remains unpaid.

Pringle teachers protest the action of the borough school board in voting to pay them only three of the six to 10 months' overdue salaries. They assert the board previously promised to pay them five months' money.

'Auto Upsets, Party Rights It, Speeds On

Four Negroes, two men and two women, tossed from an automobile when it struck a safety zone at Baum boulevard and Whitfield street, righted the machine early today and sped away, according to an East End police report. None of the occupants of the machine was believed to have been injured.

Confesses Hoax

BETTY REPKO

Maid Repko, 19, reported by detectives to have confessed that her story of the robbery of her Squirrel Hill employer's home was a hoax—to cover up her theft of money and jewelry to pay a dentist bill and to send to her destitute family in Calumet, Pa. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MAID ADMITS BANDIT HOAX, LOSES JOB

In Morals Court this morning, she admitted she stole $50 from Irwin M. Hinkes, of 5529 Jackson street, where she was employed, and then told police that two strange men had held her up and ransacked the house.

Hinkes refused to prosecute, explaining that in every other way her conduct had been excellent. Her father is an unemployed coal miner with seven children.

City detectives doubted her story when they found jewelry and valuables in other parts of the house untouched. She explained that she discovered the $50 in a suit belonging to Hinkes hanging in a third floor cupboard while cleaning and could not resist taking it.

She hid the money in her trunk and concocted her story of the robbery, she said. One of the men, she told police, handed her a note reading "Keep quiet or you will lose your job."

'BOASTER' HELD IN STABBING

Zellous Woods, 30, Negro, of 1536 Webster avenue, who, according to an inquest witness, boasted that when he went to jail he'd "go for something," was held on a charge of murder today by a Coroner's jury. The inquiry was into the fatal stabbing of Edward C. McNamara, 22, of 1910 Webster avenue, September 24.

Resentment over an insult to McNamara's sister, Mary Rita, 17, it was testified, was the cause of the trouble which led to the stabbing. Beatrice Powell, Negro, of 1542 Webster avenue, said she heard Woods boast in a Webster avenue cabaret after the killing:

"When I go to jail I'll go for something."

CRIPPLE SLAYS YEGG, ROUTS 2

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—James M. Davis, 65, has but one hand, but he shoots straight.

Forced to accompany three alleged safe blowers into the office for which he is night watchman, he seized a pistol from the top of a desk last night and began to fire. One of the intruders fired back, wounding Davis twice. Davis tried to fire again, but his weapon jammed.

Leaping across the room he seized another weapon and began the fight all over again, this time with greater success. Three bullets struck his adversary, and he fell dead. The police said they identified him as James Hussey, 59, an ex-convict. A few minutes afterward Davis learned that it may be danger to shoot a safeblower. A policeman said:

"If you had shot just two inches higher, you'd have been a dead man."

As he spoke he drew a small bottle from the upper vest pocket of the slain man—just two inches above his wounds.

MORTGAGE RATE CUT URGED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The assertion that a reduction of 1 per cent in mortgage interest rates would mean as much to home owners as a 30 per cent reduction in taxes, was expressed yesterday by L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh.

The former president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards made his assertion before a convention of home builders and real estate developers gathered from a dozen states. He said:

"Federal activity in the home-financing field probably will result in lower interest rates."

Stevenson coupled his statement with a prediction that an upturn in general business is fast approaching. He said:

"We in this business were all wrong in the past in expecting a man who required 12 or 15 years to save the down payment for his home to pay off his mortgage in four or five years. He couldn't do it and that is one of the things that added to our present chaos."

FORMER HOTEL MAN BURIED

Jacob C. Hazelbaker, of 5501 Center avenue, who lost $136,000 to a gang of international confidence men in 1928 in a horse race swindle, was buried today near his birthplace at Fayette City. The former proprietor of the Atlas Hotel, Sixth avenue, died Saturday. The swindle was worked on Hazelbaker as he was returning from Europe. The swindlers met him aboard ship and told him they had won a huge sum on a horse race and needed an equal amount to collect the wager. Mr. Hazelbaker volunteered to aid them, tendering his check for $136,000. When the check cleared they disappeared with the money.

Mr. Hazelbaker was born in Fayette County in 1872, and shortly before his death was elected vice president of the General Braddock Brewery, at Braddock.

PINCHOT URGES BOND ISSUE AID

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today continued his drive for approval of the $25,000,000 state-expense bond issue at the November election, conferring yesterday with representatives of various state organizations.

The conference, one of a series, was devoted to discussion of plans to enlist state-wide support of voters. The amendment is one of 12 to be voted on next month. Legislation already enacted appropriates $20,000,000 of the bond issue proceeds for state aid to those out of work and $5,000,000 to state aided colleges and hospitals.

Those attending yesterday's conference included John F. Casey and Dr. Walter Donaldson, Pittsburgh; Arthur Dunham, Public Charities Association; John W. Hallock, University of Pittsburgh; John Phillips, Pennsylvania Federation of Labor; Mrs. Henry Reuwer, Federation of Catholic Women and Miss Jessie Turnbull, State Hospital Association.

State Blind Favor Pension Amendment

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—After a spirited debate over the effects of the amendment, representatives of the blind today decided to continue their campaign for revision of the Constitution to permit state pensions to the blind.

Charges that "politics" may have figured in sudden opposition to the amendment, to be voted on next month, were made by United States Representative Matthew A. Dunn, who is blind.

Envoy Not to Appear Before Nazi Probers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(INS.)—International diplomatic practice will prevent Dr. Hans Luther, the German ambassador, from accepting any invitation to testify before a Congressional committee concerning alleged Nazi propaganda in this country, a spokesman of the German Embassy said today.

Representative Dickstein, (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, had announced he planned to ask the Ambassador to testify at his committee's investigation.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Youngsters Should Not Limit Selves to One Companion

Should youngsters of 16 "go steady?"

Should they regard their "romance" as seriously as oldsters of 26; demand the same "faithfulness" of each other?

Don't laugh! These questions are plenty important to thousands of young citizens. "Puppy Love" may seem a joke to you—but it's not, to them.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am a girl of 16. For about two months I have been going steady with a fellow who is 19. I like him a lot, and he appears to like me, and has said that he does. But here's the trouble:

I got sick and had to go to the hospital, and while I was there he went out with another girl several times.

I was very much hurt by this, and when I said something to him about it he claimed to me that he doesn't really like this girl, but just went out with her because he didn't want to stay home. He has promised not to see her again if I will continue to go with him.

Now I am not sure that he will keep his promise. What shall I do? Shall I believe him and give him another chance? I don't know whether to trust him or not. I like him a lot, but don't you think it was wrong for him to take her out, when he had been going with me?

BOOTS.

FOLLOW HIS EXAMPLE

Should you keep on seeing him?

Of course you should. He has committed no crime, youngster. Instead, he has done the healthy, normal thing by seeking other friends. And if you're wise, you'll follow his example. For nothing could hurt your life worse than to limit yourself now to just one companion.

Yes, I know. You feel grown up, and the chances are that you look grown up. But the truth is that you're not grown up, either of you.

You're both still growing, though you may not realize it, or be willing now to admit it. But even if you can kid yourselves, you can't kid old mother nature, who is still busy building both your bodies and your minds. And things that are growing are things that are changing.

MAKE FRIENDS

Just now you both need lots of friends and fun and freedom—and if you try to tie yourselves down, you'll be really cheating yourselves. If you try to be too serious before you are ready for the serious business and the big responsibilities of grown-up living, you'll lose all the fun of being young.

Just now, you think this boy is your Big Moment; but five years from now he may be the last person on earth you'd be interested in.

So just be good friends, honey, and don't pair off. Go in for games and picnics with the other young folks. Study and learn all you can, so you'll be ready, when you are grown up, for wide, rich, happy living. Don't double-cross yourself by taking on grown-up responsibilities and shackles before you're ready for 'em.

Extent of Human Gullibility Proves Startling to Fay King

By FAY KING.

It seems incredible that anyone could be so foolish as to withdraw a large sum of money from a bank and carry it to a stranger who has promised to double the sum by magic.

Yet an elderly woman of means says she did that very thing and lost her money, of course.

I can hardly believe it of the gypsy or the gyped!

I have had some pleasant talks with gypsies, but I never have my fortune told by anyone. Once when I was talking to a gypsy woman, she began telling my fortune and I stopped her. It turned out she liked the beads I was wearing and had hoped I would pay with them instead of money. I gave them to her anyway.

Madge Enlists Aid of Her Friend Lillian

I need not to have worried about Hugh's reaction to my telephone conversation with Philip Veritzen. The sibilant breath that had escaped him at my touch of raillery in speaking to the great producer remained the only surface indication of the jealous disquiet which I knew was his. When I rose from the chair by the telephone, he was at my side with his usual careful courtesy.

"I suppose there is no use asking you to stay longer," he said, "if you are to be home within ten minutes."

"No, I must go at once," I said, a little nervously.

"You ought not to drive alone with that ankle."

"What nonsense! That little distance! I shall be perfectly all right."

"I yield for the moment," he told me, and I wondered what he meant by the odd phrasing. I did not find out until I was driving rapidly down the road toward home, when a glance in my mirror showed Hugh in a roadster following me, keeping as far away as possible without not losing sight of me.

I did not know whether to be angry or grateful for this care, but when, as I neared my own gate, another glance into the mirror showed me that Hugh was in the act of turning his car back toward The Larches, gratitude prevailed.

YOUNGSTERS BUSY

The farm was much as I had left it. The decorations perhaps were a little more advanced, while the decorators appeared to have amicably settled their difficulties. In fact, Lillian and Harry Underwood were the only two adults left, Dicky not having returned, for which I was thankful. It gave me a chance to prepare for what I feared might be a trying hour with my temperamental husband.

Junior and Roderick were registering extreme bustle and industry, however, scuttling about as excitedly as ants and vociferously demanding advice and admiring comment upon the festoon of laurel for the stairway, which they were twining together under Lillian's watchful eye.

"Oh, Mums! Oh, Auntie Madge! Look it!" The two boyish voices rose simulaneously, as my young son and Dicky's orphaned youngest nephew, now being raised as brothers, dashed across the room at my entrance, dragging lengths of twined laurel and oak leaves behind them.

"And how that stair rope will look after it's been dragged all over this house!" Lillian interrupted, softening the words with a warning smile. "Come back here, you young rascals, and let's get this finished. Harry, please be an angel and measure it again, to see how much more we have to make."

ASKS LILLIAN'S HELP

She finished the sentence thus abruptly, I knew, in obedience to the little private signal I had given her. When her big husband comprehensively had marshalled the two youngster into the hall again, she came over to me and we slipped unobtrusively into the library.

"What's up? Need the shock troops?"

"Yes, I do, badly," I answered, smiling ruefully. "Where is Mother Graham?"

"In the nursery, I think, just now, giving Katrina some sage advice as to the proper method of bringing up Baby Faith."

"She'll be safe for a minute or two, then," I said thankfully. "She could not see or hear the car come in from that side of the house. But you will have to be ready to help me out. Philip Veritzen is going to telephone in a minute or two, and I'm going to be very much surprised, and ask him to come to dinner. If Mother Graham is around, do use your Machiavellian arts to make her believe that she is inspiring if not suggesting the invitation."

"Just like that!" Lillian mocked airily. "I'll do my best, however. But tell me what happened while you were gone, or I'll be as dead as the well-known cat. Curiosity, you know, was the contributing cause in that tragedy."

I told her, briefly, swiftly, of my telephone interview with Avis Arlen and my trip to see her at Patchogue. I had barely finished, omitting any mention of my encounter with Dicky, when the telephone rang.

Household Hints

To prevent salted beef being too salty when cooked, leave it standing in the water in which it was cooked until quite cold. The vegetables cooked with it will then absorb most of the salt, and the meat will be more palatable.

If cream puffs are taken out of the oven too soon and fall, do not be disconsolate. Just put them back in the oven again and they will puff up and show you that all they needed was more cooking.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Veils

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—If a girl wears a veil is it necessary to have her father give her in marriage? My father refuses to do this, and I would like to wear a veil.

2—Is it necessary to have a reception just because you wear a veil, or would it be proper for the wedding party of four to go directly to supper, as we intend to do?

3—Is it necessary to have invitations printed or can we do without them? F.

1—Usually it isn't required that a girl be given in marriage unless she wishes to have this part of the ceremony included. Plan to have a talk with the minister who is to perform the ceremony and ask him about this. It isn't the fact that you are planning to wear a veil that is the answer, but whether or not your denomination demands this part of the ceremony.

2—It is not at all necessary to have a reception, even if you have the most formal of weddings and wear the bridal veil.

3—If you are having only a few people to your wedding, it is not at all necessary to have engraved invitations. Your mother may write a note of invitation, or, if this is not convenient, you may write the note of invitation yourself.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few draps of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The One and Only Lead

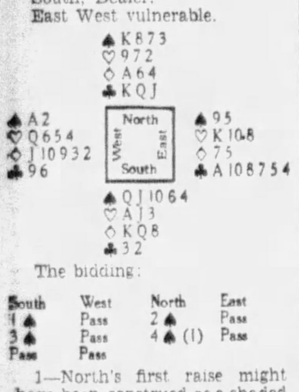
Most bridge players are capable of intelligent and accurate analysis. If they were not, they would not be bridge players; they would be unable to play the game, and in all likelihood they would not want to play it. But among all these thinking men and women who play bridge, only a few are great; and the superiority of these few lies in the fact that their analysis is complete, whereas that of the rank and file is usually superficial.

When playing the defense it is not sufficient that we study the situation, determine the suit we should lead, and let it go at that. Very often there is one, and only one, card of that suit which it is proper to play; and we should always try to picture the possible holdings of that suit in the closed hands—those of declarer and of our partner—and on that basis deal with the situation as though it were a double-dummy problem.

Today's hand:

South, Dealer.

East West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠ (1)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North's first raise might have been construed as a shaded raise; since he had in fact better than the minimum requirements for a single raise, he was easily justified in bidding 4 spades.

West opened the club 9, hoping, because he held the spade Ace, that he might establish a ruff for his small spade. North (Dummy) played the Knave, and East won the trick with his Ace.

East decided that it was too risky to assume that West's club lead was a singleton; it seemed to him that a better chance of defeating the contract was to play for the Ace-Queen or Ace-Knave of hearts in West's hand, or for the Queen of hearts and the spade Ace in West's hand, so that by winning three heart tricks or two hearts and one spade East and West could acquire the four tricks they needed. He therefore determined to play a heart next; but he did not stop thinking there. He delved further into the possible variations of play. If West had the heart Ace, together with one of the other two outstanding honors, any heart East played would have the same effect; but if declarer had the Ace-Knave and West the Queen, it would be necessary to lead the heart 10, thus establishing the King-8 as a tenace over Dummy's 9-7 on the second round. To the second trick East therefore led his heart 10.

He reaped the just reward of sound thought. South covered with the heart Knave, West won the Queen, and a heart return set up a sure trick for East, which was cashed immediately after West took the Ace of trumps, setting the contract one trick. Once again careful play had been justified when hasty, incomplete analysis would have failed.

Neuritis Is Confused With Other Ailments

Recently I told you about neuralgia and the common mistake made in using that word to identify various kinds of pain. It was pointed out that neuralgia is often confused with neuritis, rheumatism and arthritis. To make clear the distinction, it will be necessary to go somewhat into detail about neuritis.

Dr. Copeland

As its name implies, neuritis is an inflammation of of a nerve. One nerve or many nerves may be involved. The inflammation may be the result of some constitutional disease, an infection, exposure to cold or a blow. It is often traced to a localized infection somewhere in the body, such as diseased and infected teeth, tonsils, adenoids, gallbladder, appendix, or other structure of the body. Constipation and inflammation of the intestines are other causes that must not be overlooked.

Neuritis may occur as a complication of some infectious disease. For example, it may follow diphtheria, typhoid fever, pneumonia, rheumatism, tuberculosis or influenza. It is also found in sufferers from the effects of chronic alcoholism, in lead workers, painters and in persons who follow other occupations where the workers are exposed to chemical poisons.

The victim of neuritis complains of severe pain. This pain may be in the neck, face, shoulders, arms, hands or legs. As a rule, the pain is worse at night and is aggravated by motion and damp weather. The pain may be so severe as to make sleep impossible.

In an effort to control the pain and obtain relief, the sufferer from neuritis resorts to patent medicines, salves and every conceivable concoction recommended to him by well-meaning friends. If any relief is found from this advice it is of a temporary nature and rarely, if ever, results in a complete cure. Cure can only be obtained when the underlying cause is determined and removed.

As I have said, neuritis may result from diseased and infected teeth. I am confident the average sufferer from neuritis would benefit by a visit to the dentist and doctor. Diseased teeth should be removed and all physical defects and infections cured before permanent relief from neuritis can be expected.

If neuritis is the result of exposure to lead or other irritating chemicals, it is advisable to change the occupation. In addition, it is necessary to correct all faulty habits and improve the personal hygiene.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of simple but nourishing food, regular eating hours, sufficient hours of sleep, fresh air and sunshine. Do not neglect neuritis and heed the first pain which is a danger signal that must not be overlooked.

There'll be a New Deal for local professional football when the Pittsburgh Pirates take the field against the Cincinnati Reds in the final night professional game of the season at Forbes Field tonight. Coach Douds will start his first game of the season at tackle; Westfall will be at quarterback; Ted Dailey, of Pitt, at left end, in place of Paul Moss; Critchfield at left guard and Engebretser, left tackle. Following tonight's game, the locals will rest up for their first contest abroad, against Green Bay on Sunday. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture of the new lineup.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Uniform Baseball in Sight. Compromise Gains Favor. Tribute to Brave Pilot.

HAPPY MEDIUM SEEN IN FOUR-PLY COVER

Having had in the recent World Series their best opportunity of the year to study the difference between the two types of baseballs in use in the National and American leagues, several of the club owners in the big show are said to have been won over to the idea of a uniform ball for next year. Whether or not enough votes can be mustered to put it through may not be known until the annual meetings are held in December, but there is no doubt that a big gain in favor has been made by the proposal that the two circuits use the same kind of sphere and thus put an end to the present absurd situation, which shows a lively ball in use in the Harridge organization and a deadened pill in play in John A. Heydler's loop.

John A. Heydler

The general opinion is that the American League ball is too lively and the National League ball is too dead. How to bring about the adoption of a uniform pellet has been a problem, however, inasmuch as neither league is willing to give in and consent to use the other's ball. But it is now rumored that the compromise suggestion first offered by the Sun-Telegraph is winning supporters and may prove the solution.

The difference between the two types of baseball is in the thickness of the cover. The cover on the National League ball is of five-ply leather, tending to deadness. The cover on the American League ball is of three-ply leather, tending to liveliness. It would settle the whole thing, provide an ideal uniform ball, and eliminate the unsatisfactory features of both present spheres, if each league would make a concession and consent to a happy medium in the adoption of a four-ply cover. It is not implorable that an agreement of that nature will eventually be reached.

COLLINS RANKS McKECHNIE NEXT TO MACK

In denying that the owners of the Boston American League club had selected any of the numerous men reported as likely to succeed the released Marty McManus as manager of the Red Sox next year, Eddie Collins took occasion to pay a high tribute to Bill McKechnie. The Wilkinsburg man, though under a new five-year contract to pilot the Braves, had been mentioned in connection with the Red Sox vacancy. "That's too good to be true," said Collins. "I'd rank McKechnie right after Connie Mack."

Collins insists that no choice has been made and that it's still an open question, but he admits that the owners are considering three former managers and one man who still is a manager in the major leagues; also that one of the men under consideration is a National Leaguer. Collins is strong for trades. He believes it is time for the American League to open up and have a new deal, saying that the league ought to shuffle players around a bit, cut loose, and get new faces on the various clubs to create greater interest.

INDIANS END LONG HUNT FOR SOUTHPAW

There is at least one worry off the minds of Walter Johnson and the Cleveland fans as they look back on the closing days of the 1933 season and start to build up new hopes for 1934. They believe that at last they have a serviceable left-hand pitcher. If you don't know what that means to Cleveland, you may get an idea from the fact that when Thornton Lee was tried out near the close of the recent campaign it was the first time in three years that the Indians had sent a southpaw into a championship game. Good left-handers have been scarce everywhere, but in Cleveland it was a famine.

Walter Johnson

Lee, who was with Toledo this year, has been the Indians' property for three years. He was brought up from New Orleans, but was slow to develop. Johnson thinks he is ripe now, after a season under Steve O'Neill at Toledo, by no means a Carl Hubbell or a Lefty Grove, but appearing to have the makings of the best left-hander the Cleveland club has owned since Joe Shaute was in his prime for the Indians. Lee is counted on to be a starter next year.

FINAL NIGHT GAME FOR LOCAL GRID PROS

Pittsburgh's final National League professional football game by artificial light is on the bills for tonight, when the Pirates meet the Cincinnati team, another newcomer in the circuit this season, at Forbes Field. The Dukes still have three Friday night games to play here with Western Maryland, Detroit and Westminster, but tonight's tilt will be the closing nocturnal number for the local pros. During the remainder of the season Jap Douds will try to get his men accustomed to playing in daylight.

However, the game tonight will not be the final appearance of the Pirates at home. Provided it is made legal by the voters on election day next month, the Rooneys will introduce Sunday professional sports in Pittsburgh with a big league game on November 12 against Red Cagle's powerful Brooklyn team, which includes the great Benny Friedman and other famous stars. This should serve to make local sports fans keep in mind the fact that they have an important duty to perform on Tuesday, November 7. For Pittsburgh to have the Sunday baseball and football enjoyed by other large cities, barring those in Pennsylvania, a majority vote is required, and the only way to make it safe and certain is not to be a stay-at-home on election day. Get out and vote for Sunday sports.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FAR FROM RECORD

Out on the Pacific Coast, they're making a big fuss over the winning streak of the Southern California football team, which has now been stretched to 22 straight games, the longest in Trojan history, and the fans are nervous and tense over each succeeding contest this year, fearing that a defeat may halt the gridders of Howard Jones before they can hang up a record. But they have started to worry several years too soon. The Trojans still are miles and miles from the best national collegiate marks.

Howard Jones

Michigan tops the list with a run of 56 games from 1901 to 1905 without a defeat. The only interruption to a string of consecutive victories was a tie after 29 successive wins. When Gil Dobie was at Washington, his teams were undefeated in 53 straight engagements. There were three ties, and the longest string of triumphs uninterrupted was 32. Andy Smith's California Bears rolled up 54 games without a defeat from 1920 to 1924, though they were tied four times. Penn put together a chain of 34 consecutive victories from 1894 to 1896. Harvard ran off 31 without a loss from 1912 to 1915, though tied twice. Even Pitt has beaten Southern California's present total, as after Pop Warner took charge in 1915 the Panthers piled up 30 straight wins in four years before they were stopped in a post-season game.

XAVIER GAME A TOUGH ONE - HARPSTER

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach. All-America Quarterback, 1928.

And now, at Carnegie Tech, we come to a serious point in our schedule. Next Saturday we play Xavier at Cincinnati, and, naturally, after beating Temple by a 25-0 score last Saturday, the inclination of the fans is to regard this game in the nature of a setup.

Howard Harpster

Xavier has no big name in the football realm, and it has been said that this is a "breather" for Tech before its game with Notre Dame here one week from Saturday.

I hope the players at Tech do not get this impression. I am trying my best to keep them from thinking along these lines.

PSYCHOLOGY FACTOR

A peculiar psychology goes along with football. The top-heavy favorite generally feels the sting of its whip; the little-considered underdog reaps its smiles.

Last Saturday, we were the underdogs against Temple, West Virginia Wesleyan was an underdog against New York University and Kansas against Notre Dame. If you remember the scores, you know what happened. Wesleyan beat the Violets by a field goal, Kansas outplayed Notre Dame and held the vaunted Irish to a scoreless tie and Tech ran up four touchdowns on Pop Warner's team.

This week, in our game, Xavier is the underdog. We will get little, if any credit, if we win, and it will be a good joke on us if we lose. I happen to know that Xavier is pointing to this game, and that it has some mighty good fotball players in its lineup. Only by taking the game in our stride and retaining the same fighting spirit that we showed, especially in the line, against Temple, can we hope to keep from joining the ranks of the deflated also-rans.

MUST RETAIN FIGHT

Success is a poor tonic for football teams. Generally speaking, a good going-over one Saturday is the best build-up for a scrappy fight the following week. Overconfidence has beaten more football teams than under-confidence, and it always will be so.

So don't be surprised if we have the fight of our lives on our hands next Saturday, unless our players remain level-headed and keep their feet on the ground following their fine victory in the opening game. Xavier held Tech to a 15-0 score last year.

Harridge Criticizes Moran for Action On Manush

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 11.—(AP.)—William Harridge, president of the American League, said cuts in salaries of players and reduction in overhead would be necessary if the owners are to stay "out of the red" next season.

He also criticized the action of Umpire Charley Moran in banishing Heinie Manush, of the Senators from the fourth game of the recent World Series with the New York Giants. He said:

"Umpire Moran ruled too severely when he ordered Manush out of the game. Manush didn't commit anything so flagrant as to cause his removal in such an important, short series, where a win or a loss means so much to the players and club owners. Umpire Moran should have put the matter up to Judge Landis and permitted him to rule after the game."

Seneca credits him with the authorship of 4,000 books, but, as volumes in those days were pamphlets of two and three pages, it is safe to reduce the number of books written by Didymus to 400, to conform with our modern idea.

A couple of new tackles, a change in one starting guard and a new starting end and quarterback will be offered the fans as the Pittsburgh Pirates play their final night game at home in the National Professional League at Forbes Field tonight, with the kickoff set for 8:30.

The new tackles will be Coach Jap Douds, making his first start of the season as a player, and Engebretser. Ted Dailey, formerly of Pitt, displaces Paul Moss, last year's all-America terminal from Purdue, at left end, and Critchfield will get the the call at guard, where Letsinger formerly held forth.

WESTFALL AT QUARTER

Edgar Westfall, former Ohio Wesleyan star, who was purchased from the Boston Redskins last week, will start at quarterback, in place of Shaffer, who has been released along with Letsinger, Jim Tanguay, the halfback, and Kottler, another quarterback, to get the club under the player limit of 22.

Ray Kemp, of Cecil, Pa., star Negro tackle of the Pirates, formerly of Duquesne University, was given his release today. He may join the Philadelphia club, with which he is dickering. Kemp substituted for Artman, of Stanford, througfih most of the first two games and played fine football. His release came as considerable of a surprise.

In tackling the Reds the Pirates for the first time meet a team which like itself is new in the league. They appear to be evenly matched, the Pirates having won by a single point from the Chicago Cardinals a few weeks ago, while the Cards were able to defeat Cincinnati by only 3-0 last Sunday. The Reds have lost both of their starts, while the Pirates have lost two and won one.

After tonight's game, the Pirates will rest until time to leave for Green Bay, Wis., where they meet the Packers next Sunday.

CORZINE REAL STAR

Seaman Squires, of Rice Institute, Texas, is said to be the most dangerous man in the Cincinnati backfield. He is a triple threat performer.

Lester Corzine, the fullback, is the former Davis and Elkins star, who was the sensation of the North-South post-season game at Baltimore last year.

Mike Palm, assistant coach and sub-quarterback, is the old Penn State luminary, who has had a decade of professional experience.

Corzine was selected as fullback on the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph all-district, all-star eleven last year. He was rated by Cam Henderson, the Davis-Elkins coach, as one of the most versatile and brilliant gridders ever to come under his tutelage.

GIANTS SEEK PEP MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The World Series clamor died away as Bill Terry, with a new contract to manage the world champion Giants for five years tucked away in his pocket, left with Mrs. Terry and their son, Bill, Jr., for an automobile trip to Niagara Falls and the World's Fair in Chicago before returning home to Memphis, Tenn.

Battles Paces Pro Loop Backs

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Cliff Battles, former West Virginia Wesleyan back, who toils now for the Boston Redskins, is setting a sensational pace for National Professional Football League backs.

In four games he has gained 413 yards, twice as much ground as any other back in the league, and an average of eight yards per try.

Glenn Presnell, of Portsmouth, is the leading scorer, with two touchdowns, three points after touchdown and two field goals, for 21 points. Arnold Herber, of Green Bay, leads the passers with 20 completions in 44 attempts, for a gain of 281 yards.

HUBBELL NAMED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

KLEIN, BERGER TRAIL HURLER IN POLL

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The selection of Carl Hubbell as the National League's most valuable player for 1933 will bring few squawks from John Heydler's circuit and absolutely none at all from the Washington Senators, champions of the American League.

By almost unanimous consent, the slender southpaw pitching ace of the World Champion New York Giants was adjudged most valuable to his team in balloting by a committee of eight members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. The results of the poll were announced yesterday by Denman Thompson, of the Washingtgon Star, committee chairman.

POLLS 77 VOTES

Hubbell polled 77 points out of a maximum possible total of 80 and won out by decisive margins from Chuck Klein and Wally Berger, slugging outfielders of the Phillies and Boston Braves, respectively.

For several years Hubbell has been rated one of the National loop's most effective hurlers, but the lean master of the screwball never before enjoyed so sensational a season as he did this year.

Hubbell's selection marks the first time a pitcher has gained the award since 1924, when Dazzy Vance, then of Brooklyn, was the winner. No member of the Giants has been named since Larry Doyle won the old Chalmers award in 1912.

KLEIN IS SECOND

Back of Hubbell in this year's balloting finished Klein with 48 points, followed by Berger with 44. Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, was fourth with 35, with Pepper Martin, of the Cardinals, fifth at 31.

The complete results of the voting:

ILLINOIS FACES BIG GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Delving a little deeper into facts, it is plain to see that something more than the opening Conference game will be behind the incentive for victory Saturday when Illinois and Wisconsin meet at Champaign as the feature of the Illini's homecoming week-end.

Those who relegated the two "mystery teams" of the Conference to the second division in their pre-season predictions are beginning to retract as both teams showed up well in their preliminary encounters and the victor Saturday undoubtedly will be entitled to recognition as a first rate title contender.

A comparison of the two teams points to a close game. Wisconsin, after a rather hectic training season, opened against Marquette and beat the reputedly powerful Milwaukeeans, 19 to 0.

Coach Bob Zuppke's fighting Illini opened the season with a victory over Drake, which failed to reveal a great deal about the team. But last Saturday they knocked over Washington U., 21 to 6 in fine style.

The amateur boxers battled through the eight bouts on the program of the Carnegie Moose amateur show last night with only one knockout being scored.

NAVY PERFECTS PASSING FOR PITT FRAY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11.—Coach Rip Miller, of the Navy football team, will give his Middies their final rough work this afternoon preparatory to the game with Pitt in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Yesterday, the Sailors concentrated on their aerial game, paying some attention to the defense Miller has figured out for use against the Pitt power plays. Gordon Chung-Hoon and Red Bamberger spent considerable time in forward passing, with several members of the Middie cast on the receiving end.

The Sailors will depart tomorrow night for the scene of the battle, which looms as the most important contest of the day in the East.

Eastern Briefs

ITHACA, N. Y.—A light rain led Coach Gil Dobie to curtail Cornell's workout for the Michigan game. Dobie called off a scheduled scrimmage for the first and second teams against the scrubs, but the squad had plenty of opportunity to drill on handling a slippery ball.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Coach Gar Davidson looked ahead to the Illinois game at Cleveland next week and sent his Army squad through a long, gruelling defensive scrimmage against Illinois plays as put on by the scrubs yesterday.

PRINCETON, N. J.—With another "Little Three" team, Williams, next to be faced, Head Coach Fritz Crisler experimented with Princeton backfield combinations, using three newcomers, Paul Pauk, Les Kaufman and Bill Halton, in one first-string backfield.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Concentrating on the attack, Coach Andy Kerr yesterday had his Colgate Red Raiders drilling on plays which will be used against Rutgers. In a scrimmage with the second team, Charley Soleau, quarterback, broke through the line and dashed 80 yards to a touchdown.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale labored hard to prepare for the Washington and Lee game with three varsity players, Bob Lassiter, Ed. Nichols and Marting, out with colds or minor injuries.

PHILADELPHIA.—Penn's freshmen just about held their own with the varsity in the final scrimmage before the Red and Blue's opening game with Franklin and Marshall and Head Coach Harvey Harman was obviously displeased. Even Don Kellett, star Penn ball carrier, was unable to get far past the line of scrimmage.

HANOVER, N. H.—Dartmouth has lost the services of quarterback Sammy Fishman for an indefinite period. An X-ray examination revealed a cracked bone in Fishman's ankle. A similar hurt kept him on the sidelines for several games last season. Jake Slanzie substituted for him yesterday to fill out the backfield, comprised otherwise of Bill Clark, Jack Kenny and Dave Hedges.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Harvard's attack worked well yesterday in a 40-minute scrimmage with the scrubs, the varsity scoring three times from the 25-yard line. The Crimson today will wind up preparations for Saturday's game with New Hampshire.

Fairmont Foxhound Wins First Award

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 11.—Brady Carrothers' Bob White, a foxhound, took first honors as best dog and also best hound at the bench show which opened the annual field trials here yesterday.

Typical of the last few years were some of the results of the games played last Saturday. Upsets in the dope were evident immediately.

Eddie Casey

Perhaps the most surprising result of the day was the defeat of Pop Warner's Temple aggregation. I think everyone figured the wily Pop would take over Carnegie Tech, and it is certain that no one expected the score to be what it was. Undoubtedly Temple's new offense has not been thoroughly assimilated by the players as yet. Any new system of play requires weeks to master, and sometimes more than one football season. I believe that Temple still will get going, and that it will cause plenty of trouble.

Yale had a close call with Maine in its first game, but apparently this is to be a typical Yale team: a slow starter, but a strong finisher.

The outstanding game in the East this week-end will be that between Pittsburgh and the Navy. This will be a football game well worth watching. To date Pittsburgh has not approached the form of 1932, and the Navy has improved greatly. For both teams it is a pivotal game. A win for the Navy would be the greatest tonic in the world for the Midshipmen. A win for Pittsburgh would be a great morale-builder for the Panthers. No question but what both teams will make every effort to annex this one. I am inclined toward Pitt, but it will be close and may go either way.

Luke Carney, local boxing manager, was tossed out of bed by an earthquake—or was it a fire?—in Los Angeles the other night, but his two fighters, the Zivic brothers, Eddie and Fritzie, slept soundly through it all and didn't know the tremors had occurred . . . Are their nerves better than Luke's? . . . Fritzie and Eddie make their California debuts tomorrow night, when Eddie boxes Petey Gardenis and Fritzie meets Jimmy Torres in six-rounders at Pasadena . . . On October 17, both appear at Ontario, Cal., for Jack Perry, former local welterweight, against opponents to be selected, and two nights later they will show at Bakersfield.

Charley Schons, former local amateur middleweight boxer, now is chief of police at McDonald, Pa . . . After a break of 16 years, Cornell and Michigan resume football relations at Ann Arbor next Saturday . . . Michigan won their last game, in 1917, by the decisive score of 42-0, but Cornell holds the edge in their series, which dates back to 1889, by a margin of 11 victories against four defeats.

Back in 1924, when the Washington Senators defeated the New York Giants, four games to three, in the World Series, the Senators had a team batting average of .246 against a mark of .214 in last week's losing series of five games . . . The Giants of 1924 batted .261 against .267 this year . . . Goose Goslin batted .344 in the winning series and only .250 last week . . . Sam Rice batted .207 in '24 and made one hit in one time at bat as a pinch hitter in the latest scramble . . . Ossie Bluege hit .192 and .125 in the two series . . . Of the Giants in the two series, Bill Terry hit .429 and .273, in that order, and Travis Jackson failed to get a hit in seven times up in '24 and this year got four hits for a .222 mark.

Tough luck dogged the tracks of the radio announcers at the recent World Series . . . With Graham MacNamee and Ted Husin barred by Commissioner Landis from broadcasting the play-by-play story, the assignment fell to Fred Hoey, of Boston, and Red Manning, of Cleveland . . . Hoey, a great favorite in Boston, where he has been broadcasting baseball games for years, drew the first game, in New York, and lost his voice after three and one-half innings, due to the necessity of outshouting the crowd with no booth provided.

When Hoey went off the air suddenly, the New England fans thought he had been taken off and protested loudly in telephone calls and telegrams to newspapers and radio stations . . . Frank Laux, of St. Louis, grew husky and Roger Baker, of Buffalo, developed a cold . . . Gunnar Wilg, of Rochester, N. Y., was called home by the serious illness of his wife and the death of a newly-born baby . . . Manning alone escaped the jinx . . . Just what this string of unforeseen circumstances will bring in the way of handling the next World Series remains to be seen.—HARRY KECK.

CITY LEAGUERS AMONG SCHOOLS UNDEFEATED

By JULIUS LEVIN

With the scholastic football season only three weeks old, just 15 schools in Western Pennsylvania boast records that are free from defeats or tie games.

Included among the schools boasting clean slates for the season to date are two members of the City League, three members of the class AA division, only six contenders in the class A chase and four in the class B group.

Elizabeth High School, coached by Russell Byler, shows the best record of the district schools with five successive victories over class B opponents.

WIN FOUR GAMES

Jeannette and New Castle, two of the three schools which shared the class AA championship last season, and Ambridge and Butler, both making a bid for the class A crown, are next in line with four victories apiece.

New Kensington, entered in the double A race; Burgettstown, Union, California and Monongahela in class A, and Brownsville, Leechburg and South Fayette, members of class B, show three victories to complete the list of undefeated and untied elevens in races not involving the City League schools.

Locally, Perry, defending City League champions, and Westinghouse, the team that Perry defeated in a post-season game to win the crown last fall, are undefeated and untied. Both have scored three successive victories so far this season.

LEADERS TO MEET

Two of the three schools sharing the lead in Section II, of the City League, come together tomorrow afternoon when South Hills opposes Perry at Langley Field. Originally carded for Friday, the game was moved up to avoid a conflict with the South-Fifth Avenue struggle at the same place.

Carrick High, sharing in the triple deadlock for the lead in Section II with Perry and South Hills, will have a chance to keep abreast of its two rivals by clashing with Allegheny at Carrick Friday.

Two stars of the Ambridge High eleven, defending class A champion, will be on the sidelines Saturday when Beaver Falls is met at Ambridge. They are John Matsic, tackle, and Thomas Santry, star halfback. Beaver Falls, eliminated from the race as a result of a scoreless draw with Ellwood City last Saturday, looms as the toughest hurdle in the path of the Bridgers.

Ambridge, unscored on in four successive games and boatsting a string of 13 successive triumphs over the last two seasons, is eager to arrange a game with a class AA and class A school for November 18, the contest to be played in Ambridge. Teams interested in booking the class A champions write Moe Rubenstein, Ambridge High School, or call him at Ambridge.

Dundee to Get Shot at Title

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Lou Brouillard has signed a Boston Garden contract to defend his middleweight title against Vince Dundee, Baltimore veteran, in a 15-round bout here October 30. It will be the first risk the Worcester battler has taken with his title since he gained it from Ben Jeby in a New York summer show.

Brouillard will receive the champion's customary 37½ per cent of the gate receipts and Dundee the contender's 12½ per cent slice.

TERRORS NO SETUPS

W. MARYLAND MAY SURPRISE DUQUESNE

By JESS CARVER

How about this Western Maryland eleven which is to face the unbeaten, untied and unafraid Dukes here Friday night in the fifth game of the season for Night Riders and in what probably will be their fifth victory?

Well, the team is known as the Green Terrors, not terriers, and back in '29 and '30, the Terrors went unbeaten, winning 25 out of 27 games during those two seasons, being tied twice, once by Gettysburg and once by Albright.

The team is coached by a right smart gent, Richard C. Harlow, who never will be anything but Dick to those who know him; a coach who knows the inside, outside and all sides of the game. Twenty-six men who gained either letters or experience on the 1932 eleven are included on this year's squad, but they didn't go so good in their first start, being taken over by St. Thomas.

RECORD UNIMPRESSIVE

Last week, they recovered sufficiently to nail Mt. St. Marys, 7 to 0. Not a very impressive showing, but you never can tell. A 40 to one shot to beat Equipoise. However, although they both claimed the Green Terrors were some pumpkins of a team, neither Coach Layden or his assistant, Joe Bach, took the trouble to scout 'em last week.

But, knowing Mister Harlow and his habit of bringing his teams up for big games, yours truly has a sneaking suspicion that all will not be exactly beer and skittles here Friday night. It may be skittles, but it won't be beer. The opposition the Terrors figure to provide will be a deal stronger than 3.2, which really isn't strong at all.

HELD BUCKNELL

A year ago the Western Marylanders hadn't shown anything over which to break out the redfire when they came up to the game with Bucknell, but the Bisons were lucky to get out with a 14-13 win, which to all practical intents and purposes figures no better than a tie. Then they went on to a draw with Boston College, 20-20, and finally trampled all over Maryland, 39 to 7.

It takes a pair of big, fast and alert tackles to get to first base against a team of the caliber of Duquesne. In Sadusky and Ryscavage, the Terrors have such a pair. Ryscavage was an end, and a good one, when he came to Western Maryland, but Coach Harlow saw in him the possibilities of a great tackle and knocked his terminal ambitions higher than a kite.

The Terror ends figure to know most of the answers too, for Harlow has as his assistant Neil Stahley, former Penn State wing ace, who was a member of the 1929 all-Eastern eleven and one of the best ends Penn State ever turned out.

PITT AT WORK

Things are progressing along a very even tenor at Pitt as Sutherland prepares his Panthers for the Navy. There'll be no changes in the Panthers' lineup, but there will be in the style of play. To date, Pitt has used about four running plays and two passes. Against the Navy, the quarterbacks have been instructed to open up.

Tech, looking forward more to the game next week with Notre Dame than to the letdown affair this week with Xavier, is polishing its running attack. The Tartans will entrain at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon for Cincinnati and will be back in town Sunday morning in time for wheatcakes and sausage at home.

Goal Lines

Brotherly love is exemplified on the Luzerne High School football squad. It boasts 17 brothers. Three members of the Gunari family play on the team. Francis as regular halfback, and John and Victor as substitutes. Richard Morgan is captain and his brothers, Thomas, is a teammate. Both of the Inman brothers, James and Abe, are substitutes, as are Daniel and John Killeen. Joseph and John Saker hold down regular varsity positions. The Perugino brothers, Andy and Nick, play in every game. Frank Vasus is a regular varsity player, and Edward is an aspirant. Larry and Orville Atherholt represent their family as substitutes.

Disturbed no little by the letdown performance against Waynesburg last week, Coach Hank Day yesterday completed shuffling his Washington and Jefferson varsity for the game with Detroit University Friday night. Day gave the Presidents a strenuous workout yesterday. He will let the boys off today with a light drill, with most of the session being devoted to building a defense for the Titans.

Sending Don Holland, a quarterback, to fullback and bringing Bob Fife, an end, into the backfield, were the most startling changes instituted by Day. They were necessitated by the loss of King and Myers, both fullbacks, in the Waynesburg game.

The return of Doug Malcolm, veteran halfback, to the varsity was a keynote for some rise of enthusiasm. Malcolm reported late for training and was unable to round into condition for either the Pitt or Waynesburg games. He used him considerably at both positions and indicated that he would see plenty of service this week.

Pitt's hill-and-dale (cross-country to you) will inaugurate their campaign Saturday by meeting Case. Waters, harriers over the Kenoyer course. Tickets for the event will go on sale at the usual agencies, with tickets [illegible] to go on sale at said agencies, anyway.

George Huff, athletic director at Illinois, has come out flatfooted, indeed, his stand might even be termed splayfooted, against the [illegible] of football [illegible] says the training table is the next step toward paying the boys. He also adds that if Illinois is to feed its football players, it will feed her rivals as well. It looks like the only [illegible] table the Zuppkemen will have will be in the lunch wagons.

Sponge in Horse's Nostril, Probe On

HARRY ANSLINGER...PROBING 'DOPING' OF RACE HORSES

prolonged into the spring and early summer in Maryland and Illinois before we made the raid and arrests on the final day at the Arlington Park track (Chicago).

"Although we used only two or three men during the entire campaign, their voluminous findings were amazing. I am told that about 8,000 horses are campaigned annually on the North American continent, which includes Mexico, Cuba and Canada. The exact number which run each year on United States soil perhaps does not exceed 6,000 or 6,500. Our men did not have the opportunity, because they investigated only one track at a time, to see more than about 1,200 different racing animals, yet they reported that almost 250 horses were "doctored" before races, or approximately 20 per cent of the total under observation.

No Federal Law

"All race tracks, as I understand it, have a rule providing suspension of license for any owner, trainer, jockey or other person found guilty of administering narcotics to a race horse. There is no federal law aimed at this sordid practice. Therefore, in our operations against dope handlers, we had to confine our efforts to the capture of men actually in possession of narcotics in violation of the Harrison act."

"When the raid was made at Arlington, our men confiscated syringes which they earlier had seen used in administering liquid of some kind to the horses. Our chemists, in analyzing the drugs in these syringes, and also the remaining contents in cast-off bottles found in stables, established that these tested very high in heroin, cocaine and other stimulating content.

"The findings in the stable of one trainer were astonishing. He had a vast number of syringes, almost a wholesale store of narcotics and some of the most fantastic mixtures our chemists ever have handled. Some of his preparations seemed powerful enough to kill a dozen horses. And certainly enough to dope 100 horses.

U. S. Aid Asked

"Since the raid at Arlington, officials at different tracks have appealed to this department for men to guard their barns and thus insure them against horse dopers. Of course, we could not oblige. At least a dozen tracks function at the same time; this bureau is on a very limited budget, and we could not send men to each track to assist owners thereof in ferreting out the inhuman individuals who make a practice of doping race horses.

"Those tracks, it would seem, owe it to themselves and their patrons to provide protection against people who are addicted to the vicious habit of administering morphine, heroin cocaine and other drugs to race horses. Such a task would be easy of accomplishment if they merely [illegible] after [illegible] of this [illegible]."

Regarding the future, the commissioner said:

"Every track employs a veterinarian and also private detectives. If the race track owners desire to end the narcotic evil they can order their detectives to the vigilant supervision of all the barns, beginning at about noon and concluding at the end of the race day.

Co-operation Assured

"This bureau will go the absolute limit in its powers to prevent race tracks henceforth from being distributing centers, or housing places, for drugs, and it will aid in every way possible in smashing the horsemen's drug rings. Rapid results will come if the bureau gains intelligent, sincere co-operation from track officials.

"One way to end doping is by establishing the saliva test. I have the detailed regulations and will be glad to supply these to any racing association making the request. It is a simple and inexpensive remedy."

Accepts Challenge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(Universal)—Accepting the challenge of Clarence Lehr, manager of the Detroit Racing Association, Harry J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, said today he would furnish Lehr the names of some 25 horses "doped" during the recent race meeting in that city.

Lehr took issue with the statement of federal agents that so many horses had been "doped" and demanded their names.

In an effort to stop the "doping" of race horses—and racing dogs, the Florida State Racing Commission has made provisions for the examination of these animals and barring the "doped" from the track. Harry J. Anslinger, Federal Narcotics Commissioner, said today.

B. F. Paty and Walter H. Donovan, of the Florida commission, conferred with Anslinger and were assured of his full co-operation in their effort.

FLORIDA LEADS WAY

Anslinger said that Florida is the first state to take this effective means of eliminating "doped" horses. Paty said the commission adopted rules requiring every owner and trainer of race horses stabled at all tracks in Florida to submit their horses to the saliva test by which it may be determined conclusively whether any narcotic has been administered.

The rules adopted provided also that any person anticipating in or having any knowledge of the "doping" of race horses should be ruled off all Florida tracks. Paty declared that the Florida commission would spare no effort or expense to prevent this practice.

Anslinger said that conditions on the Florida tracks from the standpoint of "doping" was excellent. Conditions also were described as good on the Maryland tracks.

DOPED HORSES LISTED

The narcotic bureau has a list of "doped" race horses in its possession. Anslinger expected to receive the names of "doped" horses which had been running in Detroit.

The Maryland commission also is co-operating with Anslinger, but so far has not taken action such as that in Florida.

Anslinger said the problem must be solved by the states since nothing can be done about it by the federal government when the drugs are legally possessed.

MACK DEFENDS JOE CRONIN'S STRATEGY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—Baseball's veteran strategist, Connie Mack, speaking from the authority of 50 years in the game, justified Manager Joe Cronin's selection of young Cliff Bolton to pinch hit for the Washington Senators in that "hot spot" of the fourth game of last week's series.

At the same time he points out that if the Senators had been equal to making two bunts in the last two games, the series would have returned to New York with Washington a game in the lead. Mack explains:

"Bolton hit hard right down to the close of the season. He was 'hot' and you always use your 'hot' man to bat in a pinch. That was why Cronin no doubt selected Bolton to bat in the fourth game with the bases loaded."

FAILURE ANALYZED

Analyzing those two failures to bunt, Connie says the first was in the eighth inning of the fourth game when Buddy Myer walked and Goose Goslin came up with orders to bunt, but hit too fast, forcing Myer. Connie added:

"In turn, Dave Harris forced Goslin. Had either of those bunts been able to advance the man on first, he could have scored on Cronin's single, and the Senators would have won, 2 to 1, in nine innings, instead of losing by that score in the eleventh.

CHANCE IS LOST

"Then, in the fifth inning of the final game, Fred Schulte and Joe Kuhel singled. Ossie Bluege got two strikes and then bunted foul to strike out under the rules. Had Bluege made his sacrifice, Schulte would have had no trouble scoring on Sewell's long drive, and, again, the Senators would have won, 4 to 3, in the ninth, instead of losing by that count in the tenth."

That horse that started a scandal ending with the barring of Nate Raymond and six others at Havre de Grace two years ago by running under the name of Shem, and which precipitated another race track scandal at Hialeah Park, Miami, last February, this time under the name of Gailmont, ran as Chinese Puzzle here last Thursday and finished second.

The notorious ringer was recognized by Harry E. Brown, of Baltimore, and B. F. Christian, and now both horse and purse are being held. His owner and trainer, listed as Mickey Limiero, has been suspended.

Aknahton would have been an easy winner with an experienced rider in the saddle, but an apprentice was up. Jockey Tromberio, one of the best jockeys riding here, was offered the mount, but declined.

OFTEN IN HEADLINES

Aknahton first came into the headlines at the Havre de Grace track in Maryland two years ago, posing as the 2-year-old gelding Shem. Shem won and his handlers cleaned up. At the time Aknahton was in the hands of Paddy Barry, the man who made a business of ringing. Shem was entered under Raymond's name and investigation by Maryland racing authorities led to his ruling off for life from all Maryland tracks, along with six other well-known gamblers.

Barry used Aknahton again at a Canadian track under the name of Sir Johren, shortly after the Shem episode, getting away with a big betting coup. The scene shifted to Hawthorne in Chicago, where Aknahton was dyed brown to resemble the rough looking old gelding Hickey. Again Barry got away, this time with a haul in the neighborhood of $200,000.

DISGUISE FAILS

The now celebrated ringer did not crop up again until the winter-racing at Agua Caliente, Mexico, where he represented the 3-year-old Gailmont. Successful at Mexico, Aknahton - Shem - Gailmont came to Hialeah Park, Miami, where he made another clean-up.

Aknahton was recognized here, however, when the dye used to disguise the horse faded in rain. The recognition led to the suspension of John P. Crawford and Willis Kane, owners, and A. F. Tavenner, trainer. Both Crawford and Kane disappeared.

American Horse Wins Cesarewitch

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 11.—(AP.)—The American J. E. Widener's highly-regarded Seminole today won the classic Cesarewitch, long-distance stake of the English turf.

The big chestnut gelding of the well-known sportsmen won by two lengths from a field of 33 of the best handicap horses training in Great Britain and on the Continent and rewarded his backers with the long odds of 100 to 6.

Victor Emanuel's Statesman, which was third in the Derby, and M. D. Blair's Eugene, the other two American-owned horses in the race, failed to place.

Second to Seminole at the finish was P. Johnson's Loose Strife, also at the long odds of 100 to 7. J. Cooper's Roe de Paris was third.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS INDECISIVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Indolent financial markets moved sleepily today, showing little inclination to do any one thing decisively.

It was one of the dullest stock exchange sessions in a number of weeks. With all American markets closed tomorrow for the celebration of Columbus Day, board rooms were almost deserted by operators who were stretching out the holiday. Equities, grains, cotton and other commodities backed and filled, with the tone generally a bit easier. While a few stock specialties improved, the list, on the whole, was soggy. Bonds were a trifle mixed. Little enthusiasm was shown for another substantial advance of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings.

Unimportant gains were recorded by shares of Johns Manville, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, Western Union, United States Smelting and a few others. Issues off fractionally to around a point included American Telephone, Chrysler, United States Steel, American Can, United States Industrial Alcohol, National Distillers, du Pont, New York Central, General Motors and General Electric. Homestake Mining slumped 37 points on the first sale, but got back 13 of this later. The utilities held fairly steady.

While stocks moped uninterestingly, market analysts were busily engaged in watching both the domestic and foreign economic and political situations for some clue as to the future price trends.

The Treasury's war-debt discussions with the British delegation, although in the preliminary stage, are viewed in financial circles as extremely important at this time because of their relation to possible currency stabilization. There were few expectations of a quick solution to the debt problem, but opinion was expressed in some quarters that a real approach to a settlement would be made in the present conference.

Brokerage commentators were optimistic regarding the President's plans for thawing out frozen deposits in closed banks and providing sufficient capital for banks which are open to qualify under the deposit guarantee law which becomes effective on January 1. Loosening of tied-up deposits, it was believed, would greatly expand the purchasing power of the public and give hesitant business a much-needed lift.

Although financial observers were of the belief that the anti-inflation movement has grown considerably in the past few weeks, some bankers were not so certain that this presidential prerogative had been permanently shelved. A few commission houses were cautioning customers against making commitments on an inflationary basis and urging more attention be paid to potential earnings and dividends.

WHEAT PRICES RANGE LOWER

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. — Grain prices ranged lower early today, pulled down by an overnight accumulation of selling orders. Announcement that exports of 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels of domestic wheat from the North Pacific Coast had been approved by the government had little immediate effect. Opening at 1/2-1 1/8 decline, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started unchanged tot 7/8 off, and subsequently receded all around.

Rallies which followed early setbacks of grain values, and which in some cases lifted wheat to equal with yesterday's close, were based largely on the fact that official estimates of domestic farm reserves supplies of wheat disclosed a disappearance far above normal.

BIG PROBLEMS IN BANK CREDIT EXPANSION

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Several problems are presented by the moves now being made to expand bank credit.

Probably the biggest question concerned is the old one: Which comes first, credit or business? What is cause and which is effect?

We know that there is already in existence a very large amount of bank credit, and that for a long while the basis for extension of bank credit has been increased.

Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding amounts to nearly $2,500,000,000. This is nearly double the amount outstanding in 1929.

RESULT OF U. S. DEBT

This large amount is over 90 per cent the result of government debt—that is, government bonds and notes bought by the reserve banks.

Largely as a result of this condition, the excess reserves of member banks recently have broken all records. They are now estimated at around $750,000,000. These constitute a strong incentive to make loans.

The member banks, however, are holding over $5,000,000,000 in government bonds, which is a larger amount than their commercial loans and acceptances.

Considering the financial problems of our government, and the very low yield on its securities, it seems clear that the banks would not be in this shape if they could find loans they were willing to accept.

COMPULSION ISSUE

But here comes the question: Can we not make or create a demand for this bank credit? Can we not force it into use?

Most bankers think that commercial credit is the result of business transactions. When business is active and good, two conditions arise:

1. A large number of profitable business transactions which insure that buyers of materials, equipment and merchandise can make profits, and thus can promise to pay for the use of funds.

2. A large need for funds with which to buy materials and merchandise.

The first condition is the basis of the supply of business credit. The second gives the demand. This is easy to understand.

MANUFACTURE CREDIT

But others argue that we can manufacture a basis of credit before business expands, and then pump it into business so as to make business expand.

This is "credit inflation." It is putting credit ahead of business, and considering it a cause of business rather than a result of business.

Of course, the credit thus manufactured must come from somewhere. It is government credit. The government goes into debt by issuing bonds secured by the taxes we are to pay in the future. Then the banks take the bonds into their assets, and offer to lend notes to business men.

FAILS THUS FAR

This process has been going on for several years. Down to date, the banks have not been able to find enough businessmen whose business prospects were sufficiently favorable to their way of thinking to warrant loans. So the attempt to put credit first and make business come second has thus far failed.

Of course, if something happens to business which causes it to expand, the large supplies of bank credit available will aid the expansion. It is, therefore, good to know that the reserve banks have large gold reserves and the member banks have large "excess reserves."

I merely suggest caution lest these reserves be so largely used in attempt to "prime the pump" of business that when business does expand, the credit reserves will be soon exhausted.

FINANCING PLAN PRESENTED FOR REAL ESTATE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Although public organizations are hotly debating the vagaries of inflation, responsible financiers are more concerned with specific measures for putting credit to work.

Mr. Rukeyser

With numerous enterprises, large and small, in need of additional working capital before they are technically eligible for bank loans, there is an increasing demand that the government, through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or otherwise, engage in making direct capital loans to industry.

Insiders indicate that the mortgage companies to be set up as intermediary lending agencies will take a liberal, rather than a narrow, view of their proper field for operations, and will consider other than real estate loans.

REAL ESTATE FINANCING

A reader, Louis Eliasberg, president, the Finance Company of America at Baltimore, in a message to this column, points out:

"The government has created agencies to refinance the distressed home owners, banks, insurance companies, farmers, mortgage companies and other meritorious institutions. This favored group and the public feel the stigma of borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. An important group has been overlooked that is retarding the recovery now under way.

"The forgotten group consists of owners of real estate, investors and prospective investors in real estate, mortgagees and industrialists who have no facilities available to finance or refinance the real estate that they have or may be interested in acquiring. Under ordinary conditions, investors in real estate and mortgages had an opportunity to obtain a first mortgage on property of 50 or 60 per cent of its fair value, from life insurance companies, banks, mortgage companies, building and loan associations and individual investors bidding for their first mortgage business, recognized for centuries as the premier investment. Today, there is not a single avenue open to these investors and mortgagees.

LOANS SUGGESTED

"I propose that, by an appropriate act of Congress, the Treasurer, or other officer of the United States government, be authorized, for a restricted period, to make loans to these investors and to authorize an issue of United States notes to the extent of 100 per cent of such loans as are made by the Treasurer or other officer.

"The loans should be for an amount not exceeding 60 per cent of the current f it two weeks. It cost $5."

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

"But you'll let me have it just this once?" Lil got up from her rocker and came over and faced her cousin. She pleaded. "Jake's so durn particular—about style, you know—and—"—she ignored her previous boast—"to look well tonight may mean a whole lot to me—with him, I mean, Nollie—"

"Oh, very well." Nollie didn't feel particularly gracious. She disliked the idea of lending intimate things she wore.

She added, now: "Since you like pretty things why don't you get a job again and have your own weekly pay envelope?"

"That's just what I was coming to," said Lil eagerly. She bit a finger-nail—hesitated—stared nervously at Nollie. "I'm planning to go over to the Five-and-Ten and ask them for my old job back till I—till I can land something better. But, right away—I mean, for tomorrow night I'm in a kind of a fix—you see, it's the big night at Dreamland—"

So? Another loan? Well, some people had a lot of nerve! thought Nollie.

"There's a dress at Schimbel's in pink tulle that's marked down in their sale tomorrow at $14.95. It was $25 all last week, Nollie—"

"Yes?"—indifferently.

"I've got $6 of my own, and I thought—if you'd be a sport and loan me the $8.95—I'd pay you back with my first week's salary—"

"I haven't got the money."

"You have. You must. This—having the dress I mean—is a big thing for me. You see I think Jake's going to invite me to the dance, so please don't hold out on me, Nollie!"

"But if I haven't got the cash—" Which was quite true. It was only the paper check she had with her.

LIL PEEVED

Yet Nollie felt disturbed. Out of her $50 prize, ought she to give this sum to Lil?—who already owed her $15?

She couldn't afford that hole in the little nest-egg that was to take her into the wide world of Opportunity . . .

In silence she started making up her face before the looking-glass, penciling below her too-small eyes and putting great daubs of mascara on the lashes.

Nollie went down to the living-room, where her uncle sat alone with the Morning Appeal on the table beside him and in his hands the evening paper. The boys had gone out on their own devices, and Aunt Sara was making a great clatter in the kitchen with the dishes.

Take the bull by the horns right now! Broach the subject of leaving Yapahunk and taking a job in the Big City!

With hands that shook a little, Nollie lifted the Morning Appeal and pointed to a New York employment advertisement.

"A chance for me . . . you understand? . . ."

UNCLE OBJECTS

"You'd go? After being here these years? And how'd I and the shop get along. I'd like to know?" He was upset and plaintive.

He wouldn't listen to her plan. No . . . she was all wrong . . . there was plenty of need of her right here in his store, and plenty of room for her in his house . . . and they couldn't get along without her.

Finally, to put an end to the discussion, he got up, quite huffed, and went off to finish his evening at his lodge, the "Bisons."

Lil came tripping down the stairs, dolled up to beat the band in Nollie's bright red hat. She gave a look at Nollie as much as to say that she wanted the parlor vacated . . .

Nollie went out to help her aunt, and when a ring came at the front door bell, it was Aunt Sara—at a call from Lil—who went to answer it.

Lil draped herself elegantly in a chair with her back to the door—pretended to read the evening paper.

She would not rush to let Jake in. Or gush. She would receive him in a nonchalant, queenly manner.

Yes, it was he. She heard his voice, the sound he made as he put his swanky cane in the rack while her mother padded back to the kitchen.

Then his footsteps coming up behind her as she did not rise or turn her head. She leaned back in her chair with only Nollie's red hat showing . . .

From behind came Jake's two hands across her eyes holding her, whispering exultantly:—"Caught, Nollie. At last I've got you alone, Nollie darling!"

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It pays to read, fellows!

It's easy to lose your money, but no one can take away what you have stored up in your head—knowledge about the whole world and how to do many things.

Reading makes a boy or girl "versatile"—which means that he or she is skilled in many different ways. Try to read at least one good book every month, and some other things too. And when you read something you like a lot, we would like to have you write and tell us about it here at headquarters.

Now look at this dandy letter from Donna Mae Brown, who was elected vice captain of her patrol, and who sends in four more pledges. Donna lives at 19 Conestoga road, Wilkinsburg.

"We had a meeting on Friday afternoon and served refreshments. It was decided that we all go on a long hike on Friday, as there is no school here, and take our lunch. It was also decided that our colors be red, white and blue and that we get ribbons to be pinned on with the badge. Our captain was sick and so I was elected vice captain. I took her place. We all hope she is back for our next meeting. We are going to have a Halloween party."

We're sorry your captain is ill, Donna, but we are sure she would want her club to go ahead with plans in her absence. Your colors are certainly patriotic. Write and tell us where your hike was and what you will do to have fun at your Halloween party.

Margaret Thompson, of 1252 Crane avenue, Banksville, writes:

"I sent in 10 pledges to you and forgot to say to send me an armband. Our colors are white and yellow. Thank you."

And pretty colors they are, too, Margaret. Did you know that the royal colors of France were gold and white? You watch for the armband. It will be along soon.

We still want orchestra players. Send in your name and address and a list of your lessons for an audition.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

DEATH OF AN EXPLORER-MISSIONARY, FATHER JAMES MARQUETTE (1637-1675)

Like the early civilization of mankind, the exploration of the New World developed along the rivers. Hardships of the explorers may be imagined in as much as 141 years passed between De Soto's discovery of the Mississippi River (1541) and La Salle's descent to its mouth in the Gulf of Mexico (1682). Also noted for early voyages on and exploration of the Mississippi and some of its tributaries are Louis Joliet (Canadian) and Father James Marquette, a French Jesuit, who carried on missionary work until his death. HYDROGEN BY IRON-STEAM PROCESS

Red hot iron decomposes water giving iron oxide and hydrogen: $Fe+H_2O=FeO+H_2$. The produced iron oxide can be reconverted (reduced) into iron by water gas and heat: $2FeO+CO+H_2=2Fe+CO_2+H_2O$. These two processes are used alternately in the Messerschmidt hydrogen generator (above). Iron oxide is filled between the iron cylinders (A) built into a fire-brick retort. Watergas at B and air at C are introduced. The mixture will burn, heat the brick-filling and lining and reduce the iron oxide to iron. The combustion gases leave at I. After 20 minutes, steam is led in at P for cleaning and later at O for oxidizing the iron and liberating hydrogen, which is drawn off at L. The generation lasts 15 minutes. ANALOGY BETWEEN ELECTRIC AND HYDRAULIC CURRENTS

The quantity of water flowing through a section per second is measured in gallons by water gauge (A); similarly the quantity of electricity flowing through a section per second is measured in amperes by the ammeter (I). (A) and (I) are connected in line (series), the whole flow going through them. The water pressure between two sections of a pipeline is measured in pounds by the pressure gauge (B); similarly the electric pressure (electromotive force) between two sections of a circuit is measured in volts by the voltmeter (E). Each is connected parallel (shunt) to the main line with a thin branch. High tension means generally above 220 volts, low tension below that. (Croft: Practical Electricity)

ASSASSINATION OF PHILIP II, KING OF MACEDONIA (359-336 B. C.)

While Philip was studying in Greece he learned the Greeks' political weakness, and on becoming ruler of Macedonia he subjugated the Greek cities. Preparing to conquer Asia Minor he was assassinated, leaving this task to his son, the later Alexander the Great. (World History)

AUTOMOBILE BATTERY IGNITION SYSTEM

The three-cell battery furnishes low-tension current (6 volts) of a few amperes intensity in the primary circuit. This leads through the primary windings (a few loops of insulated thick wire) of the induction coil. The primary current is interrupted by the "moving contact" operated from the breaker shaft; this interruption causes induction of high tension current (several thousand volts of little intensity) in the secondary windings (many loops of insulated thin wire) of the coil. The high-tension current is led to the spark plugs by the distributor and cables, producing spark to ignite the explosive gas mixture in the cylinder. (Moyer: Gasoline Automobile)

THE GANG PLOW HAS SEVERAL BOTTOMS

Courtesy of McGraw Hill Book Co.

DIAGRAM OF BATTERY IGNITION SYSTEM

The breaker mechanism interrupts the primary current; thus the previously-developed magnetic field of the primary windings collapses. The receding magnetic lines cut the secondary windings and induce in them electromotive force that causes high-tension current, needed for ignition. The collapse of the magnetic field is hastened by the condenser (two rows of insulated plates) which takes and releases electric charge when the primary current is interrupted, thus intensifying the secondary current and contributing to the strength of the spark. The shown coil is called non-vibrating. (Moyer: Gasoline Automobile)

It's Still a Fair Exchange

Why not just move over to Ellis Island and grab 'em before they learn anything?

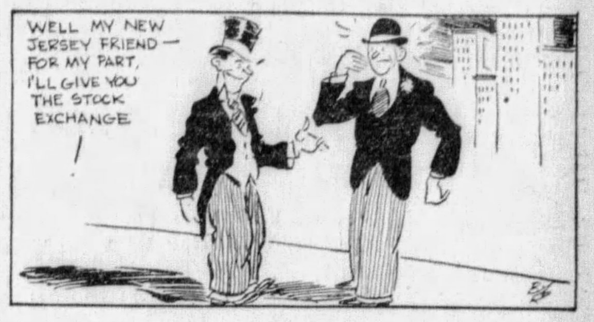
We suggest a nice spot in the center of the Holland tubes. Get 'em going both ways.

We don't care where they go. Jersey City and Newark are both too close to the river.

We never did care for that speculative hospitality on the end of a diving board.

We admit the boys gave us a fair shake and a long roll. Our guess was as good as theirs and nobody sent for us. But how did we know the lads were polishing a wormy apple?

It all looked very nimble and hilarious until the margins curled on the edges and call money was yelling like a cat in an electric wash tub. It was getting shocked and wrung at the same time.



These were going to take care of us in our old age. That puts us one up on Whittier. He was only a barefoot boy once. We have to go through it again.

In case you ain't interested in where the stock market moves we warn you that you can get to Jersey City by boat, bridge, tunnel, ferry or swim. That last method of locomotion seems best. If you can swim over you can swim back. It's a nice thing to know.

We admit this article is a large bunch of sour grapes. We concede that we are a misanthrope or words to that defect. Who wouldn't be? We are worse than that. We are busy working on the blueprints of a hollow stick of peppermint candy to fool the children.

They nailed us dead center and scored a bull's-eye on a goat. When the lads move out of the stock exchange we are going to move in and tell fortunes with tea leaves and become the most reliable Gypsy in the world.

At that, if the exchange moves to Jersey we are going to look it over. We might make some influential friends walking back.

The Outlook for Coal

With Immense Resources We Still Face Serious Difficulties in Trying to Sell It.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment had before it at its meeting Monday applications for permission to open two coal mines in the city—one in Greenfield in the Fifteenth Ward and the other in Beechview in the Nineteenth Ward.

It is interesting to note that we still have vast coal resources within the city limits. The Pennsylvania Geological Survey reports that there were originally in Pittsburgh 24,892,000 short tons of coal in the Pittsburgh vein and 15,541,000 short tons in the Upper Freeport vein. While the Pittsburgh vein has been mined extensively, the Upper Freeport vein, lying 600 feet lower, has scarcely been touched.

In what is known as the Pittsburgh Quadrangle, a tract of 227 square miles (about half the area of the city of Los Angeles) surrounding and including Pittsburgh, the Geological Survey finds we still have 170,247,000 tons of Pittsburgh vein coal and 568,352,000 tons of Upper Freeport vein coal. There is also a vein, the Middle Kittanning, at a much greater depth, which will be available when the other two are exhausted.

With such extensive coal resources nearby, but not in the city proper, it is not surprising that objections should have been raised to the opening of mines in Pittsburgh itself. The Zoning Board has refused the Greenfield application and reserved judgment on the other.

Our unmined coal is not only abundant but is of the finest quality. According to J. H. Hillman, Jr., "the Pittsburgh seam as it exists in the Pittsburgh district presents no unusual mining difficulties and is unquestionably the most valuable area of low-ash, low-sulphur and high-volatile gas and coking coal in the world."

Pittsburgh has around it within a 500-mile radius more people than any other large city in the United States. With its central location and its rich resources one would expect Pittsburgh to have no difficulty in triumphing over its competitors in the coal business. This unfortunately is not the case. Because of artificial handicaps we have been losing business steadily to coal companies operating in Southern West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky.

In 1909 Pennsylvania shipped 8,055,489 tons of coal to the Great Lakes, West Virginia shipped 4,329,322 tons, and Kentucky, 7,849 tons; while in 1929 Pennsylvania shipped 7,774,443 tons, West Virginia 19,560,660 tons, and Kentucky 6,814,482 tons. In the 20 years our Lake Cargo shipments decreased, while those from West Virginia increased 352 per cent and those from Kentucky 86,800 per cent.

Western Pennsylvania coal operators shipped to the state of Michigan last year 83,560 tons of high volatile coal; operators in Southern West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky, between 100 and 200 miles farther away, shipped 7,672,399 tons, or 91 times as much!

It costs $2.60 to ship a ton of coal from Pittsburgh to Detroit, and the rate from the southern fields—say from Harlan, Ky.—to Detroit is exactly the same.

Despite their greater distance from the markets our southern competitors have been able to take business from us because of their lower wages, their lower taxes and lower freight rates.

Under the NRA code of fair competition they will be compelled to raise wages somewhat, though not up to the level that Pittsburgh district operators will pay. This may reduce one of our handicaps.

Obstacles yet to be overcome, however, before we will be in position to compete with the southerners on an even basis, are formidable. Especially disturbing is our freight rate handicap.

It costs a Pittsburgh operator $1.46 to ship a ton of coal 166 miles to Cleveland, or at the rate of 8.8 mills a ton-mile. A Harlan County (Ky.) operator, 516 miles from Cleveland, can ship a ton of coal there for $1.81, or at the rate of 3.5 mills a ton-mile, which is less than half of what we have to pay.

To make matters worse, the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroads have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to add 30 cents a ton to the rate for hauling coal between Pittsburgh and points on the Great Lakes between the Straits of Mackinac and Brockville, Ont. That would make the rate to Cleveland, for example, $1.76, as compared with the present rate from the southern fields of $1.81. A reduction of the differential from 35 cents to 5 cents would make it next to impossible for Pittsburgh operators to sell Lake Cargo coal.

To be sure the petitioning railroads have stated that if the proposed increase is granted the railroads serving the southern coal fields also will ask for a 30-cent increase to preserve the present differential. But as A. S. Boden, manager of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, who is opposing the proposal, very pertinently points out, the southern carriers themselves have said nothing to the Interstate Commerce Commission to that effect, and might conceivably cling to the $1.81 rate. They have consistently given low rates to aid the coal operators that they serve, and have gained an enormous amount of business thereby. The northern roads have shown no such sympathy for the coal operators that they serve, but have charged as high a rate as they were allowed, with heavy loss of business in consequence.

Even if the southern roads should increase their rates 30 cents and thus preserve the present differential, an increase in the rate from Pittsburgh to the Great Lakes to $1.76 would make it impossible to compete with Nova Scotia operators for the Ontario markets and would cause us a loss of from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 tons a year of Canadian business.

The prosperity not only of our coal companies and their employes but also of the entire community hinges more or less on retention of our present customers, if not on recovery of the lost markets.

It is extremely regrettable, therefore, that the miners' strike should continue in the Pittsburgh district while neighboring districts are operating. Our competitors not only in the southern fields but also in Ohio and Central Pennsylvania are taking business from us.

Local coal companies have lost the sale of many hundreds of thousands of tons of coal during the last few weeks because of the tie-up of the mines, and will lose many more hundreds of thousands of tons if the miners do not soon return to work. There is danger that valuable customers may be lost permanently.

Let all who have Pittsburgh's welfare at heart exert themselves to end the strike and rehabilitate Pittsburgh's coal industry.

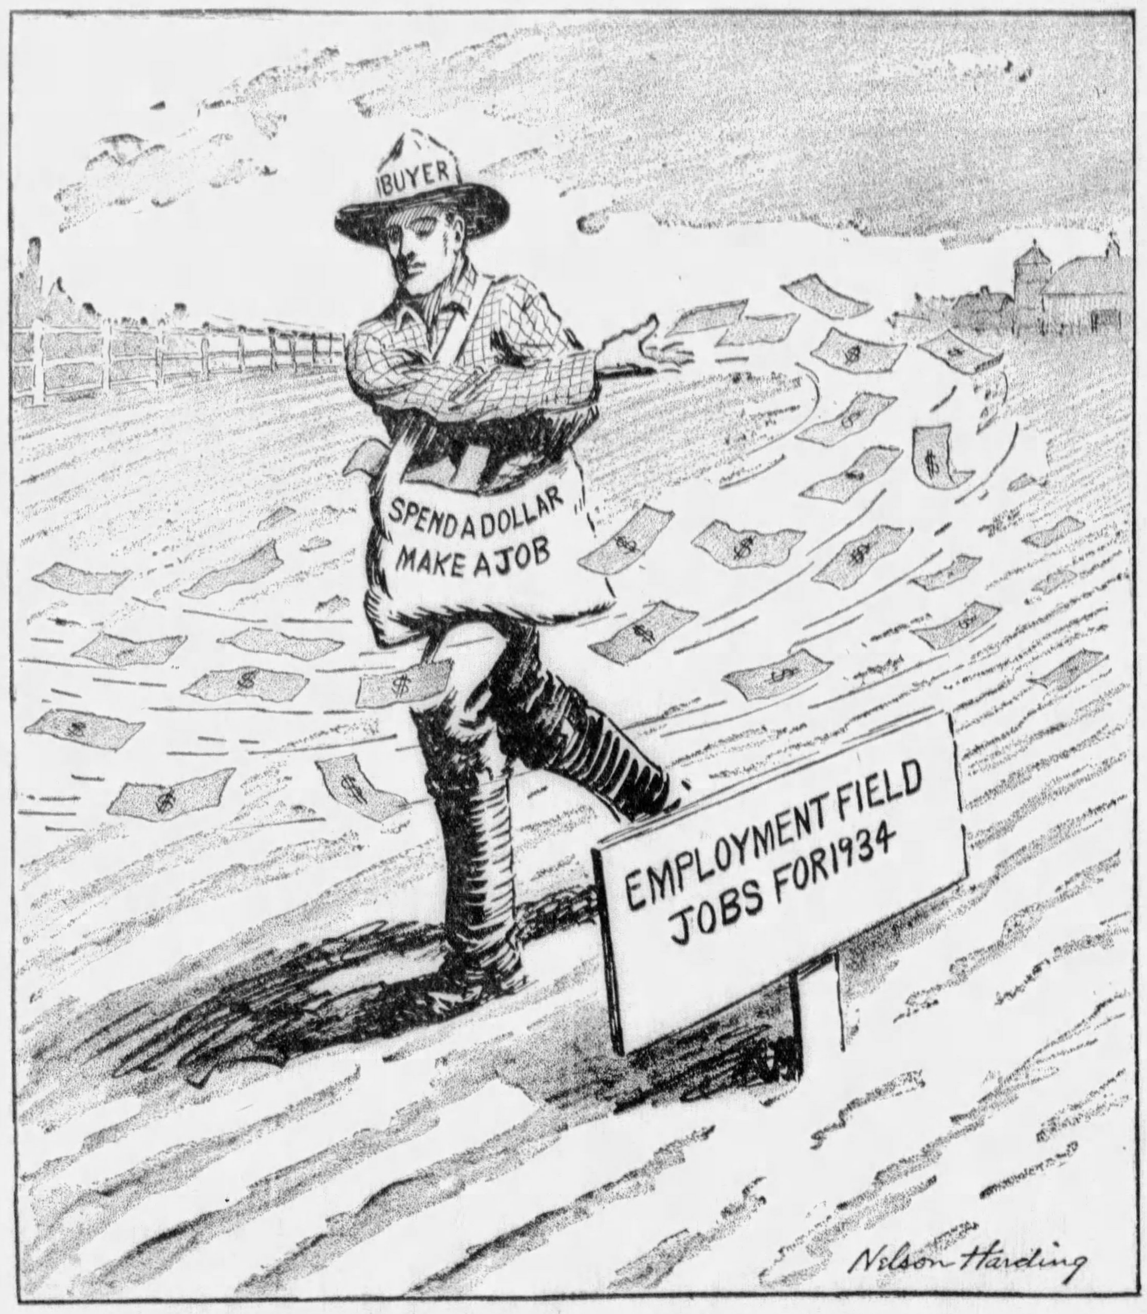
Sow the Seed Now

By Nelson Harding



Sow the seed, and sow it widely,
Scatter it across those acres,
Upon fields long left unplanted;
Follow acres unproductive.

Sowing wisely, sowing early,
Will produce a crop for harvest,
Will assure an early reaping,
And will well reward the sower.

'Speed Up Public Works,' Demand of Nation

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHEN Secretary Ickes declares that "dirt is flying but not in sufficient volume to suit me," he voices a widespread and increasing dissatisfaction that more of the vast sums appropriated by Congress for emergency expenditure on public works have not yet been expended.

This dissatisfaction is based upon the belief that "one dollar spent in relieving unemployment now is worth two dollars spent later."

With the approach of winter public sentiment is more and more disturbed by the fear that this country will be compelled to struggle through another winter without any definite and extensive unemployment relief.

And the most practical and the most extensive relief within the power of the federal government to give is by getting under actual construction useful and needed federal projects financed by the federal government, and by federal aid to the several states and their municipalities in the construction of local projects.

Unless the greater part of the $3,300,000,000 appropriated by Congress as an emergency expenditure upon public construction by federal, state and municipal governments has not only been allotted but is actually being spent before Congress reconvenes, the legislators will demand to know the why and wherefore of such a failure.

An impartial Congressional inquiry, if one could be held at this time, would prove that Secretary Ickes' dissatisfaction over the present rate of progress of the public works program is justified.

* * *

Some of the Causes Of Delay

HERE are some of the causes of delay:

To begin with, the Director of the Budget, through mistaken zeal, put a stop-order on all public works for which contracts had not actually been let when the new administration entered power. This delayed from March until mid-Summer several hundred millions of dollars of new construction that would have been nearly completed by now but for this costly blunder.

This stop-order kept thousands of men in the building trades, North, East, South and West from being put to work on public projects all through the spring and summer.

Another cause for delay is to be found in the divided councils that have embarrassed the administration in its efforts to accelerate the expenditure of the $3,300,000,000 fund which the new Congress voted in the firm resolve to relieve unemployment by a vast program of public works.

Here again the Director of the Budget and several other officials of the Treasury Department have sometimes appeared to be far more concerned about making a showing for economy than about making work for the unemployed.

Apparently this minority of obstructionists have sincerely, but mistakingly believed that the natural forces of recovery would operate with sufficient rapidity to make the expenditure voted by Congress for public works in large part unnecessary.

Another and even greater cause for delay has been the indefensible greediness of some of the politicians of the administration for federal jobs that could be distributed as political rewards to "deserving Democrats."

* * *

Interference From Politicians

INSTEAD of giving the Public Works Administration a free hand at the start, that it might mobilize as swiftly as possible the best qualified force of experts to organize and supervise the public works program, the politicians of the administration appear to have been afraid that some engineer or some lawyer or some stenographer might be employed in violation of the priority list of the Democratic National Committee.

One of the major causes for the delay cannot be traced to the door of the federal government. This cause is to be found in the political quarrels, personal jealousies and inter-municipal rivalries within the several states. On this account, the states and municipalities are only just now beginning to submit applications for public construction that the public works law permits and that the Public Works Administration is eager to approve.

Within the last two weeks the machinery of the Public Works Administration has been speeded up to a high point. It will have to go much faster, however, to make up the time lost through earlier divided counsels within the administration and through the political greed of pork-barrel politicians in Congress, in the several states and in nearly every municipality that has applied for a public works project.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Because of the times, a leniency is shown those picturesque curb merchants known as pitchmen. They are hawking their wares on almost every mid-town block. Most of them long since were driven from smaller cities as "unfair to local merchants."

The seasoned pitchman drifts from coast to coast during the year, usually trailing circuses and carnivals. Frequently they have tried to organize, but only one city—Los Angeles—has a lodge. The Billboard, known to the grinders as "Billyboy," conducts a weekly department for them.

In it one learns Nig Shope is playing lots in Dallas, with a med. show. Dave Rose and Joe Morris are teamed up working X-Rays and white mice. Neckties and sox got top pitch dough in Indianapolis. Doc. Endon is doing well in doorway work in Arkansas squats. Tide Heddy is herb working in Duluth.

There is a bit of nomad romance, too, in a display photograph of Clyde (Southern Jack) Wilson, who announces: "I have been behind the tripes since I was 13. I have worked all over this country and Canada and pitched everything on the road save med. (Medicine show.)" The lay of the last minstrels!

* * *

The easy camaraderie between the modern father and son is a revelation to those of us disciplined under sterner parentage. At a Long Island home recently I asked the son of an old friend his age. He said 18. The father, overhearing, murmured with faint mockery: "And what 18 years of happiness for his Dad!" Cracked the son: "What a break, what a break!" Then they started wrestling all over the lawn.

* * *

And on a bus top at a 57th street traffic halt a youth from the sidewalk called to a young cigaret-smoking lady at the rail: "What you doing sitting there all dressed up like a dog's dinner?"

* * *

On the same bus an ex-service man was reading his paper. At a turn he looked up suddenly at a wind-fingered flag in front of the Plaza, saluted quickly, glanced about sheepishly, and returned to his reading.

* * *

When I want a taste of the Broadway so rapidly vanishing, I drop into Lindy's, the clattery cafe that's the last open forum of the stage. Blosom Seeley, Benny Fields and the Herman Timbergs may be bending over "Variety" at one table. Lou Holtz and his highly publicized cane the center of jovial banter at another. Joe Laurie, Jr., with his enormous black cigar. Eager looking booking agents. Possum-faced gamblers. Radio scouts. Now and then an old-timer with "When I played with Southern, laddie . . ." The few left who are successful actors are there, but of late, they are mostly those who have been all day seeking the job that does not exist.

* * *

In every theatrical cafe at dinner hour are rather pretty girls reaping the harvest of that very dangerous suggestion: "You ought to go to New York, and go on the stage." Their trouble is, they will never return home with failure. They stay on and on, drifting slowly down the social scale. Many of the sisterhood that beckon from doorways are recruited from maids who won't acknowledge defeat—and go back home.

* * *

Always drama at big railroad terminals. I was at Grand Central a recent morning to meet my mother-in-law. A pale but beautiful lady, evidently ordered to a change of climate, stood with her husband beside a Pullman. He was telling her to get well quickly, and just before she stepped into the car, with schoolboy shyness, handed her a packet in tissue. She opened it quickly and there fell out a round-cornered jeweler's box. He was laughing. She was crying. But when she had waved out of sight and plunged into the dark tunnel he shook away a few tears, too, and walked rapidly away. It's good to know there are still such husbands around.

* * *

I lingered at a terminal newsstand—and why is it such stands have the most tempting of all displays of books, magazines and newspapers?—for a noon edition. With the change in pennies I went to a fortune telling weighing machine. The little printed card that popped out read: "You should eat more fresh fruit." So that is why, if Gene Crawley is interested, he saw me hirpling through town like a yap munching a big red apple.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"DO I REALLY MATTER?"

That's the question which is hounding you these days; heckling your tired brain and discouraged heart.

"Why should I matter—one little person like me—in all this huge world?" you say to yourself. "Why should my little troubles matter? Nobody cares about me or my troubles. Nobody has the time or the heart to care.

"Everybody's out for himself these days. Power—that's all that counts. Power and wealth. Doesn't matter how crookedly you got 'em. Doesn't matter how cruel or selfish or unfair you are, if you've got the pull and the place you count. And if you haven't, you don't.

"So what's the use of trying? What's the use of going on? I've never had the breaks, and I never will have them. I was licked before I started. And nobody cares, FOR I DON'T MATTER! There's the terrible truth I've been trying to duck all my life, but I've got to face it at last. I DON'T MATTER."

Is that what you're thinking to yourself these days—yes?

Then don't!

For you're wrong — YOU DO MATTER!

YOU DO MATTER NOT ONLY TO YOURSELF, BUT TO THE WORLD—TO THE RACE.

You matter as much as you thought you mattered long ago in those proud, hopeful, excited days before you were twenty. Do you remember those days? Down in the dumps one hour; up on the heights the next. But never for a second did you doubt that you mattered. Never for a second did you doubt that you had wonderful secret powers; that you were "different"; that, some day, you would make good and "show 'em all!"

YET THAT DREAMING YOUNGSTER WAS RIGHT!

He was right when he felt that he mattered—that he was really a "blessed event." For stop and think what went to the making of that youngster who was you.

Now you are saying, "I'm just a poor carpenter, out of a job," or, "I'm just a little stenog, and who cares whether I die or not?"

But that's not so. You're more—far more—than "just a poor carpenter" or "a little stenog." You're a harvest of the ages!

Billions of lives have gone to the making of YOU. Countless generations of men and women have lived and died, struggled, suffered, battled, prayed, worked, wept and sacrificed, that you might be what you are and where you are today.

You think you're having a hard time? Think of the hard time they had! You think you don't count before the cruel odds of this modern world? Think of the odds they faced! Fire, flood, earthquake, pestilence, savage beasts—and their own helpless ignorance.

You think this is a cruel world? Think of the appalling cruelty of this world, where men still lived by the law of the wolf and the baboon.

But out of all that blundering came wisdom. Out of all that battling came courage. Out of all the suffering came kindness—and a dawning sense of decency and justice.

And out of everything came—YOU. All that they were, all that they did, lives on in you today.

Just a common little person who doesn't matter? No, my dear; you are the hope and the harvest of all those defiant generations who, though dead, still live on in—YOU. You are their masterpiece. You are their latest challenge, hurled by mankind against the Powers of Darkness.

YOU CARRY THEIR TORCH!

You think you don't matter? You're ready to quit? Don't! If your heart is so sick that you no longer feel that you matter to yourself, remember this—YOU MATTER TO THEM. If you quit yourself—YOU QUIT THEM.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Mauve Decade Returns

The mauve decade is back upon us with a vengeance. Mae West, legal beer, picture hats, love-songs, petticoats—and everything!

* * *

All the girls have fallen for it with a crash, and have dolled themselves up in curls, basques, frills, fancy gloves and bangles, and fastened little doodads all over their frocks. Muffs, fans, puffed sleeves, curves and coquettishness are the rage again.

* * *

Some of the "beaux" of the mauve decade can recall when the rustle of a silk petticoat set their pulses beating, and when moonlight, music and a few innocent drops of French perfume made them quite heady.

* * *

Sweet Age of Innocence, when Petticoats WERE petticoats! Glorious, swishy, irridescent things, which simply HAD to have a "rustle!" Like the tinkle of bangles, they were a feminine "lure," a call to romance.

But, now that we have adopted the outward insignia of the sentimental age, we are wondering if all the other quaint customs of the mauve decade will be revived.

* * *

Will the girls in their new picture hats and trailing skirts stop saying "Damn!" and begin saying "Oh, dear!" or "Good Heavens!" in moments of tension?

* * *

Will holding hands replace necking? And will a kiss mean a proposal of marriage?

Will a glance from the eyes of a man across the room mean "I love you!" instead of "Want a drink?" And will a glance from the eyes of a girl across the table mean "How handsome!" instead of "Fill my glass, you Sap!"?

* * *

Will men begin sending girls bon-bons and violets, instead of bringing them cigarets and gin? (Or borrowing their cigarets and helping themselves to their gin?)

* * *

If we're going to wear these Gay Nineties clothes and put over this Mauve Decade picture, we'll have to get "in character" or the whole "motif" will be utterly spoiled.

* * *

Of course, we may bow our backs to corsets, and carry feathered fans, and learn to sweep our trains around a dance floor. But how can we ever get back that "petticoat charm," which was so potent in Grandmother's day, but which simply doesn't GO with athletic shoulders, sun-tanned backs, modern efficiency and cigaret smoke in your hair?

Human Side of the News

The Visit of the Empress of Abyssinia to Jerusalem
—The Character of Richard Harding Davis

By Edwin C. Hill

THE EMPRESS of Abysinnia, following in the footsteps of her husband's ancestress, the Queen of Sheba, is paying a visit to Jerusalem. Her dark majesty, Waizeru Menen, is one of the fattest of living ladies, tipping the scales at rather more than 360 pounds. She is so stout, indeed, that her small feet cannot support her vast bulk. She must travel about in wheel chairs, rolled along by perspiring slaves.

Three thousand years or so ago King Solomon the Wise, with his gorgeous court, all gleaming with gold and purple and flashing the diamonds of Golconda, went to the great camel caravansery of Jerusalem to welcome the beautiful lady, Sheba. And now the brilliantly uniformed officials of the Jewish state of Palestine go to greet Queen Sheba's successor, who arrives not upon the back of an elephant, but in a Pullman private car upon a modern railroad.

History may never quite repeat, but it offers some curious and fascinating analogies. What a picture of that glamorous and colorful ceremony could have been made by that first rate human being who wrote with the hearing ear and the seeing eye, he whom I once had the honor of calling friend, the late Richard Harding Davis! That romantic and adventurous gentleman who wrote always on "The Human Side of the News," wherever his restless feet carried him around the curve of the world.

* * *

Killed By Cold Blasts of the Balkans

HE DIED in April, 1916, as the direct result of the toll taken by the icy blasts of the Balkans on the last of his many adventures as a war correspondent. But his fame lives on, and his remarkable career has just been made the subject of a most interesting book by Fairfax Downey and published by Scribners.

More than any other American of his times, as my friend Arthur Maurice writes, Richard Harding Davis stood for an age—the gay nineties, if you like, the age of sentiment and romanticism. Many of us remember the Gibson Girl, as limned by the shrewd pencil of Charles Dana Gibson. And Dick Davis, tall, erect, broad-shouldered, handsome as a Greek god, as the Gibson man.

Perhaps the finest thing he ever wrote was his description of the gray-green legions of the Imperial German Army sweeping through Brussels like a mighty river. And it is all the more creditable to Davis' skill and imagination that he did not arrive in Brussels until the German army, striking like a lance toward the heart of France, had passed through and had gone their way. Not to be beaten, Davis went at once to the American Legation and, for many hours, sat with Brand Whitlock, our Minister then and a former newspaper man, drawing from Whitlock, and making his own, every dramatic detail of the memorable spectacle.

The heroes and heroines of his novels and short stories were often portraits or composite portraits, at least, of real people. Robert Clay, of that fine tale, "Soldiers of Fortune," was a combination of Davis himself and the famous mining engineer, John Hays Hammond, he who rode with Dr. Jamison on that heroic and insolent raid into the Dutch Free State in South Africa. Mme. Alvarez, of the same novel, was built from a haunting memory of a mysterious Fair Unknown, with sleepy black eyes, whom Davis used to see gazing from a window of a house in Paris.

The Most Inspiring Handiwork of Man

A GENTLEMAN through and through, a man of such natural dignity as sometimes offended those who set little store by careful manners, Richard Harding Davis had the precious gift of words, the priceless gift of painting pictures of life in its romance and its drama; pictures of lovely ladies and gallant men; of hard won fields and lost causes. Perhaps the glasses through which he gazed with his ever-youthful eagerness at the glittering, shifting panorama of life were rose tinted. Perhaps, indeed, there is no better way to look at life than through those magic lenses which dwarf the vulgar and magnify the noble.

Years ago, sitting at dinner with Richard Harding Davis, a journeyman at the feet of a master, I asked him to name the most inspiring handiwork of man that he had ever seen. He replied instantly: "The Winged Victory of Samothrace." He meant that sweeping, soaring marvel of ancient Greek sculpture which calls to every aspiration of the human soul from its magnificent position at the head of the main stairway of the Louvre, in Paris.

It is interesting to recall that remark of Davis' because, at this very moment, carpenters and masons, up to their knees in plaster and stone, are remodeling the great stairway and doing all the finer work, perhaps, under the eternal challenge of that marvelous figure of Victory. It is the finest piece of early Greek sculpture that the world cherishes today. It was found in the Island of Samothrace just 70 years ago, and was carved 305 years before the Christian era to commemorate a naval victory.
